FUSION IN PANIC FEARS FOR TICKET

McAneny Threat to Quit Leads Mitchel to Urge Hearst Men to Reconsider.

HURRY CALL FOR WHITMAN

Frantic Messages Beg the District Attorney to Come and Take Command.

REPUBLICANS SMILE GRIMLY

Rank and File Drifting to Gaynor, Some Leaders Say — Mayor's Friends Hard at Work.

Fearful that its city ticket proposing John Purroy Mitchel for Mayor, George McAneny for President of the Board of Aldermen, and William A. Prendergast for Controller would go to pieces as the result of William R. Hearst's attack upon Mr. McAneny and Mr. Prendergast and the threats of prominent Republicans to support Mayor Gaynor, the Fusion Committee of 107 sent frantic appeals yesterday to District Attorney Whitman at Bretton Woods, N. H., to return and take charge of the situation.

Mr. Whitman will arrive in the city to-day, but the situation is so confused and desperate that even he may not be able to command it. Friends of Mr. McAneny urged him to refuse to run on the same ticket with Mr. Mitchel unless Mr. Mitchel repudiated Mr. Hearst, while many Republicans demanded that the Fusion committee withdraw Mr. Mitchel as its Mayoralty candidate and substitute Mayor Gaynor.

Mitchel Chides Hearst Men.

So much pressure was brought to bear on Mr. Mitchel that after conferring with the Fusion leaders at the Bar Association, at midnight he gave out copies of a letter he had written to William J. Taylor, Chairman of the Independence League City Committee, in which he refused the nomination for Mayor the league had given him at its meeting last Saturday night unless it also nominated both Mr. McAneny and Mr. Prendergast. The letter was taken to mean that Mr. Mitchel would repudiate Mr. Hearst's support unless the Independence League also supported his running mates on the Fusion ticket.

This is the letter made public by Mr. Mitchel:

New York, Aug. 25, 1913.

William J. Taylor, Chairman Independence League City Committee.

Sir: On Saturday your committee did me the honor to make me the official designee of the Independence League for the office of Mayor in its primary election to be held on Sept. 16. Your committee did not, however, designate Mr. McAneny for the office of President of the Board of Aldermen or Mr. Prendergast for the office of Controller.

Much as I appreciate the honor conferred by your committee in its designation of me as its candidate for Mayor, much as I value and welcome the support of the Independence League in my canvass for that office, it will be obvious to you that I could not honorably accept nomination upon a ticket which denies nomination to my two associates upon the Fusion city ticket.

The Independence League, which has stood for honest government in this city and has turned its face consistently away from Tammany Hall and its corrupt control and special interests, should not be the first to take a step in the direction of dissension and disruption.

The issue of the coming municipal campaign does not turn upon the merits or demerits of the dual subway operating contracts. The issue is, and must remain, the defeat of Murphy and Tammany Hall, and the establishment in the City Hall of honest and efficient Government, as outlined in the Fusion platform.

Says Subway Question Is Not An Issue.

Every one knows my position with regard to subways. I was no better satisfied than are the members of your league with the terms of the contracts for the operation of the dual subway system. That question, however, is a thing of the past. The contracts have been adopted. They are binding legal obligations of the city, contracted by majority vote of the Board of Estimate. They perforce mark out the path along which rapid transit development must proceed in this city for at least the next ten years Their adoption is an accomplished fact, not an issue.

The only subway issue of to-day is the expeditious enforcement of the contracts in the interests of the people of the city as against their constant modification in the interests of the transit companies.

Already a disposition has been shown by the Tammany candidate for Mayor to abrogate the terms of these contracts and revise them in the interests of the traction companies. Mr. McAneny's timely protest against this attempted looting of the city frustrated that plan. It is to be borne in mind that all modifications of these contracts, to be valid, must be approved by the Board of Estimate. No one will doubt that the interests at stake in the strict enforcement of these contracts will be safer in the hands of Mr. McAneny and Mr. Prendergast than in those of Tammany Hall.

To reject Mr. McAneny and Mr. Prendergast upon their record in advocating these contracts would be to punish them for one act in which your judgment and my judgment was opposed to theirs and to disregard their records on all other matters before the Board of Estimate and in their respective departments. The records of the Fusion members of the Board of Estimate contrasted with the record of the present Tammany Hall Mayor constitute the basis of the appeal to be made to the people in this campaign for a continuance of efficient business government and the extension of that kind of government to the departments under the control of the Mayor, and for the exclusion of Tammany Hall, its predatory interests and contract jobbers, from the City Government for the next four years.

To deny indorsement of Mr. McAneny and Mr. Prendergast can only tend to aid Tammany in its effort to elect its own nominees. Surely the Independence League, which has always fought Tammany Hall and all it stands for, will not desire to

ROBBERS WAIT FOR SALE.

Defer Holdup of United Cigar Store Until Customer Departs.

When early last evening John C. Reynolds, clerk in the United Cigar Store at 322 Columbus Avenue, turned from the cigarette shelves with a package for one of three men who had just come in, he found himself looking into the muzzle of a revolver and he knew that the hold-ups of the United Stores had begun again. Before his visitors had a chance to press their advantage, they and he saw a customer turning into the shop. To Reynolds it seemed like deliverance, but even as the customer was crossing the threshold, the man with the revolver slipped it into his coat pocket and warned the clerk to keep his mouth shut or have his head blown off.

Reynolds kept his mouth shut. With the leader of the three robbers watching him like a cat, he listened to the customer's order, filled it mechanically, handed out the coupons and matches, and watched his only hope stroll out of the store, utterly unconscious of what dangerous ground he had been treading.

Once he was gone the three moved swiftly, ordering the clerk to show them how to open the cash drawer, pocketing the $70 in it and starting off with the usual threats of violence if he should raise any hue and cry. He raised none but tried to fling himself on the last to leave, and for his pains received a blow in the face that dropped him to the floor half senseless.

A passer-by saw the three running through Seventy-sixth Street toward Amsterdam Avenue and sent a policeman in pursuit, but they got away. Last March this same store was robbed in much the same manner during the period when the chain of stores of this company was visited with a succession of robberies that was finally halted for a time by a series of arrests.

HOUSE DECORATORS STRIKE

20,000 Painters and Paper Hangers Tie Up Work on Costly Homes.

Some 20,000 painters and paper hangers of the city will go on strike early this morning, according to officials of the International Painters and Paper Hangers' Union. A general strike was agreed upon some time ago, but the officials had not perfected arrangements for it until yesterday.

A committee was named to station pickets at all houses in course of alteration or renovation, and the pickets will be equipped with red circulars containing the official strike order in English and Yiddish. The pickets were ordered to report for duty at 4 o'clock this morning.

According to the officers of the union, the strike will be the largest known in the trade. Philip Ragaway, Assistant Secretary of the union, said yesterday that work on hundreds of houses in Fifth Avenue and Riverside Drive which were being renovated while the occupants were away for the Summer would be stopped by the strike.

The International Painters and Paper Hangers' Union is affiliated with the United Hebrew Trades, but is not in the American Federation, nor is it allied with the unions in the Building Trades Council. A sympathetic strike is not expected, therefore. The demands of the men are for a forty-four-hour week, a minimum wage of $20 a week, and provision by employers for accident insurance for all painters and paper hangers while at work.

FINLEY AS AN ARBITRATOR.

Economist and Educator Completes Board on Railroad Troubles.

It was stated on good authority last night that Commissioner of Education John H. Finley had been selected as the sixth member of the Board of Arbitration to consider the demands of the trainmen and conductors, who recently threatened to strike.

The selection of Dr. Finley completes the Board of Arbitration which, under the Newlands amendment to the Erdman act, will consider the demands of the trainmen and conductors on the Eastern railroads. These are the arbitrators who will hear the wage controversy:

For the trainmen and conductors Lucius E. Sheppard, senior Vice President of the Railway Conductors, and Daniel L. Cease, editor of The Railway Trainmen, the official organ of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen; for the railroads A. H. Smith, senior Vice President of the New York Central Railroad, and W. W. Atterbury, Vice President of the Pennsylvania Railroad; for the public Seth Low and Dr. John H. Finley.

Dr. Finley became President of the College of the City of New York in 1903. When he was appointed Commissioner of Education he did not hand in a formal resignation as President of the college. Dr. Finley was born near Galesburg, Ill., in 1863. He was graduated from Knox College, and took advanced courses in history and economics in Johns Hopkins University. He has written several books on economic subjects. He became President of Knox College in 1892, and held that post until 1899, when he engaged in editorial work on Harper's and McClure's. Shortly after he accepted the Chair of Politics at Princeton, and remained there until he was called to this city.

WIFE SEWED GEMS IN COAT.

Didn't Know Diamonds Were There, Langer's Defense in Smuggling Case

Leopold Langer a suitmaker of 2,138 Seventh Avenue, Manhattan, was arraigned before Commissioner Stanton in Hoboken yesterday afternoon on a charge of smuggling and was held in $500 bail for the action of the Federal Grand Jury in September at Trenton.

Langer arrived on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. in the second cabin. As evidence against him a coat was produced in court which Langer had worn on leaving the steamer. Deputy Surveyor Raczkiewicz, who examined Langer on the pier, said that he had found a pearl necklace neatly sewed into the padding of one shoulder, while a diamond lavalliere worth $5,000 was cunningly hidden in the padding of the other shoulder.

Jacob J. Singer, who appeared as attorney for Langer, said that his client was innocent of any intent to smuggle and that he did not know that the jewelry was hidden in his coat, having been sewed into the padding by his wife for safe keeping. Lawyer Singer explained the fact that the inspectors were unable to find a diamond heart, which Langer had included in his declaration, by saying that Mrs. Langer had had the diamonds of the heart reset into the lavalliere. The only explanation offered for the failure to declare the pearl necklace was that Langer had forgotten it.

THAW TO INVOKE HIS TREATY RIGHTS

Counsel Paves Way to Appeal from Deportation Order Under International Law.

JEROME THERE, CONFIDENT

Insists That If Thaw Is Sent to Vermont It Will Be Easy to Extradite Him.

Special to The New York Times.

SHERBROOKE, Quebec, Aug. 25.—Interest in the case of Harry Kendall Thaw was greatly intensified to-day when it became known that his counsel was at work on a plan of action by which it was hoped to combat the efforts of the immigration officials to dump him unceremoniously over the border into Vermont.

According to ex-Gov. William A. Stone of Pennsylvania, who held a long conference with the barristers retained by Thaw, the case may assume international prominence. He said that under the provisions of the treaty between the United States and Canada Thaw was within his rights in demanding that the merits of his case be submitted to the courts, despite the fact that the immigration laws denied to any but a Canadian citizen any appeal from the decision of the Minister of the Interior.

"Thaw will be here long after the next snow falls," said Mr. Stone to THE TIMES correspondent. "You had better send for your overcoat and heavy mittens."

William Travers Jerome's arrival here after an automobile ride which for speed rivaled the mad flight of Thaw from Matteawan added an enlivening touch to the situation. Dressed in a dusty suit of khaki, Mr. Jerome jumped from his machine at the Magog Hotel, and his first statement was that he simply had come on "to hang around and try to be useful."

Jerome Central Figure.

But soon it became evident that Mr. Jerome was to be the big figure in the fight to get Thaw back to Matteawan. There was renewed activity in what is known here as the anti-Thaw camp, and the other lawyers and officials were eager to consult with him. After he had heard all the reports Mr. Jerome seemed supremely confident that Thaw would soon be back in the United States and eventually would return to his cell in Matteawan Asylum. Mr. Jerome was told about Mr. Stone's talk about international complications if the Board of Inquiry voted to deport Thaw and the decision was upheld by the Minister of the Interior. He thought the matter over carefully and then said:

"How would Thaw go about it? Supposing the immigration officials put the handcuffs on him and dumped him over the border as soon as the Minister sustained the decision of the Board of Inquiry?"

Ex-Gov. Stone broached the subject of the treaty when he was asked if the Canadian immigration laws ever had been tested. He showed a studied knowledge of the subject.

"No," he replied, "I don't think they have."

"But can they be tested in this case?" he was asked. "The immigration laws say that Thaw, if released on the habeas corpus proceedings, and then ordered deported by the Board of Inquiry, can appeal to the Minister of the Interior. But they specifically provide that no other than a Canadian citizen can appeal from the decision of the Minister to the courts."

Points to Treaty Provision.

"By the provisions of the treaty between the United States and Canada, citizens of either country have equal rights before the courts of the other country," replied Mr. Stone, thoughtfully.

He dropped the subject there, but it became evident during the day that Thaw's counsel was conducting a searching inquiry into this phase of the situation. If they could once get Thaw's case into the courts by raising the point that the immigration laws denying an appeal to the courts was an infringement on his rights under the treaty, it probably would mean a full review of the matter here, and it might be possible to carry the case through all the courts to the King's Privy Council.

Meanwhile a widespread campaign is being waged to arouse sentiment for Thaw, and it is evident that Thaw's lawyers feel assured that the immigration authorities will not act summarily in the case, and deport Thaw while there is a doubt as to his legal standing. Whether an appeal to the State Department at Washington had been considered, in the event of a treaty point being raised, none of the lawyers would say.

Mr. Stone made only one other assertion, but it indicated that counsel for Thaw would contend that he did not come under the section of the immigration laws which referred to insane persons as undesirables.

"Thaw has not been insane since he shot Stanford White," he said.

The immigration officials paid little attention to the reports of international complications, and went about their preparations to deport Thaw to Vermont. They predicted that Thaw would be out of Canada within ten days of the hearing on the habeas corpus writ on Wednesday.

"The Board of Inquiry before which he must first appear after arrest by the immigration agents," said one of the officials, "will probably sit in Coaticook on Thursday or Friday. Then it probably will take from six to eight days before the appeal is carried to the Minister of the Interior at Ottawa and disposed of. We believe that Thaw will be ordered deported by the board and the decision upheld on appeal. Then out of the country he goes. Vermont has been decided upon.

"I believe that Thaw will be arrested Wednesday on the charge that he entered the country by stealth. If that charge is overruled by the Board of Inquiry or Minister he will be immediately rearrested on the charge that he is insane and therefore an undesirable. Such a complication, of course, would mean delay. On the other hand, it gives us a double-bladed weapon to use against him."

Mr. Jerome said flatly that he had no doubt Thaw would be deported quickly. He said he had not communicated with the Governor of Vermont, but was confident that Thaw could be extradited from that State without long delay.

"Any crime is extraditable after Thaw gets to Vermont," he said. "And conspiracy is a crime. Once in Vermont it will be for the Governor to decide. He merely asks for identification and whether the man is wanted for some crime. Then as a usual thing he grants the extradition. There is no argument of fact. If the Governor does not care to permit the extradition of a prisoner of course that ends it. There is no power to make him do so."

Mr. Jerome said he was aware that politics had played a part in former cases, but he seemed to feel satisfied

COMMANDEER A CAR FOR AN ELOPEMENT

Couple Arrive at Waldorf at 4 A. M. and Rouse Sleeping Clergy by Phone.

Kurt Wandel paced up and down a Garden City highway a little after 2 o'clock yesterday morning in a quandary. He had an engagement to elope, and that right soon. The fair lady was due at any moment, and Mr. Wandel had promised to produce a big, high-powered car. The lady had stipulated this, but Mr. Wandel did not know Garden City, and hadn't been able to find a garage.

He took out his watch and glanced nervously at it. It lacked just ten minutes of the time she had appointed to meet him. Not an automobile was in sight—not even a carriage. The prospective bridegroom glanced up and down the road again, and then at his watch. Ah! just five minutes.

From far in the distance came the sound of a horn, and then a light gleamed. The distant hum of a big motor increased in volume. Mr. Wandel waved his arms and shouted. The car had a single occupant, and as the lights shone upon the man in the road the grinding of an emergency brake was heard, and the automobile came to a stop. The astonished driver demanded to know what was wanted.

In a few words Mr. Wandel explained. Would the occupant of the car, who turned out to be the owner of a local garage, take Mr. Wandel and the prospective bride to New York? Would he? What man could resist an appeal of the sort? So Mr. Wandel hurriedly explained his plans, and the other nodded approvingly at each step. Then the car started triumphantly for the spot where the meeting had been arranged to take place. Here it is necessary to go back.

Wedding Set for Oct. 1.

The romance began just seven weeks ago, at the Waldorf, where Mr. and Mrs. Wandel are now stopping. At that time Mr. Wandel was presented to Miss Eloise Rowe, daughter of Mrs. C. A. Bennett of Denver, and a sister of Mrs. C. A. Fortier of Garden City. Mr. Fortier himself performed the introduction. He knew Mr. Wandel as a resident of Boston, and in business at Walpole, Mass., as a manufacturer of paper machinery. Two weeks ago Miss Rowe had promised to become Mrs. Wandel, and the wedding was arranged to take place on Oct. 1, with all the flowers and the bridesmaids and other attendants that a church wedding may have.

But the idea of delay struck Mr. Wandel as unnecessary. He had learned during his business experience in the United States that, once you have made up your mind, delays may be avoided if you know how to go about it. So he persuaded his fiancée one day last week that it would be a nice thing to have a wedding license—just in case they took a sudden notion to get married. She agreed that it might be as well to have one on hand, having read of the troubles of young people who had been unable to get married without such a document, and this was obtained in Nassau County. Then the bold Mr. Wandel began to plan further.

They were both invited on Sunday to be of a party that Albert Schmidt of Detroit was going to take out cruising from Long Beach on his yacht Yokoloy, and most of the day was spent on the water. Here Mr. Wandel found ample opportunity to urge the plan he had formed, which was to elope that night and get married in New York. After some persuasion, which was continued during an automobile trip in the evening, Miss Rowe agreed. The party reached the Fortier home at 1:30 in the morning, and when Mr. Wandel took his leave, his fiancée had agreed to pack a suitcase and meet him a block from the house at 2:30 o'clock. He was to be ready with a car of the kind specified.

At the appointed time Miss Rowe tiptoed softly out of the house, carrying a diminutive bag, and made her way to the trysting place, where, sure enough, she found, thanks to unusual luck, her lover had been as good as his word.

Arrival at the Waldorf.

The big car sped rapidly Manhattanward. Details of the journey are lacking, except that neither Mr. nor Mrs. Wandel could remember yesterday that they had seen a single automobile or vehicle of any kind on the way. In what seemed an incredibly short time they were stepping out of the car in front of the Waldorf-Astoria.

Mr. Wandel stepped boldly up to the register, and wrote in a firm hand, "Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Wandel, Boston." Then he remembered something.

"We are not married yet," he said to the night clerk. "Is it possible to get hold of a minister? We don't want to be married by a Justice of the Peace."

It was then about 4 o'clock. The night cashier, who has a romantic soul, was called into conference. He volunteered to try to produce a clergyman by telephone. According to the bridegroom, no fewer than a dozen ministers of various denominations were awakened and asked to officiate, but one and all they refused to perform a marriage before breakfast. The process of getting the clergymen out of bed and to the telephone, pleading with them, and being turned down consumed, so Mr. Wandel said later, about two hours. Finally it was arranged that the Rev. Dr. Houghton of the Little Church Around the Corner would perform the ceremony at the church at 9 o'clock. How would they spend the time intervening?

"I'm hungry," confessed the bride-to-be.

So the bridegroom-to-be called a taxi and they made their way to Jack's. Breakfast took about an hour. There were still two hours left.

"Let's take a ride in the Park," suggested Miss Rowe. So up to the Park they went. Here there was so much to see in the early sunshine that another hour was taken up. One hour remained.

This time it was he who spoke.

"I had forgotten about the ring," he said.

"I can't be married without a ring," she reminded him.

"That's just the best way to put in the rest of the time," he went on, joyfully. "Now you can get just the sort of ring you want."

So they walked down Broadway, and, as it happened, by the time the right ring had been found at the jeweler's there were just enough minutes left to reach the church by the time appointed. The ceremony performed, Mr. and Mrs. Wandel returned to the Waldorf.

When interviewed yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Wandel said there had been no opposition to the wedding, but that her sister was coming up later and had promised her a "beating." She, however, didn't look at all scared.

STEFANSSON SHIP CAUGHT IN ICE

News of Halting of the Karluk Off Point Barrow Cabled to The Times by Explorer.

BY VILHJALMAR STEFANSSON.

In Command of the Canadian Exploration Expedition to the Arctic.

(Copyright, 1913, by The New York Times Company.)

ON BOARD THE KARLUK, Aug. 6, via Nome, Alaska, Aug. 25.—The Karluk and the Mary Sachs left Port Clarence together early on the morning of July 27 and passed Cape Prince of Wales late that afternoon; fresh northeasterly breeze. The Sachs rounded the cape sharply on account of her shallow draught, but the Karluk had to keep well off shore on account of the shoals. The Sachs has not been sighted since by the Karluk.

There was a gale on July 28 and a heavy gale on the 29th, blowing from true north for several hours. The Karluk lost ground, but behaved beautifully in spite of her heavy and high deck cargo. She got shelter under Cape Thompson on the 30th, and steamed along shore to Point Hope, where we purchased several tons of walrus fat from the Eskimos and took on two Eskimos as sailors.

The wind abated in the evening. The following morning we rounded Point Hope, southwesterly breeze, only a fair wind all day, shifting to northwest in the evening. That afternoon ice was sighted to windward, coming landward; it was solid before the wind worked the ice.

The Karluk finally caught fast in the ice six miles off shore, thirty miles southwest of Point Barrow, at 2 o'clock in the morning of Aug. 2. That afternoon Dr. Mackay and I walked ashore, six miles, in three hours, which shows how solidly the heavy ice cakes were jammed against one another. We walked to Charles Brower's whaling station at Cape Smythe, arriving there Aug. 4 to purchase skin boats, the only boats suitable for launching over ice intercepted with open leads, in case the Karluk should be crushed by the ice. Each boat is 30 feet long and can carry thirty men. It can be dragged by two men over the ice and is far stronger than a wooden boat, which ten men could hardly launch over the ice, and then at great risk of breaking.

The wind shifted to a faint southwest breeze, and remained so until the afternoon of Aug. 5. It blew northwesterly in the evening, with snow squalls. The ice, however, loosened up contrary to expectations, and the Karluk arrived opposite Smythe at 9 o'clock on the morning of Aug. 6, but was set fast again by the ice three miles off shore opposite the Cape.

VILHJALMAR STEFANSSON.

NOME, Alaska, Aug. 25.—The old whaler Karluk, which was taking Vilhjalmur Stefansson's Canadian polar expedition into the Arctic, met with a serious accident in the ice off Point Barrow, the northernmost point of Alaska, and may have to unload her cargo, according to word received here to-day from the revenue cutter Bear.

The extent of the damage to the Karluk is not known, but it is reported that a large hole was stove in her hull.

TRUCE WITH MILITANTS?

Belief That Ministry and Mrs. Pankhurst Have Reached Agreement.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—Rumors which have been current of a truce betewen the militant suffragettes and the British Government seem to find support in a letter written by Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the suffragette leader, to her followers advising them to take a holiday for the present. She says:

"I am gathering up strength for a renewed battle when the holiday season is over. I hope that every one of you also will take advantage of the present lull in political activity to take the rest and change you have all so richly deserved."

Another indication that an agreement has been reached is the cessation by the authorities of the enforcement of the provisions or the "Cat-and-Mouse" act. Out of 43 suffragettes sentenced to imprisonment for various offenses only one is now in jail. Most of the rest of them are following their ordinary vocations and no attempt is made to rearrest them.

It is widely believed that Mrs. Pankhurst has at last agreed to a truce in order to strengthen the hands of those members of the British Cabinet who are working to make the enfranchisement of women a Government measure.

NAME HAVENS FOR MAYOR.

Rochester Fusionists Unite on Man Who Beat Aldridge for Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 25.—The Democratic and Progressive City and County General Committees met here this afternoon and designated ex-Congressman James S. Havens as the Fusion candidate for Mayor. Mr. Havens is now in Algonquin County, Ont. The Republican leaders are hoping he will refuse the nomination.

Mr. Havens defeated Republican State Committeeman George W. Aldridge for Congress at a special election three years ago last Spring. It is said by leaders of both parties nominating him that he will accept the designation if no opposition develops in the caucus. The two parties divided the rest of the city and county tickets.

WANTS ALL AMERICANS OUT OF MEXICO, WILSON WILL TELL CONGRESS TO-DAY; LIND RETURNING, MISSION A FAILURE

LIND DECLARES HIS MISSION ENDED

Off for Vera Cruz To-day and Will Sail for Home on Thursday.

HUERTA PREPARING NOTE

But It Is Not a Retraction of His Refusal, Mexican Foreign Minister Explains.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 25.—John Lind, President Wilson's peace envoy, will leave for Vera Cruz to-morrow morning, and sail for the United States Thursday on the Morro Castle.

"I have done my work here," he said to-night, "and there is nothing left for me but to go home. No further significance should be attached to my departure. During my stay here I have met many Americans and Mexicans, none of whom I regret having met."

Mr. Lind refused to state whether he considered his mission a failure, but the indications coming from him are that he so considers it.

Mr. Lind refused to make any comment on the results obtained from his negotiations.

"It is for others to judge of what I have done," he remarked.

Mexican officials regard Mr. Lind's departure as an indication that the United States intends to adopt another policy, although there are no signs as to what that will be. Nothing is expressed here beyond conjecture as to the possible causes behind Mr. Lind's departure. It is reliably reported to-day that Mr. Lind recommended that Mexico have until Wednesday to reconsider the American proposals, and that Mr. Hale advised Mr. Wilson not to do so, as he believed there would be no result and that there would be still further delay in coming to the other policy for clearing the situation.

Elaborate precautions are being taken to protect Mr. Lind. A military train will precede and follow the regular train in which he travels.

At a Cabinet meeting called by President Huerta, and convened late to-night, it is believed that Mr. Lind's departure was discussed, although in what way is not known.

It was authoritatively stated that the financial situation was improving and was considered by the Cabinet.

Many retired army officers are being quietly recalled to active service.

It was rumored to-day that Porfirio Diaz would be summoned.

Foreigners and prominent Mexicans regard the situation as serious. Many are preparing to leave this week. Huerta is doing everything possible to give ample protection to all foreigners and to punish persons attacking them.

Mexico is preparing another note to Washington. Señor Gamboa said that this was an indication that the departure of Mr. Lind was not a breach of relations between the two countries.

He refused to discuss the contents of the note, but indicated that it was not a reconsideration or retraction of Mexico's first answer.

A high official of the Government and a close friend of President Huerta said to-night that the President had no intention of resigning or retracting his statements regarding the American situation.

TWO SLAIN BY PEONS.

An Englishman One Victim of Mexican Attempt at Robbery.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 25.—Arthur Edward Seymour Laughton, an Englishman, and Erich von Thaden were assassinated at Coahuacan, Michoacan, on Saturday by peons, for the purpose of the robbery of a $1,500 payroll. Laughton was the son-in-law of Mrs. Zella Nuttall, an archaeologist. The son leaves a wife and three children. Von Thaden was the son of an American woman and a German father. He leaves a wife and two children.

The affair took place on the ranch of Senator Eduardo Iturbide, a wealthy Mexican aristocrat. The bodies will be brought to this city for burial.

Senator Iturbide said to-night:

"I have lost not only two valuable employes, but two dear friends. I have conferred with President Huerta, Gen. Blanquet, and others, and all agree that drastic justice is to be done. At my request, I leave to-morrow at the head of troops, personally to punish the assassins. I swear I will do all humanly possible to avenge the death of my friends, and if I die, as possibly I may die, it will be knowing that I have done all possible for a friend to do for a friend and in fulfillment of my duty."

The news has been cabled to Mrs. Nuttall in Italy, and also to the wife and other members of Laughton's family.

Zella Nuttall has made a special study of the languages and antiquities of Mexico, including ancient picture writings, and is noted for research in Mexican archaeology and Colonial history. She is an honorary special assistant at the Peabody Museum, American Archaeology and Ethnology, Cambridge, Mass., and has been Honorary Professor of Archaeology at the National Museum, Mexico, since 1908. She is the daughter of Dr. Robert Kennedy, and was born in San Francisco. Her education was obtained in Paris, Germany, Italy, and at Bedford College, London. Most of her writings embody original researches in Mexican archaeology.

MAYOR HUNT'S BRAVERY.

Cincinnati Executive Rescues Girl and Stops Runaway Team.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 25.—Mayor Henry Hunt was standing on a street corner this afternoon, when a runaway team approached at breakneck speed. Mabel Hartford, a pretty girl of 18, was crossing the street at the time, unmindful of danger.

The Mayor jumped into the street, seized the girl and pushed her out of danger. Then he caught the bridle of one of the horses and held on. He was dragged several yards, but was not injured. After bringing the team to a standstill he continued on his way to Fountain Square, where he opened the Made-in-Cincinnati Exposition.

SLASHES HIS POISONED FOOT

Boatman Then Swims Ashore After Stingray Stabs Him.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 25.—Stabbed in the left heel by a stingray, John Swanson, who had been told that a wound inflicted by this fish was deadly, slashed his heel to the bone and jumped overboard from a boat in which he was rowing off Beach Haven this morning.

Swanson jumped into the sea because he had to follow a tortuous channel to row to land, and he feared he would not survive the trip. He was unconscious when he was found on the beach, and was still unconscious at a late hour to-night.

NERVED TO BE RUN OVER.

Awaited Express with Leg Caught and Wallet in Teeth—Arrested.

When George Verock of 9 Meadow Street, Bayonne, caught his foot in a switch of the Jersey Central tracks in that town yesterday afternoon and knew to his horror that an express train was due to thunder past within the next few moments, he decided that at least he would save the rest of himself, including his pocketbook, even if he had to lose a leg. Therefore, he took out his wallet, stuffed with $128 in bills, and put it between his teeth. Then he leaned as far from the rail as he could and waited for his fate.

His fate was Special Officer Heintzleman, who came to the rescue, threw the switch just in time, and dragged Verock to safety. The rescued man was profuse in his gratitude, but even as he was seeking words in which to express it the unappreciative officer locked him up on a charge of intoxication.

L. S. Bruguiere Reports Loss of Jeweled Stud and Cuff Links.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 25.—Louis S. Bruguière has reported to the police the loss of a large sapphire stud and a pair of diamond-set gold cuff links, together with the shirt to which they were attached. They were taken from his automobile on the grounds of Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Oakland Farm during his dinner and dance on Sunday evening.

Mr. Bruguière had taken some clothes to Oakland Farm, intending to change there for the dance later at Mrs. Astor's. When he opened his bag he discovered that his jewelry and shirt were missing.

TO DECIDE HORTON'S SANITY

Commission Appointed in Case of Man Who Wed When 85 Years Old.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 25.—When Supreme Court Justice Mills appointed a commission to-day to inquire into the sanity of George W. Horton, Horton's old neighbors here learned for the first time that he had been married again. At the age of 85, on Sept. 12, 1912, he went to Windsor, Canada, and was married to Alice Muzzey McCaslin of Painesville, Ohio. He says he proposed to her ten years ago, when she qualified her refusal by promising to let him know if she ever changed her mind.

The commission was appointed at the request of his daughter, Mrs. Jane Ann Dickie of 149 South Broadway, White Plains. Among other things, Mrs. Dickie complains that her father, "once neat in dress and 'mannerly' in habits," has become slovenly and uncouth at the table. On that point her father makes a sharp rejoinder. He points out that he was a pilot for sixty years, and that as a pilot he was often obliged to go for days without changing his clothes, to stand watch day and night, and to snatch his meals by eating such dry salt codfish as he could carry in his pocket. He had no need for table manners.

Furthermore, he says he did not have any too good care at the hands of Mrs. Dickie, with whom he came to live when he retired in 1907. He complains that he had to sew on his own buttons and darn his own socks, but that when it came to handling his own money his daughter attended to that.

Hopeful of Maintaining the Policy of Non-Interference, President Advises.

STILL CHANCE FOR HUERTA

Conciliatory Message May Come To-day Before Wilson Goes to the Capitol.

LIND SAYS HE'S THROUGH

Quoted in Mexico City as Being Convinced of Failure, but Bryan Still Hopes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—A real crisis is on in the relations between Mexico and the United States. At the conclusion of a long conference in the Cabinet room of the White House this evening between President Wilson, Secretary Bryan, and members of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations and the House Committee on Foreign Affairs it was admitted that John Lind's peace mission had met with failure, and that the situation was worse than it had been at any time.

Shortly after the conference adjourned it was made known that a message was expected from Mr. Lind, and that upon the character of this would depend the future policy of the Administration in dealing with Mexico.

The President read to the assembled Senators and Representatives the message, or address, to be delivered to the Senate and House in joint session to-morrow afternoon unless advices should be received from Mexico City that President Huerta had adopted a more conciliatory attitude.

The President's speech to Congress will begin with a general discussion of conditions in Mexico. He will not throw responsibility for the future American policy upon Congress and will express the hope that a peaceable solution of the difficulty may yet be found. He will make two affirmative suggestions.

To Get Americans Out.

One is that Americans in Mexico shall be taken out of the troubled republic. This is in line with Secretary Bryan's recent request for an appropriation of $100,000 to transport destitute Americans to the frontier.

The President's other affirmative suggestion is that the neutrality laws be rigidly enforced against both contending factions. This will be a striking departure from the course hitherto pursued. While the rebels have not been allowed to receive shipments of arms from the United States, the Federals have received munitions regularly. A large shipment under an old permit was made to the Federal authorities a few days ago.

The President in his speech will discuss the general theory of the neutrality laws, and his advocacy of the strict application of those laws to both factions will simply mean that he will, himself, without the interposition of Congress, refuse hereafter to grant permits to the Federals.

Contrary to the general expectation, the President informed his hearers to-night that Gen. Huerta's reply to the note transmitted by Mr. Lind would not be transmitted to Congress as an appendix to his speech. This is probably because the Mexican note will be made public in the City of Mexico, though some Senators had the impression that the forceful way in which General Huerta had met the proposals of President Wilson was partly explanatory of the President's reluctance to make it public along with his own speech.

Gen. Huerta's note, it can be stated, was received by those who heard it read to-night as an able presentation of his side of the case. He was particularly clear in stating that it would be impossible for his Government to have an armistice with the rebels in arms, and in his argument that it was unreasonable and unprecedented to expect him to follow that course.

Hopes for Peaceful Solution.

The President in his address will express the hope that a peaceful solution of the problem will be found, and that the moral weight of the American proposals, perhaps coupled with the good will of the civilized world, may gradually affect Gen. Huerta's decision.

Members of the Congressional committees heard with interest the text of the President's note to President Huerta as transmitted by Mr. Lind. That note referred to the long friendship and close relations between the two countries as an excuse for internal suggestions. Those suggestions were sweeping enough.

As dispatches to THE NEW YORK TIMES from Washington have pointed out, the President asked that an armistice between the Huerta Government and the insurrectionaries be effected, that a fair and honorable election be held, and that Gen. Huerta be not a candidate to succeed himself. All these suggestions were rejected.

Wilson Against Armed Intervention

All this means that while the situation is delicate and critical, the President has set his face against a policy of armed intervention or any of its phases. In the message he will read to the joint Congressional assembly tomorrow afternoon he will be careful to avoid anything that will tend to inflame American public opinion. He still hopes for peace. But he realizes that peace may not be continued indefinitely, and for that reason will set about preparation for a hostile outcome. His declared intention to have all Americans taken out of Mexico is the first step in this direction.

President Wilson will have loyal support from Senators and Representatives in what he proposes. That was made certain to-night by the attitude of those who attended the White House conference, Republicans as well as Democrats were there, and all of them indicated that they were favorably disposed toward the tone, character, and contents of the President's address.

Some suggestions as to the course that should be adopted by the United States were made, but those who made them were not insistent, and it was said afterward that no recommendations had been brought forward that required any change in the President's communication as it had been prepared originally.

At midnight Secretary Bryan said that he intended to remain at the State Department all night in the expectation that a message would be received from Mr. Lind that would change the situation for the better.

Mr. Lind, it was understood, had been engaged this evening in an eleventh-hour effort to induce the Mexican Government to adopt a more conciliatory policy, and he was instructed to inform Secretary Bryan before morning whether his endeavors had met with success or failure.

A press dispatch from the City of Mexico saying that Mr. Lind left there to-night was shown to Mr. Bryan. He said the statement was not true. He would not deny, however, that Mr. Lind might leave Mexico City for the United States to-morrow.

It is understood that Mr. Lind's departure from the Mexican capital will be practically synchronous with the delivery of President Wilson's address to Congress.

If through some favorable turn, due to the willingness of President Huerta to concede some of the American suggestions, President Wilson should be able to inform Congress that there was hope of a happier solution of the situation, Mr. Lind would be directed to remain in Mexico City to continue the negotiations. Otherwise he would return to the United States without delay.

Mr. Lind's recall will not constitute a break in the diplomatic relations of Mexico and the United States, as he has no diplomatic status.

Those Who Attended the Meeting.

Those who attended the White House conference, in addition to President Wilson and Secretary Bryan, were Senators Bacon of Georgia, Chairman, of the Foreign Relations Committee; Stone of Missouri, Shively of Indiana, Clarke of Arkansas, O'Gorman of New York, Williams of Mississippi, Swanson of Virginia, Pomerene of Ohio, Smith of Arizona, Lodge of Massachusetts, McCumber of North Dakota, and Borah of Idaho; Representatives Flood of Virginia, Chairman of the House Foreign Relations Committee; Cline of Indiana, Linthicum of Maryland, Diefenderfer of Pennsylvania, Stedman of North Carolina, Harrison of Mississippi, Walker of Georgia, Cooper of Wisconsin, and Temply of Pennsylvania.

Of the twenty-one Senators and Representatives present five were Republicans.

All through the conference, which was begun at 8:30 and ended about 11 o'clock, Secretary Bryan kept in touch with the telegraph office at the State Department. The last thing before the conference broke up, the Secretary telephoned again to the telegraph room at the department to ask if dispatch had come from the City of Mexico and received the reply that none had come so far. The office of The Associated Press was also called up just before the Senators and Congressmen arose to leave, and again the answer came that no word had been received from the City of Mexico. The Senators and Representatives all announced that they could not talk. The seal of silence had been set on them, they said.

Within a few minutes after the conference had ceased a telephone message came over to the White House from the State Department saying that a dispatch from the City of Mexico had started. Mr. Bryan at once informed the President, and then went quickly over to the department, where he proceeded directly to the telegraph room and sat down by the operator who had begun to take the slow coded dispatch. As soon as ten or fifteen words came they were deciphered and in a quarter of an hour the Secretary was satisfied that the message was not the one expected giving the last word of the Huerta Government.

This message was from Mr. Lind, but it related to matters connected with the condition of negotiations and not to the decision expected from President Huerta. Mr. Bryan telephoned to the President that the dispatch did not bring Huerta's answer. Within a few minutes thereafter the President went to bed.

At midnight Secretary Bryan told his coachman to go home. Mr. Bryan said that he should stay up until the expected dispatch from Mr. Lind had been received and deciphered, and would sleep in his office, where he could make himself comfortable.

Address Will Be Friendly in Tone.

The President's address to Congress, as read to his visitors to-night, was written in a vein of kindly reference to the conditions in Mexico. The central idea appeared to be that an abnormal situation had been produced by a small group of men who obtained power through the overthrow and death of the Constitutional President, and whose rule was distasteful to the majority of the Mexican people. The President sought to make plain that what he was trying to accomplish was for the good of the whole Mexican people, for which the United States held the kindliest feeling.

Generally, the idea that ran through the address was that the United States Government was espousing the cause of the great mass of Mexican citizens as against that of an oligarchy that controlled them and prevented the establishment of peace.

The committeemen learned from the President that the presentation of his address to Congress would of itself terminate the negotiations intrusted to Mr. Lind for execution, as it would be in the nature of a report showing that the mission had failed.

The Senators and Representatives learned also from the President that no new proposals had been made to the Mexican Government by the United States since the rejection of the programme for the establishment of peace submitted through the medium of Mr. Lind. The President, it was explained, stood squarely on the suggestions for the adoption of which Mr. Lind had contended unsuccessfully.

For the first time the members of the two Congressional committees learned officially the details of the proposals embodied in the plan of American mediation. These proposals, it was made known, were substantially those given in a Washington dispatch sent to THE NEW YORK TIMES on Aug. 4, the day of Mr. Lind's departure from Washington for Mexico City.

Our Terms to Huerta.

The proposals, as made known to the committeemen to-night, were substantially as follows:

1. An agreement among the contending factions for a suspension of hostilities pending the election of a Constitutional President.

2. The retirement of President Huerta from office under an agreement not to be a candidate to succeed himself, and the installation of a provisional President pending the election of a Constitutional successor.

3. Constitutional elections for the choice of a President and Congress and the establishment of a Constitutional Government that will be recognized by the United States.

Whatever the President's disposition might be toward the other proposals, he made it plain, it was said, that he stood firmly and would continue so to stand on his insistence that Huerta should resign and that he should not be a candidate for re-election. It has been the opinion of many Senators and Representatives in Congress that the negotiations would have had a better chance of success if these terms had not been included in the peace programme. A large number of Congressmen believe that the President made a mistake in giving greater weight to moral than to practical considerations in his effort to bring about a restoration of normal relations in Mexico. In their opinion, the Lind mission would have gone forward with considerable hope of success had President Wilson accorded formal recognition to the Huerta Government. But the President, evidently believing that Huerta was responsible in a large measure for the death of his predecessor, Francisco I. Madero, has declined to consider the so-called practical aspect of the matter, holding that the United States Government would have cause to be ashamed should it recognize Huerta's right to the office of President of Mexico.

To a certain extent officials of the Government have given some consideration to the means that they might be obliged to employ should a more radical course in dealing with Mexico be forced upon them by public opinion, reflected by Congress or their own decision that the situation in Mexico should not be tolerated any longer. It is believed that no definite plan of action has been decided on. But enough has been said to suggest that any movement of this Government that would be considered by Gen. Huerta and his followers as of a hostile nature would contemplate a practical espousal of the Constitutionalist or revolutionary cause and a declaration that the interference of the United States in Mexican affairs was at the invitation of that very considerable portion of the Mexican people who remained true to the Constitutional Government that had been overthrown through treason and assassination.

It was made plain prior to the conference that the Government here had been led to hope that Mr. Lind's mission would be successful through the friendly sentiments expressed to him by diplomatic representatives of foreign countries in Mexico City. But it has now been learned that no Government had instructed its agent in the Mexican capital to bring pressure to bear upon President Huerta to concede the propositions made by the United States. At the White House the statement was made that all the information the Government possessed as to active efforts by Great Britain, France, Japan, and other countries to bring Huerta to look favorably upon President Wilson's peace plan had been obtained from newspapers. Mr. Lind, it was said by officials, had not given in his dispatches the name of any nation that had been showing this friendly attitude toward the United States.

TO AVENGE HAYES'S DEATH.

Bryan Reiterates Demands for Punishment of Murderers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—Edmond Hayes, the manager of the Madera Lumber Company at Madera, Mexico, about whose safety there has been much anxiety for several days, was murdered in cold blood on the afternoon of Aug. 15, after a band of robbers, under Castillo, a notorious bandit, and affiliated with the Federal force in the Chihuahua district, had attacked and captured the town of Madera. Particulars of the murder came to the State Department to-day from Consul Letcher at Chihuahua. He obtained the story from a large party of Americans from Madera, which arrived at Chihuhua City on Friday.

Secretary Bryan to-day sent a peremptory demand to the Federal commander of the district, Gen. Cordoba, that the murderers be arrested and punished. Castillo recently allied himself with the Federals and has been acting under the command of Cordoba. The attack upon the town lasted for an hour.

According to Consul Letcher's report, the Federal troops near Madera have not been paid for some time, and Castillo's men were surly over their failure to receive the money due them. In order to satisfy them they were allowed to loot for twenty-four hours, and it is understood that the killing of Hayes occurred in consequence of this arrangement.

It is presumed that a demand was made on him for money and he refused it. There is a report, which is not confirmed by any information given out at the State Department, that the bandits, to show their resentment with the refusal of Hayes to meet their demands, stripped his body and inflicted upon it numerous barbaric indignities. It was reported to Consul Letcher that the men who committed the crime had been apprehended by order of Gen. Cordoba and held for trial and punishment. A negro called "Tom" was killed with Hayes.

Most of the members of the foreign colony at Madera, consisting of 100 Americans, a few Germans, and seventy-five Chinese, all fled from Madera immediately after the fight on a special train for Chihuahua. They rebuilt railroad bridges as they proceeded and reached Chihuahua on Friday afternoon. Arrangements were at once made to send them on through to Juarez, opposite El Paso, and it is expected that they will be able to start to-morrow or Wednesday.

Secretary Bryan telegraphed Consul Letcher to furnish all Americans who were in need of it with transportation to the United States. Six Americans remained at Madera to protect the property of the lumber company.

Hayes's mother, Mrs. Ella Hayes, lives at Farmington, Maine. She has been advised by the State Department of the information received here. Edmond Hayes made his home in recent years in Buffalo, N. Y., until he went to Mexico. He was regarded as a good business man of high character, and of exceptional courage.

After the battle to get control of the town of Madera, the Castillo band went out to the Babicora ranch, which is owned by Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, and attacked the properties there. A fierce fight followed. The employes were well armed and abundantly provided with ammunition. After several men had been killed on both sides the bandits withdrew in defeat. A dispatch was also sent by Secretary Bryan to-day, demanding of the Federal commander at Chihuahua the arrest and punishment of the men who made the attack at Babicora.

A message was also sent to our Embassy in the City of Mexico and to Consul Letcher, urging that the twenty-three independent guerrillas, formerly a part of Gen. Salazar's command, who killed an American citizen, "Ben" Griffen, and brutally assaulted Archer F. Parks, also an American citizen, near Madera, be caught and punished.

Consul Alger, at Mazatlan, has reported to the State Department that a messenger started overland from Mazatlan, on Saturday, with instructions intended for the protection of Sherley C. Hulse and his party at La Boquillas. It is expected that this messenger will arrive at Bonquilla on Sept. 8. A messenger was sent on the same errand from Chihuahua several days ago. No advice from Hulse have been received since the telegrams of inquiry were sent last week.

The following persons concerning whom inquiry has been made at the State Department, are reported safe: David L. C. Hoover, at Torreon; Seymour Taylor and family, at Tampico, and D. Haskell, who has just started from Bonquilla for the United States.

FARMINGTON, Me., Aug. 25.—Edmond Hayes, Jr., reported killed in Madera, Mexico, by Federal soldiers, was the son of Mrs. Ellen Hayes of Farmington, who received a message from Washington to-day informing her of his death. Besides his mother, Hayes leaves a sister, Mrs. Pratt of this town, and a brother in Ontario. He was thirty-four years old, and was graduated from Bowdoin College in 1902. He was in the employ of the Madera Lumber Company. Gen. Edmund Hayes, of Buffalo, was his uncle.

FRANCE TO SUPPORT WILSON.

Will Make Representations to Huerta, but Will Receive de la Barra.

PARIS, Aug. 25.—The French Foreign Office cabled instructions to the French Minister in Mexico on Friday to support the policy of the United States toward Mexico strongly by making friendly representations to Provisional President Huerta.

The French Government declares itself convinced by its advices from Washington of the sincerity of the pacific intentions of the United States Government toward the Mexican people.

A rumor emanating from apparently well-informed circles indicated that President Raymond Poincaré would not receive Francisco de la Barra, recently appointed Mexican Minister to France, but inquiries at the Foreign Office today brought out the authoritative affirmation that the French Ministry would not raise the slightest difficulty to the reception of Señor de la Barra by the French President at an early and convenient date.

It was pointed out that the question of the acceptability of Señor de la Barra in France had been settled before he left Mexico for Paris, and that he was a friend of President Poincaré as well as of Etienne Pichon, the French Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Señor de la Barra has arrived in Paris, and the Mexican Chargé d'Affaires will make immediate inquiries at the Foreign Office as to when he can present his credentials.

NO EUROPEAN PRESSURE.

Diplomats Delay Action Until Lind's Negotiations Are Ended.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 25.—It was learned to-day that no European pressure has been brought to bear upon President Huerta since ex-Gov. Lind's arrival, the idea being to insure a hearing of the American proposals.

It is stated that diplomatic notes made it plain that this did not indicate that the European nations were acquainted with the contents of the Lind proposals or favored them, but that they did not desire to see a crisis precipitated during the preliminary negotiations.

Minister Gamboa says:

"I do not believe the press reports from Washington that Latin Americans are supporting President Wilson in his attitude toward Mexico. So far as I know, no European pressure is being brought to bear in support of the position of the United States. The report that Señor de la Barra will not be received in France is untrue, as the French Government accepted him as persona grata when the usual exchange of messages of inquiry took place."

He pointed out that de la Barra's status was not the same as that of Gen. Felix Diaz, as the latter was on a special mission, while de la Barra had been named to fill a regular diplomatic post near the French Government.

REBELS JAIL AN AMERICAN.

Hunt's Offense Was Buying Cattle from a Huerta Partisan.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Aug. 25.—Stuart Hunt, an American ranch owner and cattleman of Sonora, with two of his cowboys, was arrested to-day at Fronteras charged with being an enemy of the Sonora State Government. They were imprisoned by order of José Maytorena, the insurgent Governor.

Hunt was arrested because of a cattle deal. He is charged with having bought from a wealthy Mexican Federal sympathizer cattle that had been sold to the State Government. The American's offense consisted in not dealing with the State Government directly. American cattlemen on both sides of the frontier have taken up the question with Constitutionalist leaders in an effort to effect Hunt's release.

RED CROSS TO AID REFUGEES.

J. H. Schiff and W. F. Persons New York Members of the Committee.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—The American Red Cross will aid destitute American refugees from Mexico, arriving at New York, San Francisco, New Orleans, and San Diego, to get transportation to their homes or friends. Secretary Bryan to-day named to aid that work in New York, Jacob H. Schiff and W. Frank Persons; at Galveston, Harry C. Archer and Rabbi Henry Cohen; at New Orleans, H. J. Thompson and John J. Gannon; at San Francisco, C. J. Connor and Allen Knight, and at San Diego, Mrs. G. H. Ballou and L. A. Blackman.

FOSS WILL RUN AGAIN.

To Seek Re-election for Bay State Governor as an Independent.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Aug. 25.—Gov. Foss to-day told Senator Dennis E. Halley and Representative John C. Sanborn, both Lawrence Democrats, that he would be an independent candidate for re-election.

The Governor summed up the political situation to them thus:

"Yes, it will be Foss, independent candiate for Governor, this year. The divided condition of the Republican Party, the dissatisfaction in Massachusetts against the national Democratic tariff policy, and the betrayal of the people to railroad interests by certain Democratic members of the Legislature last year, are the things which will bring about my election.

"I have always secured anything I went after in politics. Remember that, boys."

BRONX DEMOCRATS NAMED.

Progressives Have a Ticket, Too, Fusion Plan Collapsing.

The Democratic County Committee of the Bronx tried to arrange a fusion with the Progressives last night on its borough and county ticket, but they could not get together, and the Democrats had to nominate a straight ticket of their own. When the meeting was called to order at Niblo's Garden at 8:15 and the platform had been read an adjournment was taken for an hour in order that the Democratic leaders might confer with the Progressives, who were in session at Aurbach's Hall, McKinley Square. It was after 11 o'clock, however, when the meeting was again convened, and Arthur H. Murphy, the Chairman, told the delegates that the deal with the Progressives was off. This was the ticket agreed upon:

For County Judge—LOUIS O. VAN DOREN.
For Surrogate—GEORGE M. SCHULZ.
For Sheriff—JAMES F. O'BRIEN.
For County Clerk—JAMES VINCENT GANLEY.
For District Attorney—FRANCIS MARTIN.
For Register—EDWARD POLAK.
For Coroners—JEROME S. HEALY and Dr. WILLIAM COHN.

The committee could not agree upon a candidate for Borough President, and adjourned until 5 o'clock to-day. John M. Tierney was in the lead at the time of adjournment.

The Progressives had a rough meeting and several were thrown out of the hall. Coroner Jacob Shongut, a Progressive leader of the Bronx, was assailed as a traitor and a Tammany man by William O'Gorman, who ran unsuccessfully last year for State Senator. Shongut jumped up in anger, but was not recognized by Chairman Edward J. Ralidris. When the Sergeant-at-Arms attempted to put Shongut out, the Coroner's friends intervened. County Chairman Schwarzler's men jumped in and for a few minutes the hall was in an uproar, fist fights occurring all over the place. Order was finally restored and O'Gorman continued his attack upon Shongut.

"We are not going to make any deal with Tammany Hall," he shouted, "and Shongut wants to realize that. He may be able to handle the dead ones up here, but not the live ones."

Dr. Henry Moskowitz of the Fusion Committee of 107 made an address in which he asked the Progressives to support John Purroy Mitchel for Mayor. The committee then designated this ticket:

For Borough President—EDWARD RALDIRIS.
For County Judge—HENRY K. DAVIS.
For County Clerk—HENRY HUNNECKER, Jr.
For Surrogate—WILLIAM J. MILLARD.
For District Attorney—T. CHANNON PRESS.
For Register—OTTO HENSCHEL.
For Sheriff—CHARLES I. FLECK.
For Coroners—JOSEPH P. HENNESSY and GEORGE P. ZIPP.

Only Mr. Millard, Mr. Press and Mr. Fleck are on the Fusion ticket.

TAMMANY TO FILL ITS TICKET TO-NIGHT

At Least for Candidates for Supreme Court, Goldfogle Being the Latest.

McCALL WANTS WHITMAN

Won't Think of Any One Else for District Attorney — Moss Talked Of, Too.

Tammany leaders were at work all day yesterday on their county, borough, and judicial slates, which will be decided upon to-night at a meeting of the three designating committees at Terrace Garden. Charles F. Murphy and his lieutenants have been considering many names of candidates and slowly eliminating the undesirables. The process of elimination will be continued at the Fourteenth Street wigwam to-day.

The nomination for the two Supreme Court Justiceships, it was said, was between Bartow S. Weeks, Eugene A. Philbin, and George Gordon Battle. Representative Henry M. Goldfogle announced his candidacy for the Supreme Court yesterday. Mr. Philbin has already been nominated by the Fusionists. As for the District Attorneyship, the choice is still District Attorney Whitman, but Mr. Murphy is not sure that Mr. Whitman will accept. In the event that he refuses, his first assistant Frank Moss, may be asked to accept the nomination. This was suggested to Mr. Murphy by one of his advisers as a strategic move to head off criticism of the Police Department, Mr. Moss being a Republican and having prosecuted several of the gunmen cases.

"Is it true," Mr. Murphy was asked yesterday, "that the organization has decided either to indorse Whitman or leave the District Attorneyship blank on the ballot?"

"I haven't heard so," he replied. "There has been some talk of Whitman."

"Has there been any talk of any one else?"

"Oh, yes, there has been some talk of Moss. I mean Frank Moss, Assistant District Attorney, you know, and not Justice Joseph Moss of the Court of Special Sessions."

"Has there been any talk of George Gordon Battle," the Tammany Chief was asked.

"Oh, yes, some," he replied, as he hurried into the Hall.

Edward E. McCall, Tammany's candidate for Mayor, declared emphatically for Whitman yesterday. He said:

"I believe that Mr. Whitman will be nominated. In fact, I have urged his nomination on the Democratic ticket as strongly as I possibly can. Mr. Whitman is a splendid man and he has done splendid work. He should be continued in office to finish the work he has begun. He deserves re-election and I am convinced that all good citizens will vote for him."

Among the candidates that Tammany is considering for President of the Borough of Manhattan is John F. Galvin. Thomas E. Rush, leader of the Twenty-ninth District; Isaac Theis, and John Dietz are prominently mentioned for Sheriff, and John V. Coggey for County Clerk.

Acting upon the request of the Designating Committee of the Democratic Party for suggestions of men acceptable as candidates for Borough Presidents of Manhattan and the Bronx, the General Committee of the City Economy League last night sent in the names of Allan Robinson, Stuard Hirschmann, and Leopold Weil for Borough President of Manhattan and Patrick J. Revielle and A. B. Dienst for Borough President of the Bronx.

NAME LEVY FOR THE BENCH.

Leader in Sulzer Fight Selected by Tammany for Municipal Court.

Assemblyman Aaron J. Levy was designated for Justice of the Municipal Court, Second District, at a meeting held last night by the Democratic Municipal Court Judiciary Committee at 262 Grand Street. There was no opposition. Mr. Levy led the fight in the Assembly for the impeachment of Gov. Sulzer, and it was predicted that Charles F. Murphy would reward him with a nomination for the bench. The Republicans for the same district failed to agree upon a candidate and adjourned until to-night.

For Justice of the Municipal Court of the Fifth District the Democrats last night designated Josiah Stover, a lawyer, of 128 West Eighty-fifth Street. The Republicans for the same district designated Charles W. Coleman, a lawyer, of 250 West Eighty-eighth Street.

Mr. Coleman has been prominent for years in Republican politics in the Fifteenth Assembly District. For the same district the Progressives designated Sidney W. Stern, a lawyer, of 150 West Eightieth Street.

BROOKLYN DEMOCRATIC SLATE

Candidates for Borough and County Offices Selected Without Friction.

The Brooklyn Democrats designated their candidates for borough and county officers last night. This was the slate which was adopted without controversy:

For Coroners—ALEXANDER J. ROONEY and EDWARD T. GLINNEN.
For Borough President—FRANK MANN.
For Sheriff—ARTHUR S. SOMERS.
For Surrogate—HERBERT T. KETCHAM.
For County Judges—EDWARD A. RICHARDS and JESSE FULLER, Jr.
For Register—ANDREW J. CORSA.
For County Clerk—WALTER L. DURACK.

Surrogate Ketcham and the two Coroners were renominated. The nomination of Jesse Fuller, Jr., was the result of a deal between John H. McCooey, Democratic leader of Brooklyn, and Timothy L. Woodruff, the Progressive leader. Fuller is a Progressive, but the Democrats accepted him because the Progressives at their meeting last week nominated Herbert T. Ketcham, the present Democratic Surrogate.

The meeting was held in Saengerbund Hall, Smith and Schermerhorn Streets, and McCooey had it in the hollow of his hand. In the afternoon McCooey tried to have Sylvan Levy take the nomination for Sheriff, but when he refused the Brooklyn boss decided upon Mr. Somers. Frank Mann, the nominee for Borough President, is Deputy Tenement House Commissioner for Brooklyn and Queens. Edward A. Richards is a Municipal Court Judge.

Republican Committees in Brooklyn last night made designations for Assemblymen and Aldermen in cases where action was not taken on Friday. NO COMPROMISE, SAYS ROOSEVELT

He Tells Chicago Progressives the Republican Party "Must Adopt Our Principles."

HAS A CURE FOR LIVING COST

Fresh from the Snake Dance, He Says He Ate Lion Meat and Found It Splendid.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 25.—The Progressive Party is to continue. The slogan of "No compromise with the Republican Party" was sounded by Theodore Roosevelt at a luncheon in the Chicago Progressive Club at noon to-day.

This was the significant development of less than an hour and a half which the Colonel spent in Chicago. He was introduced to the audience—more than half of which was made up of women—by Alderman Charles E. Merriam as "The Big Bull Mooser Himself," and immediately launched into the subject dear to his heart. It was considered particularly pat in view of the recent trip to Chicago of Ormsby McHarg, once a confidant of Roosevelt, in an avowed effort to bring together the old time factions.

"I haven't much of a speech to make," said the Colonel, "but I want to tell through you to the gentlemen who seem to want to amalgamate with us that they can do so in the simplest manner by adopting our platform and all the principles therein set forth. There is much talk about getting together. These persons can get together with us perfectly by adopting our principles out and out, not by adopting them in part. When we say the people should rule we mean it.

"The Progressive Party not only stands for principles; it stands for concrete things in accordance with those principles. Above all, it avoids hypocrisy. It stands for the principle that, after due deliberation,. the people shall have a right to the laws they want.

"People say I object to judges. That is entirely false. I have the greatest reverence for judges. On the whole, I believe that the average judge is better than any other public servant. But I no more stand for the divine right of judges than I stand for the divine right of legislators or executives or kings."

Turning to woman suffrage the Colonel said:

"There would be no woman suffrage in Illinois to-day if it had not been for the work done by the Progressive Party last year. Never in the history of the country has a political party accomplished what the Progressive Party has in its brief history.

"In regard to woman suffrage I always insisted that woman's duty as a voter would not interfere with her domestic duties any more than it does with a man's business. There are some fool men who neglect their business for politics, and I suppose there will be some feminine fools of the same kind. God made woman fools to match the men. The average man and woman's duty is to their home. Politics comes second."

Col. Roosevelt tarried long enough to buy four new books, eat a hurried luncheon, and confer with his political allies at the Progressive Headquarters. He arrived at 11:10 A. M. on a Santa Fé train from Kansas City. He was accompanied by two of his sons, who had been with him roughing it on the deserts. They left Chicago for the East over the Pennsylvania Railroad at 12:30 P. M.

On the way from the station to the Progressive Club Col. Roosevelt told of his experiences in the Southwest.

"I finally saw Indians give their snake dance and enjoyed it very much," he said. "I can now qualify as an expert on Indians."

Before visiting the Indians he went on a two weeks' hunt for mountain lions. The Colonel and each of his sons killed a lion apiece.

"The meat was splendid," he said. "I believe one way of knocking the high cost of living down would be to introduce mountain lion meat into our markets."

CRUSADERS REACH YONKERS

Mayor Fails Suffragists, but They Hold Their Meeting Without Him.

Miss Harriet Porritt of Port Jervis and Mrs. Nora Blatch de Forest of New York, the two suffrage horseback crusaders of the Women's Political Union, arrived in Yonkers at 6:30 o'clock last evening after an uneventful canter from Nyack by way of Tarrytown.

Their mounts, according to local connoisseurs, were anything but militant, and looked barely able to finish the journey—Senator Root wore a hangdog look and seemed to be on his last legs, while not a swish was left in Dr. Parkhurst's weary tail as the crusaders pulled up at the Getty House and relieved the steeds of their suffragist burdens.

The crusaders then started right out to look for Mayor Lennon, in order to obtain a permit from him for a mass meeting in Getty Square. They looked for him at his home, but the Mayor was not there. He was finally found near Getty Square, but expressed his regret to the crusaders that he could not give them a permit because he did not happen to have the requisite form in his pocket at the time.

However, he promised to do the next best thing—to telephone to the Chief of Police and instruct him not to molest the suffragist meeting. Unfortunately, Mayor Lennon forgot all about it and went off to a Democratic political meeting. The Chief of Police never heard from him.

But the two suffragists were not to be cheated out of making a speech. They appealed to Public Safety Commissioner Fleming and obtained the desired permit. More than 1,000 persons heard the crusaders, but the collection, it was said, was a poor one.

The two crusaders were met on their arrival by the Misses Beatrice Brown and Rose Sanderson, who came from New York on foot. They will leave for New York at 8:30 o'clock this morning. They hope to be met at Caryl, at the city line, by an escort of mounted police whom they expect Commissioner Waldo to send up. They expect that a delegation of suffragists on horseback will meet them in Central Park. Then all will proceed to Madison Square, where a mass meeting will be held.

MRS. VELIE EVADES HEARING

Wealthy Alleged Smuggler Stays Out of Court to Avoid Cameras.

Mrs. William L. Velie, wife of the President of the Velie Motor Company of Moline, Ill., who arrived on the North German Lloyd liner Kaiser Wilhelm II. on Tuesday, was to have been arraigned before United States Commissioner Stanton in Hoboken yesterday afternoon, charged with attempting to smuggle into the United States jewelry and wearing apparel worth several thousand dollars, but when Mrs. Velie's case was called, she was not in court. Instead, her counsel, Henry Gennert, appeared before Commissioner Stanton and expressed a desire on the part of his client to waive examination. But Commissioner Stanton declined to continue the hearing in the case with Mrs. Velie absent, and ordered Mr. Gennert to bring his client into court at 2 o'clock to-day.

CITY BREVITIES.

Two fines of $50 each for locking factory doors in working hours were imposed yesterday in Special Sessions. Max Roch, Superintendent of Cohen, Goldman & Co., of 21 Waverley Place and Nathan Pilatsky of 71 Goerck Street were the offenders.

The bronze fountain in memory of Alfred L. Seligman planned by the National Highways Protective Association has been accepted by the Municipal Art League. The memorial will be erected in Morningside Park.

The cigarmakers' unions gave a reception yesterday to George W. Perkins, President of the Cigarmakers' International Union, who sails to-day for Zurich, where he will be a delegate to the International Labor Congress.

Helena Turczer, who fired across the street at Dr. Howard C. Taylor, as he was departing from his home on last Friday afternoon, was committed to the psychopathic ward at Bellevue Hospital yesterday for examination as to her sanity.

Police Capt. Appleby of Hempstead, L. I., will bring to the Bureau of Combustibles today the supposed bomb found on Sunday morning on the doorstep of the First National Bank of Mineola. It is said the percussion cap of the missile contains nitroglycerine.

BOY AND GIRL DEAD IN DRIFTING BOAT

Rockland School Friends Shot by Revolver Found Clutched in Youth's Hand.

HAD BEEN NO STRUGGLE

Carl Perry and Angelyn Spear, Who Expected to Marry, May Have Had Suicide Agreement.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCKLAND, Me., Aug. 25.—A motor boat drifting slowly seaward with the bodies of a youth and a girl, who had been shot to death, lying in the bow was the grim discovery made by a Vinal Haven fisherman named Dwyer to-day. The bodies in the boat were those of Carl W. Perry and Miss Angelyn Spear, both graduates of Rockland High School this year, and members of two of the city's most prominent families. No message was found in the boat or on the persons of the young couple to tell the cause of the tragedy, but the position of the bodies and entire absence of anything resembling a struggle left strong ground for the belief that the two deaths were the result of a suicide agreement.

The shooting was done with a .38-calibre revolver, which was found clutched in the right hand of young Perry. With the death craft in tow, Dwyer came to Rockland, where the Coroner and police began an immediate investigation.

When the couple left this port yesterday morning it was with the apparent intention of making a brief pleasure trip among the islands. That a landing was made, probably on one of the numerous islands in the bay, was indicated by the presence in the boat of a bag of fir tips such as are used in filling pillows. That their trip had been a friendly one thus far and that neither had thought of death was indicated by this simple incident. What form of reasoning led to the terrible outcome of the homeward trip is not likely to become known, as the tragedy was without witnesses and without motive, so far as is known. The young couple had been intimate friends throughout their school days, and it was generally understood that they were to be married this Fall.

Perry was a son of Mrs. Benjamin C. Perry and was about 19. He was especially prominent in high school athletics, having played on the football and baseball teams during his four-year course and having been Captain of both. He was coxswain's mate of the Rockland Naval Reserves, and made the recent cruise with the Portland and Rhode Island companies on the battleship Alabama. Miss Spear was the daughter of Mrs. Alice Spear and was also about 19. She was a member of the girls' basket ball team during her school course.

aid or abet Tammany Hall by opposing the men nominated by all other Fusion elements against Tammany Hall for these offices.

With all the sincerity and earnestness that I possess, I urge upon you the duty and desirability of nominating Mr. McAneny and Mr. Prendergast, respectively, for the offices of President of the Board of Aldermen and Controller of the City of New York. Yours very sincerely,

JOHN PURROY MITCHEL.

Mr. McAneny returned to the city yesterday, but he refused to say what he intended to do. It was not improbable, it was said last night, that unless Mr. Mitchel repudiated Mr. Hearst outright Mr. McAneny would withdraw from the Fusion ticket and allow his name to go on the Gaynor ticket, providing the Gaynorites indorse the rest of the Fusion ticket. Mr. McAneny, it was said, took the view that it is his duty to support the entire Fusion ticket, with the exception of Mr. Mitchel, if Mr. Mitchel countenanced what Hearst said of McAneny. SULZER'S ADVISERS SPLIT OVER POLICY

Herrick and Other Counsel Oppose Arnold-Garrison Plan to Indict Murphy.

TO BECLOUD IMPEACHMENT

Alleged Purpose of Anti-Tammany Campaign—Growing Belief That Sulzer Will Resign Before Trial.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Aug. 25.—Developments here to-day brought to the surface the fact that the eminent lawyers retained to defend William Sulzer before the High Court of Impeachment are working at cross purposes with Mr. Sulzer's lay advisers. Among the latter are ex-Judge Lynn J. Arnold, editor and publisher of a local newspaper; John A. Hennessy, principal political adviser to Mr. Sulzer, and James C. Garrison, the Sulzer press agent.

The statement of Judge Arnold in New York that Charles F. Murphy and other Tammany men could be convicted of a conspiracy to oust Gov. Sulzer from office, backed up by a similar statement here by Garrison, prompted ex-Judge D Cady Herrick, chief of the Sulzer counsel, to enter emphatic denial that Mr. Sulzer's legal advisers were harboring plans to indict Murphy or any other person.

"We are having nothing to do with any alleged criminal proceeding against Charles F. Murphy, Senator Frawley, Assemblyman Levy or any other person," Judge Herrick said, "and the Governor's counsel are not pursuing any investigation of a criminal character against any one and are in nowise party, directly or indirectly, to any proceedings of the kind indicated by statements from certain quarters and circulated through the press."

The statement from New York that the District Attorney there had not been asked to consider any charges against Murphy, Frawley or Levy followed a statement made here by District Attorney Rollin B. Sanford, before whom, Mr. Arnold had asserted, evidence to indict Murphy and others had been produced, disclaiming knowledge of any preliminaries to any such prosecution.

To Cloud the Issue.

The opinion prevails in some quarters at the Capitol that the anti-Murphy campaign is being waged with a view of diverting attention from the impeachment of the Governor. Mr. Sulzer, who holds frequent conferences with Mr. Garrison and Judge Arnold, to-day declined to comment on the Arnold and Garrison statements. The Garrison statement was manifolded at State expense in the Executive Chamber and was handed out there to the newspaper correspondents.

The vigorous disclaimer entered by ex-Judge Herrick was interpreted at the Capitol as indicating that he and the other lawyers retained for Mr. Sulzer's defense are not willing to become a party to any policy entered upon for the purpose of deterring the High Court of Impeachment from bringing Mr. Sulzer to trial. Judge Arnold, in the editorial columns of his newspaper, has raised all sorts of technical objections against the trial. His efforts, in the opinion of impartial persons at the Capitol, are directed toward keeping Martin H. Glynn out of rather than William Sulzer in the Governor's chair. Bitter business rivalry exists between Mr. Arnold and Acting Governor Glynn, who is the publisher of a rival newspaper, and this rivalry has led to more than one lawsuit now pending in the courts here.

Sulzer May Resign.

The impression is gaining ground here that Mr. Sulzer, after raising all possible obstacles, will retire rather than stand trial before a court in which the Senate, dominated by Tammany, would wield a decisive influence. From Mr. Sulzer and his counsel, however, nothing has come to encourage this belief. It is considered here that nothing would please the Tammany element in the Legislature more than to see Sulzer quit and thus prevent the necessity of a trial which might result in disclosures that would damage Tammany in the municipal campaign in New York City.

Surprise was expressed here when reports of the Assembly Judiciary Committee meeting in New York reached the Capitol and it was learned that Chairman Goldberg had announced that the process servers of that body had been unable to serve Mr. Garrison with a subpoena. Mr. Garrison is press agent and was very much in evidence at the Capitol to-day, as well as Saturday, and could have been served.

"I have been in Albany every day waiting for the subpoena," said Mr. Garrison to-day. "I am waiting for it still. I want it distinctly understood that I am not running away. If any one is running away it is Mr. Levy and his Judiciary Committee, composed of cigar store signs."

It was learned definitely to-day that Acting Gov. Glynn will make no effort to disturb Mr. Sulzer in his possession of the Executive Chamber and the privy seal of the State. Mr. Glynn has been advised by counsel that he would be empowered to order a privy seal of his own if so minded, but that if Mr. Sulzer should be dispossessed from the Executive Chamber he could obtain a court order to have the Executive suite restored to him. Mr. Sulzer is held to be still Governor, although barred from exercising the functions of his office as a result of the impeachment filed against him.

Mr. Glynn Is Cautious.

A friend of the Acting Governor went so far as to tell the correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES to-day that if the Executive Chamber were tendered to the Acting Governor the offer would be declined.

The chamber and the lobbies will be reserved for the impeachment tribunal, for newspaper correspondents already having the privilege of the floor in the Legislature, and for visiting newspaper men. Less than 150 will be accommodated altogether in the chamber under the present plans.

Special apartments will be set aside adjoining the Senate Chamber as robing rooms for the Judges, for the accommodation of counsel, and for the visiting newspaper correspondents from other States, of whom a great number are expected.

GLYNN TO SEND MESSAGE.

Will Urge Certain Appropriations Vetoed by Gov. Sulzer.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Aug. 25.—Recognition of Martin H. Glynn as Acting Governor will enable the Legislature to pass important appropriation bills when it reconvenes this week. At the close of the regular session Gov. Sulzer vetoed several important items in the Appropriation Supply bills, and unless relief is given by further legislation there will be no money to meet salaries of three Deputy State Conservation Commissioners, the Supervisor of Marine Fisheries, and other officials after Sept. 30, when the fiscal year expires.

The annual Appropriation bill sought to increase the salaries of these officials to $5,000 a year each, raising the present salary from $3,500 a year each. Gov. Sulzer said the salary list in the State Conservation department should be reduced rather than increased, and, as he could not cut off the increase, he vetoed the whole amount for these salaries.

Other important items stricken from the Supply bill by Gov. Sulzer included $250,000 for the payment of judgments rendered by the State Board of Claims and $300,000 to pay for the killing of diseased cattle and horses. Gov. Sulzer objected to the appropriation of this money in a lump sum.

Many letters have been received by Acting Gov. Glynn urging him to send a special message to the Legislature recommending the appropriation of $340,000 to compensate farmers under the law for the loss of cattle and horses slaughtered by the State Agricultural Department. To-day the Acting Governor announced that he would send a special message to the Legislature urging that the appropriation be made.

"I am informed," Mr. Glynn said this evening, "that there was practically no opposition in the Legislature to this appropriation. The claims are many months old, and there is no reasonable excuse, in my judgment, why there should be any longer delay. Article V. of the agricultural law provides for the condemnation and slaughter of glandered horses and tuberculous cattle wherever found. This provision of the law is mandatory. The farmers and others who have had their animals slaughtered by the State should be compensated.

"There is on file in the Department of Efficiency and Economy a tabulated statement showing that more than $340,000 is due the owners of cattle and horses slaughtered in compliance with this law. Not a day passes but letters come to my desk, often pathetic, from farmers, asking when the State will pay for the cows taken months ago. The writers state that they need the money due to pay notes with which they purchased animals to replace the cows slaughtered by the State. Some of these letters are from women striving to make a living from the farm. There are a thousand of these cow claims alone, I am informed. Many date back to March and April, 1912."

Mr. Sulzer went to his office in the Capitol as usual to-day, but did not appear in the large room until afternoon, when he conferred with some of his friends. He received a delegation from the German-American Alliance of Schenectady, and listened to a short address by John Diehl, its President, who presented a resolution of confidence in him recently adopted by the organization. Mr. Sulzer shook hands with each member of the delegation, and thanked the alliance for its expression of confidence.

Acting Gov. Glynn was at his office in the Capitol only a short time to-day. He received a delegation of Germans of Albany, and confined his official work to the issuing of extradiction papers.

Mr. Sulzer to-night made public correspondence with Gov. Woodbridge M. Ferris of Michigan in relation to the American Road Congress to be held in Detroit from Sept. 29 to Oct. 4. Gov. Ferris's letter was dated Aug. 19, the day following the impeachment of Gov. Sulzer. It requested the appointment of an official delegation to represent New York State. A large delegation was named a few days ago by Mr. Sulzer.

ARNOLD PILLORIES MURPHY.

Alleges Anti-Sulzer Conspiracy, Demands Inquiry and Indictment.

The Assembly Judiciary Committee, which has undertaken to investigate the charge that money was used to induce four Assemblymen to vote for the impeachment of Gov. Sulzer, met yesterday in the Council Chamber at the City Hall, but adjourned indefinitely without examining any witnesses. Mark Goldberg, the Chairman, announced that no progress could be made in the absence of James C. Garrison, a Sulzer press agent, who is alleged to have made the vote buying charge, and the subpoena servers had reported that they were unable to find Garrison.

Lynn J. Arnold, editor of the Albany Knickerbocker Press and one of Mr. Sulzer's advisers, had been subpoenaed and was on hand, but it was held that his testimony would be of no value until Mr. Garrison had been questioned. Mr. Arnold came prepared to read to the committee a statement declaring Charles F. Murphy guilty of a felony and liable to imprisonment in State's prison, and in this statement he gave out for publication.

Judge Arnold asserted that the impeachment of the Governor was due to a conspiracy, and he suggested that Murphy, Martin H. Glynn, Edward E. McCall, Tammany's candidate for Mayor; Norman E. Mack, Justice Victor J. Dowling, and others be subpoenaed by the Judiciary Committee to tell what they knew about it. Judge Arnold said that the part which Mr. Glynn had played in the alleged conspiracy particularly should be investigated, with a view of bringing impeachment proceedings against him. Murphy, he said, stood convicted at the bar of public opinion, and he called upon the District Attorney to take action.

In his statement Judge Arnold said in part:

It is the duty of the Judiciary Committee of the Assembly to subpoena before it Charles F. Murphy, Edward E. McCall, Norman E. Mack, William H. Fitzpatrick, Martin H. Glynn, Patrick E. McCabe, John H. McCooey, Victor J. Dowling, Robert F. Wagner, James A. Frawley, James A. Foley, Alfred E. Smith, Aaron J. Levy, Thomas Carmody, and all of the officials and laymen whose names are being mentioned in the daily press of the United States, to the end that all of these gentlemen may be able to tell the truth concerning the charges made against them.

As honest men the Judiciary Committee of the Assembly can pursue no other course. They must probe all these matters to the bottom; they must give the public the truth concerning the issues involved. If the committee does this its individual members may be forgiven, in time, for the hasty action which they took as individuals on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, Aug. 11, 12, and 13, in the year 1913.

It is the duty of the Judiciary Committee of the Assembly to investigate all charges made against Charles F. Murphy and each one of his superiors and inferiors. It is its further duty to investigate the conspiracy which was hatched in May at Delmonico's in the suite of Mr. Murphy to grab complete control of the Government of the State of New York, to oust its constitutional Governor, in violation of the expressed provisions of the Constitution of the State of New York and in violation of the laws of the land.

It is especially the duty of the committee to investigate the part which Martin H. Glynn took in the conception of this conspiracy and is taking in the execution of it. It is proper that the committee should fully investigate the facts in this part of the case and report these facts to the Assembly for the purpose of having before the Assembly of 1914 the acts of the Lieutenant Governor. If the facts prove that the Lieutenant Governor has been guilty of wrongful and unlawful acts in the discharge of his duties, of course it will be the duty of the Assembly of 1914 to prefer charges against him, to file articles of impeachment with the Senate of 1914, to the end that a Court of Impeachment may render its verdict in the premises.

The Knickerbocker Press emphatically calls the attention of District Attorney Charles S. Whitman of the County of New York to the fact that the majority in the Assembly passed a resolution of impeachment pursuant to the orders of Charles F. Murphy. The acts of Charles F. Murphy in the premises make him guilty of a felony and liable to imprisonment in a State prison for a term of not less than five years nor more than ten years.

Simon Wasservogel, Acting District Attorney of New York County, said last night that no charges against Charles F. Murphy had been called officially to his attention.

FRIAS WANTS PLOT BARED.

Says Congress Should Investigate, Not Sulzer, but Alleged Conspirators

Jose Antonio Frias, a former Cuban Senator, who at one time was associated with Hugh J. Reilly in the contracting business in Cuba, but who fell out with him over money matters—the "Tony" of the Sulzer letters recently printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES—gave out a statement yesterday in which he urged that if the Cienfuegos water works contract were made a subject of Congressional investigation, the inquiry should be directed not against William Sulzer, but against those alleged to have misled the State Department in the matter.

After defending President Cabrera of Guatemala and ex-Gov. A. E. Spriggs of Montana, who, with Mr. Frias, is interested in certain business activities in Guatemala, Senator Frias says in part:

If in the advancement of his country's interests and in the promotion of his able policies for the betterment not only of his own country, but of all Central America, President Cabrera was able to command the services of an American legislator it seems to me that he should not be censured for so doing.

I wish to make it plainly understood that by no means am I interested in American politics, although the name of William Sulzer has been brought out at the present time by the press in connection with the conspiracy through which the Latin American Contracting and Improvement Company has been defrauded of over half a million dollars. Whatever may show the connections of Mr. Sulzer with that conspiracy has nothing to do with the impeachment proceedings now pending against him.

While I was deeply engaged representing American capital in Central America the State Department was led, under false assertions, to unjustly force the Cuban Government to pay over to the partnership of Donovan & Phillips and to Hugh J. Reilly certain sums that had belonged to me and that had been assigned to the Latin American Contracting and Improvement Company, a New York corporation.

To obtain the aid of the State Department, false claims were filed. As a part of the conspiracy I was accused in New York and before the State Department of having forged the signature of Hugh J. Reilly to the public instrument by which he had assigned to me the amount owed by the Cuban Government. Mr. Reilly and his accomplices knew that while they were accusing me of forgery in the United States it never would be possible to bring the matter to a trial.

I informed those before whom I had been falsely accused that I was in New York and would be willing at any time to answer the false charges made against me. Fortunately, the Latin-American Contracting and Improvement Company was able to produce a duplicate original of the instrument also bearing the signature of Hugh J. Reilly which Reilly thought would never be seen in the United States.

William Sulzer, who, knowing my record and having always stated that there was no more honorable man in the world than myself, went to the State Department, and, while Mr. Sulzer was Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, the blunt charge was made that I had forged the signature of Reilly to the instrument which Mr. Sulzer had never seen, and notwithstanding he had complete knowledge of my partnership with Reilly and my rights to the amounts claimed from the Cuban Government and on more than one occasion had acted under my orders to protect in Washington the interest I had in the partnership with Reilly. It is unfortunate for Mr. Sulzer that this disclosure should have come at the time that he is under impeachment as Governor of New York.

The public press has lately stated that a Congressional investigation is to be asked. I don't know if that will be done. In my opinion, if such action is taken it should not be to inquire into the activities of Gov. Sulzer, but should be directed to the exposing of those who misled the State Department, and to the repairing in whatever manner it may be possible the injustice done to the Cuban Republic.

Senator Frias's statement was given out at the office of his counsel, Smith, Gormly & Saloman, in Cedar Street.

DUNNE RECOGNIZES GLYNN.

Requisition for Eugene Grant Honored by Illinois Governor.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 25.—The requisition of Acting Gov. Martin H. Glynn of New York for the return to New York City of Eugene Grant, alias "Dicebox" McGuire, wanted on the charge of grand larceny, was honored by Gov. Dunne this morning. Attorney General Lucey held that in the absence of evidence that Glynn was not Acting Governor by right, the requisition should be honored because it bore the Great Seal of the State of New York.

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 25.—Lieut. Gov. Lyman T. Tingier, who is Acting Governor during the absence in the West of Gov. Baldwin, to-day issued a requisition on the Governor of New York for Fred Pannone, alias Baker, wanted in New Haven for robbery. The man is under arrest in New York City. The name of the Governor of New York does not appear in the papers, the wording simply being "the Governor."

DRAG BOY FROM A CAR.

Crowd Fights to Save Lad from Interborough Employes.

Irving Kaiser, 15 years old, of 71 East 115th Street, started a fight at Forty-second Street and Madison Avenue last evening, and blocked northbound traffic for ten minutes when he refused to get off a northbound Madison Avenue car, after presenting a transfer which the conductor said was not good. The boy fought the car crew, an Inspector, a starter, and two policemen. He was arrested finally on a charge of juvenile delinquency and was taken to the East Fifty-first Street Station.

Kaiser had been on an errand in Sixth Avenue, near Twentieth Street, and had taken a crosstown Twenty-third Street car to Madison Avenue. He obtained a transfer to the Madison Avenue line. The conductor on the Madison Avenue car refused the transfer because it had been punched at 5 o'clock, and it was then nearly 6. The boy declined to pay a cash fare, and resisted when the conductor attempted to eject him. A crowd gathered around the car, and men and women took sides with the lad.

Traffic Policeman Caulfield and Patrolman Wheelan forced their way through the crowd, which had by then blocked Madison Avenue, and they got to the boy's side as a woman drew a pin from her hat and tried to stab an Inspector for the railroad company. The policemen drove the crowd back, and after a struggle took the boy to the station, where an Inspector made a complaint.

Munroe Hess of 738 Broad Street, Newark, N. J., and J. L. Thanley of 152 Bay Street, Toronto, Canada, were at the station with young Kaiser, whose right cheek was cut. They said he had been treated outrageously. They asserted that the transfer he offered was a good one, and that they would appear in court on his behalf.

TARIFF VOTE NEXT WEEK.

Senators Hopeful of This Progress —Free List Passed.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—Ratification of the free list in the Tariff bill, with a few commodities reserved for later consideration; agreement by Democrats of the Finance Committee to consider an amendment by Senator Kenyon which would automatically transfer trust controlled articles to the free list; discussion of free print paper and the paper schedule, and a lively debate on Southern and New England cotton mills enlivened the tariff debate in the Senate to-day.

So rapid was the progress made with the free list that Democratic leaders were led to predict an early passage of the bill, some insisting it would be ready for a vote by the middle of next week.

Free raw wool was among the proposals in the free list approved by the Senate in Committee of the Whole, but this will come up again on substitutes offered in the Senate proper, where Republican Senators will demand roll calls on the substitutes. The Finance Committee amendment providing that free wool should not become operative until Dec. 1, 1913, also was agreed to.

Free meat, cattle, sheep, swine and wheat were passed over at the request of Senator McCumber of North Dakota.

DYING AFTER A BEATING.

Son of Noted Song Writer Attacked by Truck Drivers.

Howard H. Graham, son of the late Charles Graham, whose song, "Two Little Girls in Blue", was once very popular, lies seriously injured in the Hudson Street Hospital, where his chances of recovery are slight. The surgeons in charge of his case believe that his back is broken, although of this they are not sure.

Young Graham, who was a good boxer and swimmer, was found unconscious on Pier 19, East River, on Thursday afternoon. His work as a truckman kept him in that vicinity, and it is believed that he was beaten by a gang of truck drivers whose hostility he had won in some way, although of this there can be no certainty, as the injured man has been unable to speak since he was taken to the hospital. His home is at 113 East 130th Street.

WILSON STANDS FIRM ON CURRENCY BILL

Provision for Reserve Banks Won't Be Modified to Meet Bankers' Views.

McADOO MADE NO PROMISE

Doubts If Reynolds Said He Did—Agricultural Paper Put on Same Basis as Commercial.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—Both at the White House and the Treasury Department the interpretation placed on the speech delivered before the Bankers' Conference in Chicago by George B. Reynolds, President of the Continental and Commercial National Bank of that city, that Secretary McAdoo had told him that modifications desired in the Glass-Owen Banking and Currency bill would be accepted by the Administration, was discredited to-day. Officials who are known to reflect the President's opinion said emphatically that the provision for twelve regional reserve banks would not be modified to meet the bankers' views that there should be only one or at most five of these institutions. They added that any effort to lessen absolute Government control over the proposed currency system would not be tolerated by the Administration.

Secretary McAdoo has been out of town, and did not realize until he returned to his desk at the Treasury Department to-day the importance which had been attached to Mr. Reynolds's quoted remarks. Mr. McAdoo was reluctant to make any statement on the subject, as he took the ground that it was a mere inference that Mr. Reynolds had said he (Mr. McAdoo) had promised to give favorable consideration to the modifications in the bill which the bankers wanted. After some hesitation, however, Mr. McAdoo dictated this:

> My attention has been called to the following statement attributed to Mr. Reynolds:
>
> "I spent yesterday with Secretary McAdoo in New York and we talked about the bill and our objections to it, and he assured me that the Administration desired to do all in its power in remedying the defects of which we have complained."
>
> I do not believe Mr. Reynolds made this statement. What I said to him at our conference in New York was that any constructive suggestions or criticisms submitted by the bankers with reference to currency legislation would, I was sure, be carefully considered by the committee of Congress and the President, if submitted to them. Any statement or inference that I have made any promise of any sort to bankers or any one else with respect to currency legislation is unfounded.

The opinion prevailing in Administration circles, according to the best authority, credits the bankers merely with the expectation that in contending for many material changes in the Currency bill they sought chiefly to bring about a reduction in the amount of reserve required. In the bill the big banks are required to keep a reserve of 20 per cent., and country banks 15 per cent. The bankers want these reserves reduced to 18 and 12 per cent. respectively.

It was said by officials that they believed the bankers had little expectation of obtaining any other concession. The other recommendations were looked upon by these officials as mere expressions of desire, without the hope that they would be accepted. This conclusion, it was said, had been drawn from the expressions of many bankers in conversation with officials and Congressmen and in letters to them.

One opinion voiced by high officials understood to reflect the White House view was that the object of the Chicago conference was to intimidate less important bankers into opposition to the Currency bill.

The President, it was said, did not care for assistance from the banking community in perfecting the currency measure if it was in the form of antagonism to its essential features. The President was represented also as believing that the recommendations adopted at Chicago did not embody the views of bankers generally, and that they would be opposed by most of the banking world. As for the President's own view, it was made plain that he would not accept the Chicago suggestions.

A. Barton Hepburn, Chairman of the Currency Commission of the American Bankers' Association, was at his desk in the Chase National Bank yesterday after presiding for two days at the meeting of national and State bank officers in Chicago to discuss the Owen-Glass bill. Mr. Hepburn said that he did not attach much weight to the Washington report that a number of telegrams had been received by the Administration officials in Washington advising them to pay no attention to the recommendations of the bankers. According to Washington reports, this open mutiny had broken out among the bankers who attended the Chicago session, resulting in messages from some of them hoping to thwart the work of the convention.

"Every amendment and every suggestion was open to the fullest discussion," said Mr. Hepburn. "The recommendations were all carried by substantial majorities. Afterward, on the motion of Festus J. Wade of St. Louis, the recommendations were all adopted by unanimous vote.

"Inasmuch as there was not a single dissenting vote among all the bankers present I am not inclined to credit the story of a mutiny."

NO PAPER DISCRIMINATION.

Caucus Puts Agricultural Notes on Same Basis as Commercial.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—One of the big controversial issues in the Administration Currency bill, centring around the admission of agricultural paper for discount by banks, was settled by the House Democrats' caucus this afternoon. The amendment adopted was agreed to by both the insurgent contingent and the Banking and Currency Committee, and satisfied Representative Henry of Texas and his followers, who sought to have recognized, as a basis for credit and currency, the commercial paper of farmers based on corn, cotton, and wheat.

The caucus disposed of the rediscounts section of the Currency bill by unanimously adopting an amendment providing in effect that paper was not to be discriminated against, for purposes of discount, merely because the security of personal indorsements of that paper happened to be supplemented by the collateral of a warehouse receipt.

This modification was offered by Representatives Kitchin of North Carolina and Harrison of Mississippi, with the approval of Mr. Glass and Mr. Underwood, in pursuance of the agreement reached last week, at Mr. Underwood's suggestion, that the language of the paragraph be modified so as to make clear the intention its authors said they had in preparing the bill.

The modification does not discriminate in favor of or against any particular products, and under it the New England shoe manufacturer or clothmaker can present paper based on his products for rediscount purposes, just as can the grower of corn, wheat, and cotton. In the last analysis the amendment leaves to the discretion of the Federal Reserve Board the right to define the character of the agricultural, industrial, or commercial paper offered for rediscount.

The amendment makes the second paragraph of the rediscount section (14) of the bill read:

> Upon the indorsement of any member bank any Federal reserve bank may discount notes and bills of exchange arising out of commercial transactions; that is, notes and bills of exchange issued or drawn for agricultural, industrial, or commercial purposes, or the proceeds of which have been used or may be used for such purposes, the Federal Reserve Board to have the right to determine or define the character of the paper thus eligible for discount within the meaning of this act; but such definition shall not include notes or bills issued or drawn for the purpose of carrying o rtrading in stocks, bonds, or other investment securities, nor shall anything herein contained be construed to prohibit such notes and bills of exchange, secured by staple agricultural products or other goods, wares, or merchandise, from being eligible for such discount. Notes and bills admitted to discount under the terms of this paragraph must have a maturity of not more than ninety days.

The only difference between this substitute and the paragraph as it stood in the bill is in the substitution of the word "investment" before the word "securities," and the insertion, after the word "securities" of the words "nor shall anything herein contained be construed to prohibit such notes and bills of exchange, secured by staple agricultural products, or other goods, wares or merchandise, from being eligible for such discount."

Neither the original Ragsdale amendment nor the Henry "cotton, corn and wheat" idea was offered.

Both Were Satisfied.

After the caucus adjourned the Henry-Ragsdale forces contended that they had won a victory, while the currency bill supporters on their part were jubilant and proclaimed the defeat of the radicals.

When the caucus adjourned 25 of the 51 pages of the bill had been adopted. Open market operations will be the next secuon of the bill taken up to-morrow. Section 12, relating to the powers proposed to be given to the Federal Reserve Board, was adopted in its entirety to-day without a single change.

Representatives Ragsdale of South Carolina and Oglesby of New York moved to strike out of this section the sub-paragraph (B) which proposes to vest the Federal Reserve Board with power to permit, or, in time of emergency, require Federal reserve banks to rediscount the discounted prime paper of other Federal reserve banks. Their motion was defeated.

Representative Calloway of Texas made a motion, which was defeated, to strike from the same section the subsection (D) which gives the Federal Reserve Board power to regulate the issue and retirement of Federal reserve notes, and to prescribe the form and tenor of such notes.

Representative "Alfalfa Bill" Murray of Oklahoma offered a motion, which was defeated by a vote of 97 to 6, to vest the Federal Reserve Board with the power "to provide rules, governing the guarantee of all deposits, not inconsistent with the terms of this act."

Representative Barkley of Kentucky moved to strike out all of section 15, providing that the new Federal Advisory Council consist of as many members as there were Federal reserve districts. His motion failed.

The caucus adopted an amendment, offered by Mr. Baker of California, requiring each Federal reserve bank to elect its member of the Federal Advisory Council "from its own reserve district."

Representative Bathrick of Ohio moved to amend so as to require that these members of the Advisory Council should be either merchants or manufacturers "who shall fairly represent the commercial interests" of their districts, but this proposal was defeated.

Representative Wingo of Arkansas moved to insert into the rediscount section a provision to the effect "that no bills or notes drawn for the purpose of dealing in futures or trading on margins in staple products shall be eligible to discount." This amendment was rejected.

Another amendment defeated was offered by Representative Gray of Indiana, and sought to provide that the Federal reserve districts should be divided into four geographical divisions of the country, one division of three Federal reserve districts each for the North, South, East and West."

LEFT LITTLE BOY TO DIE.

His Companions Feared to Tell That He Had Been Buried by Sand.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 25.—Three young boys playing after dinner this evening in the vacant lot back of 600 River Street found their greatest fun in sliding down the sandy sides of a hole that had been excavated there. As dark came on they were still at this play, when, suddenly, the whole side of the excavation gave way and buried them in the sand.

Two of the boys were caught so near the surface that they were able to scramble out much frightened but unhurt. They shook the sand from their clothing to remove all traces of what had happened to them, and then, thoroughly scared, they ran to their homes without saying a word to any one of the third little fellow left buried in the sand.

Some two hours later, as he was being put to bed, one of the two blurted out the whole story to his mother. She lost no time in notifying the police, and they hurried to the lot and by electric light dug their way into the sand pile. A crowd encircled the excavation by the time the diggers got to the bottom of the pile and found the buried boy. But the word had arrived too late. He was dead. The smothered boy was James Mitchell, son of Joseph Mitchell, who lives at 29 May Street.

JOHNSON UPSETS LONDON MUSIC HALL

His Engagement Postponed, He Appears in a Box and Tries to Make a Speech.

CHEERED AND ALSO HISSED

Performers Who Protested Against Him Forced to Leave Stage—Queensberry Defends Him.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—Jack Johnson's vaudeville appearance in London has been postponed. Representatives of the syndicate responsible for his engagement interviewed him this morning and explained the position, and afterward issued a statement to the effect that Johnson concurred in their view that for the present his appearance was inadvisable and requested a postponement of his engagement.

Johnson in a statement said:

"My appearance in London music halls has been postponed for a few days, in order that I may test the feeling of the public toward me. Some newspapers say the London public does not like me or want me. If this is so, I shall bow gracefully to its decision, but, as I do not believe any such antipathy exists, I am going to appear at as many public places as possible, with a view to discovering whether these papers are right or whether I am right.

"If there is no popular feeling against me, I shall insist on all my engagements being fulfilled. I may produce a little sketch to exhibit the Mann act, under which I was wrongfully accused."

To-day's decision does not at present affect Johnson's provincial and Scotch and Irish engagements.

Johnson appeared in a box at the Euston Music Hall to-night, and was received with cheers and some hisses. Two women artists, who had declined to give their acts if Johnson appeared on the stage, were forced to withdraw. Johnson afterward occupied a box at the South London Music Hall. He was greeted with cheers and some cries of protest from the gallery.

The first display of feeling at the Euston Music Hall occurred when Maisie Scott appeared on the stage. She was greeted with a chorus of catcalls and obscene cries from the pit and gallery. She endeavored to begin a song, but the shouts increased in volume and vigor, until at length she was compelled to retire.

A similar reception awaited Beth Tate, who had also objected to Johnson's appearance. During a lull in the storm of hooting and "booing" she tried to address the rowdies. She had no objection to Johnson because of his color, she began, but the pit and gallery would not hear her and she had to leave the stage.

It was noticeable that the persons in the higher-priced seats took no part in the outbursts. Quiet was restored and the programme was continued.

Then, while cinematograph pictures were being shown, Johnson took a place in one of the stage boxes. As soon as the lights were turned on he advanced to the front of the box. This was a signal for great cheering from the pit and gallery and for the beginning of a counter-demonstration by young men occupying the opposite stage box. A number of the audience walked out.

As the cheering died away Johnson tried to speak, but the young men in the opposite box effectually shouted him down. Again he tried and again failed, while renewed cheering came from the pit and gallery.

The management interfered, but the occupants of the box insisted on their right to protest, and finally Johnson was compelled to leave the theatre without delivering a speech.

The Marquis of Queensberry, in an article in The Daily Express, defends Johnson. He says the real point at issue is whether a white man and a black man should meet in the ring. Lord Queensberry is emphatically against such exhibitions, but maintains that until a rule barring whites and blacks from fighting be passed Johnson is entitled to all the honors he won. Lord Queensberry adds:

"Naturally every young man would like to see the world's greatest fighter, and here again I cannot see where Johnson would have been to blame in accepting the highly remunerative offer he received to appear at music halls. If there is any blame, it rests entirely with those people who made him this offer for their own pecuniary benefit.

"As regards Johnson's domestic affairs, again we get back to exactly where we started, the problem of black and white. Why is not a law passed in all civilized countries forbidding these marriages? Until this is done what reason was there that Johnson should not marry Belle Schriber? Perhaps if the truth were known it is in all the circumstances the most decent thing he has ever done.

"We pride ourselves in this country on fair play. Give the man fair play and take on yourselves, you, the great public, the lawmakers, the blame for the present state of affairs."

In conclusion Lord Queensberry says:

"Give the devil his due. Johnson is not the principal sinner. It is the people who with both hands have held the cup to his mouth—the cup which bore wine which begets vanity, greed, and passion—and who now howl because he is drunk with the wine they themselves concoted for him and gave him."

RESIGNS PHILIPPINES POST.

Forbes's Friends Resent Abruptness in Naming His Successor.

MANILA, Aug. 25.—W. Cameron Forbes, Governor General of the Philippines since November, 1909, to-day sent his resignation to Washington. It is effective Sept. 1, just a week from to-day, when Mr. Forbes will leave the Islands for the United States.

It was only yesterday, Mr. Forbes says, that he was apprised of the appointment of Francis Burton Harrison of New York, as the new Governor. His friends feel strongly that he deserved more courteous treatment after so long a service.

The retiring Governor General himself publishes in forceful terms a reply to attacks by Representative Jones of Virginia, who, in pressing for the passage of a bill giving "independence" to the Philippines, urged the removal of Governor General Forbes. The retiring head of the insular Government answers Representative Jones's statement point by point and says that the Virginian Representative cannot persuade Americans, who lead the world in industrial enterprises, that they are incompetent to manage a Governmental enterprise and that he cannot advance his case "by unpatriotic and unwarranted assaults upon the good names of the country's representatives."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—Whatever is done by the United States with respect to the Philippine Islands is to be gauged by the best interests of the people of the archipelago and not by what might be construed as the selfish purposes of the American Government.

That is the view President Wilson and Francis Burton Harrison, the newly appointed Governor General, take of the question of Filipino independence, according to a statement given out to-day at the White House.

The President believes that the United States, in the profoundest sense, is the trustee of the Philippines, and to carry out its trusteeship wisely is the keynote of policy of his Administration.

It was indicated at the White House that while no proposal for immediate independence was being now considered, a policy of active preparation for granting it within a few years will be pursued by the Government.

BOY SHOOTS DOWN MOTHER'S ANNOYER

15-Year-Old, Returning Home from Work, Sees Man Striking Her in the Face.

PUTS FOUR SHOTS IN HIM

Bought Revolver, Lad Tells the Police, Because of Driver's Unwelcome Attentions.

The sound of four pistol shots fired in swift succession caught the ear of Patrolman Ziman early last evening as he was passing the house at 730 Second Avenue. Three steps at a time he ran up to the third floor and pushed his way into the flat where Mrs. Sarah Perry lives with her fifteen-year-old son, Joseph. Leaning against the wall with her face buried in her arms was Mrs. Perry, weeping hysterically. Lying face down on the floor and mortally wounded was Thomas Murphy, a big driver, who had the flat across the hall. Standing beside him was Mrs. Perry's son, his face white as he looked down at the man he had shot. He made no attempt to hide the pistol he had thrust into his pocket and no attempt to deny that he had done the shooting.

"I just had to shoot him," he said to the policeman as he pointed toward his mother.

Then, as an ambulance carried the wounded man to Bellevue Hospital, he told his story to the police.

"I quit work at the veterinary's over in East Twenty-eighth Street a little after 6," he said, "and I started right home, because father is dead and I'm the only one. Mother, she's alone most of the day. That is what was the trouble—this man Murphy. She had told me a couple of times how he was bothering her and saying things to her, and that's how I happened to have a gun—that's why I bought it. It was in my pocket as I came in this evening and I was coming up the stairs when I heard mother scream.

"Well, I ran up fast as I could go, and there he was and mother trying to get out of his arms. She saw me coming and called for help, but he kept right on trying to drag her out into the hall and across to his flat. And I saw him hit her twice right in the face. That's when I took out my gun. When he hit her that second time I started shooting. I fired four times and he dropped. I couldn't stop him any other way."

All of the boy's shots had hit their mark. Two struck the driver in the arm, two penetrated his side. The surgeons at Bellevue Hospital said there was no hope for him and sent for the Coroner to make an ante-mortem statement.

Young Perry was locked up as a juvenile delinquent. The patrolman who arrested him went back to the house to sound the other tenants, and from one of them, Mrs. Margaret Rodgers, obtained corroboration of his story. She said everything he had told had been the truth.

PALACE ELECTRICIANS OUT.

London Strike Also Affects Post Office, Museums, and Tower.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—A strike of house painters and decorators in London for increased wages, which was followed by the employment of non-unionist painters at the Admiralty, has brought about a strike of electricians under the control of the Office of Public Works in protest against the employment of "blacklegs."

Among the electricians involved are those employed in Buckingham and St. James's Palaces, the Colonial and Foreign Offices, the Tower of London, the museums, and the General Post Office.

Concert at the Hotel Nassau.

Florence Austin, an American violinist, who received the prize of the Liege Royal Conservatory, and Mme. Marie Lecea Bracken, contralto, will be the soloists at a symphony concert to be given under the patronage of residents of Long Beach at the Hotel Nassau on Thursday evening. The orchestral numbers will be played by a symphony orchestra under the direction of Henry Liff. A ball follows the concert.

that all would be "straight sailing" once that Thaw was out of Canada.

As for Thaw, he spent the day in his cell-room in the hospital ward, feverishly working out further details of his publicity campaign. The idea seems to have taken full possession of him. He asked the newspaper men more questions about Vermont, thus indicating that his mind was working on the reports that he would be deported there.

In an attempt to keep him from making any unwise statement, his lawyers sought out Sheriff Aylmer and demanded that he issue no more permits for admission to the jail, and that any one who wished to see Thaw be referred to them. One of the lawyers wanted to be present at such interviews. Regardless of this action, Thaw indignantly demanded that he be allowed to handle his press matters as he saw fit, and he would not be overruled. The correspondents found him at work on a formal statement, in which he said he would not object to going to Vermont if he were not anxious to go to his home in Pennsylvania. He wanted to be sure that the statement would reach the most influential Vermont papers.

Thaw's Statement.

It follows:

The one reason I don't want to go to Vermont is that I wish to return home. In Vermont we know there are good Americans who will not on any account, and because of uprightness, permit any trickery to be used against any

THE GORHAM CO.

Stationery Department

It is in the details of social life that we find the degee of taste and cultivation of the individual accurately reflected.

That's why the selection of our stationery is a matter of so much more personal concern to us than the selection of a suit of clothes, a hat, or a necktie. We can afford to wear a necktie that doesn't match, but in the matter of our personal stationery we cannot take any liberties with good state.

Our stationery is our social proxy, the personal ambassador which represents us on both intimate and formal occasions. Naturally we want it to be pleasing, tasteful and creditable.

In the matter of perfect stationery, Gorham's is authoritative. Just as it enjoys leadership in silverware and goldware, so does it enjoy leadership in this field also. Gorham stationery bears the stamp of the highest social approval and sanction.

The Company, a number of years ago, added stationery and engraving to its activities because its customers wanted stationery of the same high quality as their silver. So, now, whether it's a visiting card, a wedding or dance invitation, an at home announcement, personal stationery or a hand-illuminated dinner menu, The Gorham Company fixes the standard of quality.

All of the Gorham work is done on the premises, including the designing, engraving, copper-plate printing, stamping, the illuminating of monograms, the engrossing of resolutions or memorials. This means a big saving in time, and results in the prompt delivery of your order. Gorham's is one of the few firms in the city that do not send their work out for execution.

Another thing, in all social invitations, announcements and on personal cards you may be sure you will get (if you fancy it) the latest vogue in letter engraving.

Just now the shaded Spanish script is the new letter most favored for these invitations, although shaded old English, Colonial, shaded French script, black French script and shaded Roman are preferred by many. You can take your pick—the Gorham repertoire is complete.

Such invitations are a Gorham specialty. The Gorham experts take a pride in the beauty, accuracy and promptness with which they are executed.

In the matter of personal stationery, the field of selection is wide enough to gratify every taste. The papers include all the good domestic productions and special selections from the foreign mills. For example, there are several fine handmade, deckle-edged papers. With illuminated monograms this paper is most attractive.

Of course, what I have mentioned here only suggests the scope of the Gorham stationery and engraving plant. Great numbers of the large public banquets and private dinners given in the city have specially designed and illuminated menus from the Gorham ateliers. Then, the work done by Gorham's in engrossing and illuminating resolutions and testimonials is very large.

Needless to say, all of this work represents the finest of Gorham quality and workmanship, and at very reasonable prices.

FLIES 495 MILES IN HYDROAEROPLANE

Hawker Well on Way in Attempt to Fly Around England and Scotland

FOR A PRIZE OF $25,000

1,600 Miles Must Be Covered in 72 Hours — Airman Descends Near Berwick Owing to Engine Trouble.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—The longest and most difficult hydroaeroplane flight ever undertaken was made by Harry G. Hawker to-day, when he began his second attempt to win The Daily Mail's prize of $25,000 for a flight around England and Scotland within seventy-two hours.

Hawker was actually in the air over nine hours, his speed sometimes exceeding sixty miles an hour. He started from Southampton at 5:30 A. M. and landed at Beadnell, twenty miles south of Berwick, at 7:30 this evening, having covered 495 miles. He made earlier descents at Ramsgate, Yarmouth, Scarborough, and Seaham Harbor.

Hawker arrived at Scarborough without mishap, his engine working smoothly. He hoped to reach Aberdeen to-night, but near Seaham a water pipe of the engine burst, forcing a descent. The trouble was speedily repaired, but an hour was lost. Hawker then reascended and headed for Berwick, but slight engine trouble again compelled him to descend at Beadnell. He must arrive at Southampton on Thursday morning in order to win the prize.

The airman, who is flying in a Sopwith hydroaeroplane with a Green engine, was greeted with enthusiastic cheers wherever he stopped or came within hailing distance at popular coast resorts. He hopes to start from Beadnell at 8 o'clock to-morrow morning.

Profiting by his experience in his first flight, he is wearing glasses to protect his eyes from strain, and his ears are plugged to keep out the deafening noise of the engine.

Hawker is now the only competitor, MacLean having withdrawn.

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Aug. 25.—Harry G. Hawker, the English aviator, started at 5:30 this morning his second attempt to make the tour of the English and Scottish coasts in a hydro-aeroplane. He is the sole participant in the 1,600-mile flight, open to all British machine.

The flight must be completed within seventy-two hours, during which descents may be made on the water only at the control stations at Ramsgate, Yarmouth, Scarborough, Aberdeen, Cromarty, Oban, Dublin, Falmouth, and the finishing point at Netley, near Southampton.

Hawker reached Ramsgate, the first control station, at 8:10, having taken 160 minutes to fly the 144 miles from Southampton.

YARMOUTH, Aug. 25.—Hawker, who left Ramsgate on the second stage of his long journey at 9:11, arrived at Yarmouth at 10:40. He flew the distance of 96 miles in 89 minutes. There was a slight mist over the water during the entire flight, but the sea was smooth. Great crowds of spectators in small boats and coast steamers cheered Hawker on his journey.

After a rest for luncheon, which he took in a motor boat, Hawker left Yarmouth at 11:40 on the third stage of his flight, to Scarborough, the fashionable east coast watering place.

SCARBOROUGH, Aug. 25.—Hawker reached Scarborough at 2:43 P. M., flying the distance of approximately 150 miles from Yarmouth in 183 minutes.

He flew the 390 miles since he started from Southampton at an average flying rate of over fifty miles an hour.

SUNDERLAND, Aug. 25.—Hawker, who left Scarborough for Aberdeen, Scotland, at 4:13 P. M., was obliged to alight just to the north of Seaham Harbor at 6 o'clock, owing to engine trouble. He had flown a distance of about sixty miles on the fourth stage of his journey.

After adjusting his engine and taking on a supply of petrol, Hawker resumed his flight at 6:40 o'clock. At 7:30 he descended at Beadnell, a fishing village twenty miles south of Berwick. He announced that he would remain there for the night.

CONSULAR AGENT STABBED.

W. J. Alcock Severely Wounded by a Madman at Huelva, Spain.

HUELVA, Spain, Aug. 25.—While working at his desk to-day, the American Consular Agent at Huelva, William J. Alcock, was stabbed in the back by a madman.

Mr. Alcock's assailant was a Spaniard named Bejarano, who is apparently suffering from the delusion that Americans have stolen patents of an important invention belonging to him.

The Consular Agent was severely wounded, but will, it is stated, recover.

Bejarano was sent to jail.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—Little is known at the State Department of William J. Alcock, the Consular Agent at Huelva. He was born in Ireland, is 52 years old, and has been engaged in various mercantile pursuits. He has been in the wine business in Spain, and was appointed Consular Agent in 1901 while living there.

The office is paid in fees, and last year Mr. Alcock earned $1,536 through this means.

DEPLORES OLYMPIC FUND.

Frederic Harrison Also Hits at Our Alleged Athletic Methods.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, Aug. 26.—Frederic Harrison sends to The Times a letter protesting against the Olympic Fund which is being raised in England by public subscription. He says in part:

"Surely this stir about Olympic Games three years hence has a comic side. To be told that our lads cannot fairly compete in some footraces or other trials of strength unless the sum of £100,000 ($500,000) is raised sounds rather droll. I am quite aware that Americans and others are raising huge funds and making gigantic efforts to win the prizes, and I know that unless similar efforts are made here few pots will be brought home, but the whole affair stinks of game money and professional pot-hunting. * * *

"It is as dismal an act of rivalry as the race for armaments, which is crushing the life of the European continent.

"In America it is easier to raise a million dollars for such a purpose than to raise £5,000 here. The United States have aggregate wealth vastly greater than ours, and it is wealth waiting to be poured out and not earmarked, as ours is, by social habits. Their population is much more than double that of the British, and men of athletic type and breeding are more than four or five times as many. The sources for raising such funds are practically unlimited. Our sport patrons might as well try to emulate the public gifts of a Rockefeller, a Morgan, or a Carnegie.

"And for what is all this money wanted? In order to meet on equal terms foreign athletes who are not real amateurs, some of whom cannot be trusted to play the game with absolute fairness as competitors, nor as spectators to behave like gentlemen, with good humor, decency, and self-control.

"Blackguardly yelling, graft, and sharp practice will soon degrade the Olympic games to the level of a mob at an old-fashioned prizefight, the brutalities of which Jack Johnson is coming over to teach us."

Our Ambassador Gets a Three Years' Lease of 6 Grosvenor Square.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—No. 6 Grosvenor Square has been leased for three years by Ambassador Page, who expects to occupy the house in the middle of September, when he will return to London after a motor trip.

The house was formerly owned by Earl Howe, and is now the property of Col. Granville Smith, late of the Coldstream Guards. The location is excellent. The Duke of Manchester lives at No. 5, and Lord Farquhar at No. 7. Other houses in the square are the Italian Embassy, the Japanese Embassy, and the Chilean Legation.

Lord Strathcona, the Duke of Somerset, the Duke of Portland, Lord Haversham, Lord Hollenden, Lord Leigh, Lord Newlands, Mrs. James Henry Smith, the Earl of Leicester, the Marquis of Bath, Sir George Cooper, the Earl of Durham, and Lord Montagu all live in Grosvenor Square.

The house, which, the Ambassador says, "has no frills, but is simply the kind of house in which, I think, an American Ambassador should be housed," has twenty bedrooms, seven drawing-rooms, a big ballroom, and a large reception hall.

A real estate man says the rent would probably ordinarily be about $15,000 a year, or $12,500 for the season. Mr. Page may pay a lower rent, as in his case by law a good part of the rates and taxes is removed. The landlord usually pays these, and the exemption may make the rent about $12,500.

The Ambassador will leave the Coburg Hotel for his motoring trip on Sept. 5.

BATHERS MUST BE DISCREET

French Mayor Bars Men "Posing as Athletes" and Warns Ladies.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Aug. 25.—Visitors at a popular seaside resort on the coast of Normandy, which is chiefly famed for bathing, are in a state of anxiety, mingled with amusement, at the proclamation of the Mayor, posted in front of the dainty little bathing cabins which line the sandy shore. The proclamation is as follows:

"Unusual or eccentric bathing costumes are forbidden. Ladies who do not wish to wet their costumes must nevertheless have them of discreet design. Men who appear on the beach only to pose as athletes will not be tolerated. An Inspector will visit the bathing cabins to insure the strict carrying out of these regulations."

The Mayor's fiat is not the result of any complaint by the bathers, who are now discussing the point whether the local authorities at a seaside town have the right to impose their own prejudices upon visitors who are amusing themselves in what is not the local property, namely, the sea. They argue that the mere display of the form by a man or a woman in a bathing costume is not "indiscreet." The bathers are awaiting the advent of the Inspector with a good deal of curiosity.

EXPLAINS BRITISH ACTION AS TO FAIR

Sir Albert K. Rollit Declares It Had Nothing to Do with the Panama Canal.

EXHIBITORS ARE NOT EAGER

Would Have Preferred New Orleans Owing to the Lower Cost of Shipping Goods to That City.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Tuesday, Aug. 26.—Sir Albert K. Rollit, who is Chairman of the International Exhibitions Committee of the London Chamber of Commerce and was President of the Chambers of Commerce Commissions for the exhibitions at Amsterdam, Antwerp, Brussels, Turin, and Rome, and also a member of the Royal Commissions for those at Paris, Chicago, Brussels, Turin, and Rome, sends a column letter to The Times from the Ghent Exposition on the British action in regard to the Panama-Pacific Exhibition.

He says his personal knowledge enables him to negative absolutely any suggestion that the Government was influenced in its refusal officially to participate by any feeling of retaliation against the action of the United States in relation to preference for coastwise shipping to pass through the Panama Canal, adding:

"The truth is, official participators in some exhibitions had great difficulty in overcoming the refusal or hesitation of the Government to take part in them, and for the very same reasons now alleged by the Board of Trade, particularly the expense, the inadequacy of their commercial results, and the difficulty of securing the co-operation of manufacturers and dealers owing to the cost involved and lack of parity in returns to traders.

"The above objections to the San Francisco exhibition were foreseen by the Exhibitions Committee of the London Chamber and indorsed by the Council, when in February, 1911, the question of the locale of the exhibition—whether it should be at San Francisco or New Orleans—was submitted to them, and then they gave the preference to New Orleans, for the reasons, inter alia, of distance and the cheapness of direct carriage by water without transshipment, as compared with partial carriage overland and additional handlings. But the promoters ultimately decided otherwise. Hinc illae lachrymae.

"We must assume that the negative decision of the Government rests upon inquiry and information, but of the sources and results of this the Board of Trade is alone aware, and in the meantime there is ill-founded but much-fostered belief among large classes in America that San Francisco and Panama have some subtle connection of which the adversaries of this country are seeking to make capital.

"It would be well if either by participation or by clearly justifying nonparticipation we could stamp out such a mean and unworthy slander, as it is felt to be by all those of us who ever made it an object to promote the very best relations with our kinsmen. Feelings we may have, but we do not vent them in any such ways.

"At the Chamber of Commerce in this direction I have already asked the Secretary and the Staff of the Chamber to sound as many as possible of our exhibiting members and helpers upon the crucial, final question, their willingness or otherwise to make or obtain adequate representative displays at San Francisco for their own potential profit, for the honor of their country and in the cause of peace and good-will between the two great kindred peoples of the world."

HINDU PRINCE WEDS BARODA PRINCESS

Marriage Broken Off in India Takes Place Three Months Later in London.

BRIDEGROOM IN WHITE SILK

Prince Jitendra of Cooch-Behar Creates Sensation at Hotel Where Ceremony Is Performed.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—Two of the most powerful native ruling families of British India were united to-day, when Princess Indira, only daughter of the reigning Maharajah (Gaekwar) of Baroda, was married here to Prince Jitendra, son of the Maharajah of Cooch-Behar, after a romantic courtship.

The initial ceremony, which took place in the strictest privacy, was performed at the hotel where the young bride has been staying, and was accompanied by the customary Hindu rites, as, prior to the marriage, the Princess Indira had been received into the Brahman faith, the creed of the bridegroom. Subsequently the forms of civil marriage were gone through at a registry office.

The greatest interest had been aroused in the attachment of the couple, whose wedding had first been fixed to take place in India on May 5, but was suddenly broken off, after which the bride and her parents sailed from Bombay for England, and were followed by Prince Jitendra.

It is understood that the Gaekwar finally yielded to the importunities of his daughter and consented to the marriage, at which, however, he was not present.

The bridegroom created something of a sensation this morning by appearing at the hotel in magnificent Indian robes of white silk heavily embroidered with gold.

Following the ceremony there was a wedding breakfast at which there were thirty guests.

The bride's father and her brother, Shrimal Jaisingrao, are both well known in the United States, where the latter studied at Harvard. Her mother, the Maharani, is a woman of advanced ideas, and is the author of a book on the position of women in India.

RUPP TREATY RUPTURED.

The Rupps are up in arms again. The East New York Rupps, Lawrence and Martha, who signed a treaty of peace last week, have ruptured it. Mrs. Rupp has had another eruption of suffrage. Mr. Rupp says his wife's good intentions were corrupted by hundreds of letters from suffragettes all over the country, who ridiculed her for abandoning the cause for the sake of her five children.

Mrs. Rupp went into Domestic Relations Court in Brooklyn yesterday and told Magistrate Fitch she didn't want to live up to the terms of the treaty by which she was to keep off the street corner soap box of suffrage oratory and devote herself exclusively to her home and children. Magistrate Fitch told her that the treaty was probably not binding, but dismissed the proceedings against Rupp on his showing that he had paid all the family bills since the signing of the treaty.

Rupp complained bitterly that he had come home four nights in a row to find his children neglected and no supper awaiting him. He said unless his wife lived up to the treaty he would sue out a writ of habeas corpus and take his children away.

GRANTS MORE DELAY IN CAB LAW MUDDLE

Justice Donnelly Adjourns Hearing on Taximeter Firm's Appeal for an Injunction.

COMPANY CHANGES FRONT

Counsel Contends Now That Clause Requiring Use of Taximeters Is Unconstitutional.

The settlement of the controversy over the enforcement of the public hack ordinance was put off again yesterday, when Justice Donnelly, in a Special Term of the Supreme Court, granted an adjournment of the hearing on the application of the American Taximeter Company for a permanent injunction restraining the city from enforcing the new law. The city authorities had hoped that the Justice would give a decision yesterday, and they were much disappointed at his failure to do so, as their hands were tied by the temporary injunction granted to the taximeter company pending a decision on its application.

John W. Brown, a lawyer, representing the Haverty Taxicab Company, joined in the American Taximeter Company's suit for an injunction yesterday, and so did the Broadway Auto Touring Company, represented at the hearing by A. K. Wing of Wing & Wing. The Haverty Taxicab Company and the Broadway Auto Touring Company were parties to the action for an injunction against the operation of the new ordinance, which was refused by Justice Seabury last Wednesday. The lawyers for the three companies and Assistant Corporation Counsel John F. O'Brien were allowed until this morning to submit briefs.

H. B. Leary of 55 Broadway, who appeared for the American Taximeter Company, in a brief submitted to Justice Donnelly yesterday attacked the constitutionality of the ordinance. This was a change of front, for when the application for an injunction was first made by the Taximeter Company its chief contention was that the new law did not give the company sufficient time to equip the taxicabs with the meters required by the new ordinance.

Mr. Leary asserted yesterday that neither the Aldermen nor the Legislature could compel public vehicles to use taximeters. He contended that this provision of the ordinance was arbitrary and unconstitutional, and asserted further that it would be impossible for hundreds of the small customers of the Taximeter Company to comply with the law because they were unable to buy, rent, or obtain otherwise the new taximeters required by the Bureau of Licenses.

"It is the desire of the Taximeter Company," Mr. Leary said yesterday, "to persuade the city to permit vehicle owners to use cards showing the difference between old and new rates of fare, according to the original plan. The city permitted this for more than a week, and then changed its attitude and arrested small owners for violating the taximeter clause. It is impossible to estimate the number of new meters which will be necessary. I can only say that they will run into the hundreds. The company does not believe it possible to meet the city's specifications for the new meter, and can only do as much as possible to accomplish it. To do this will require time, and if the city retains its arbitrary attitude, many owners and drivers of taxicabs will be denied a source of livelihood."

Commenting on the contention of the American Taximeter Company that it would take months to supply the new taximeters, Deputy Commissioner of Licenses Drennen said yesterday that many taxicabs were equipped with taximeters which complied with the new ordinance.

A. K. Wing, representing the Broadway Auto Touring Company, submitted a brief to Justice Donnelly in which he asserted that the new ordinance could not be enforced against sightseeing automobiles, as they were neither taxicabs nor public hacks within the meaning of the law. The city officials were not vested with the power to designate where public hack stands should be, he contended.

LEGACIES FOR SERVITORS.

Mrs. Grannis Made Private Secretary Principal Beneficiary.

From specific legacies of $75,000 in the will of Mrs. Jane Elizabeth Grannis, which was filed for probate yesterday, $43,000 was in the form of gifts to show her appreciation of the services rendered to her by non-relatives. Mrs. Grannis died on Aug. 8. She was the widow of Elnathan Grannis, President of the Tradesmen's National Bank.

The largest beneficiary under the will was William J. Murphy of the Lincoln Safe Deposit Company, who received $30,000 and one-third of the residuary estate "in recognition of his invaluable services as my private secretary and to mark my high appreciation of his devotion to my interests and comforts, as well as his unfailing courtesy, honorable friendship and prompt assistance since the death of my husband."

Other legatees who received gifts on account of services were: Dr. Frederick S. Towle, a diamond ring and $3,000; John Fitzgerald, her former private secretary, $2,000; Edwin R. Lancaster, $1,500; John Mulhall, her coachman, $1,000; J. J. McDavit, $2,500, and Dr. John Herman Eden, $2,500. Two cousins, Emma Augustine Bodine and Ellan Fuller Sexton, each received $12,500 in addition to an equal share in the residuary estate with William J. Murphy.

The charitable bequests totaled $8,000, consisting of $5,000 to the Presbyterian Hospital for the founding of the Charlotte Williams Platt Bed; $1,000 to both St. John's Guild and the Daisy Fields Hospital, and $500 each to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

BISHOP DIVIDES HIS ESTATE.

Sabine Makes a Special Bequest of Books on Theology.

The will of Bishop William T. Sabine of the New York and Philadelphia Synod of the Reformed Episcopal Church, who died on Aug. 11, was filed for probate in the Surrogates' Court yesterday. The petition asking for probate said that the estate was made up of more than $10,000 in realty and $10,000 in personalty.

Bishop Sabine divided his theological books between his two children, Edith S. Sabine and William T. Sabine. To each of his daughters, Mrs. Edith S. Sabine Lewis, Elizabeth H., Alice W., Julia H., and Mary T. Sabine, he gave three-twenty-thirds of the residuary estate, and two-twenty-thirds to each of his sons, William T., Philip S., G. Arthur, and Samuel S. Sabine.

FIVE-CENT BUS FARE, BUT A SHORT HAUL

Plan of New Company Is to Charge the Public 20 Cents, Against 5 in Subway.

MANY ROUTES OUTLINED

Passenger Going from Wall Street to 191st Street Would Use Four Buses and Pay Four Fares.

If the City of New York grants to George W. Loft and his associates the franchise to operate a motor bus line in Manhattan, for which they applied on July 28, the public will have another system of transportation, four times as costly as surface, Subway, and elevated lines, twice as costly as any existing motor bus line, and only less costly than the present taxicab service.

The application for the franchise was signed by John Larkin, Harry B. James, and George W. Loft, with the understanding that another application would be substituted for it by a corporation to be formed by them and their associates. It is stipulated in the application that the fare to be charged for one continuous ride from terminal to terminal of each route is not to exceed 5 cents for each passenger.

However, the routes proposed in the application show that a person wishing to go from Wall Street up Broadway to 191st Street would be compelled to pay fares at three terminals in addition to his original fare, making the entire trip cost him 20 cents.

In their application Mr. Loft and his associates, among other routes, propose the following:

From foot of Wall Street (terminal) west on Wall Street to Broadway, north to Park Row, to Centre Street, to Marion Street, to Lafayette Street, to Astor Place, to Fourth Avenue, to East Fourteenth Street, west to Broadway, (terminal,) returning by practically the same route.

From East Fourteenth Street and Fourth Avenue west on East Fourteenth Street to West Union Square, to Broadway, north up Broadway, and at Columbus Circle over parts thereat of West Fifty-ninth Street and Central Park West, to Broadway and West Seventy-second Street west to Riverside Drive, (terminal,) returning by practically the same route.

From Central Park West and West Seventy-second Street west to Broadway, north up Broadway to Manhattan Street, west on Manhattan Street to Hudson River, (terminal.)

From Broadway and West 127th Street north up Broadway, and St. Nicholas Avenue to West 191st Street, (terminal.)

Application is made for a franchise for twenty-five years, with a right to renewal for another twenty-five years, the city to be paid for the franchise at the rate of $10 a year for each coach or bus placed in operation over the routes mentioned or either of them.

Should the new company be able to absorb the existing Fifth Avenue bus line, this would make 20 cents the lowest fare by motor bus from the Battery to Harlem.

Borough President McAneny said yesterday that the application of Mr. Loft and his associates had been referred to the Bureau of Franchises, where it is to be investigated. He said he was not familiar with all the details of the application, but he said no franchise would be granted to any one to operate a motor bus line until the terms of such agreement were found to be "for the welfare of the public."

HAGAR REVELLY

BY THE AUTHOR OF "UNCLOTHED" — DANIEL CARSON GOODMAN

The greatest novel in many years.

"You have found out the secret WHY GIRLS GO RIGHT"

LETTER FROM IDA M. TARBELL

You seem to have gone direct to life for your material and to have dealt honestly and reverently with what you have found. I believe this is the way that life runs with girls like Hagar. She ought to be more illuminating than many vice reports to those good people who are trying to find out why girls go wrong and looking everywhere but in the girls' minds and hearts to find out.

You have found out a secret more difficult than why girls go wrong, and that is, why thousands upon thousands of girls go right in spite of hardship and work and sacrifice of every kind. I don't remember ever to have seen in any literature a more truthful presentation of the real reasons why some girls go wrong and others do not than you have worked out in "Hagar Revelly."

Very sincerely yours,
(Signed) Ida M. Tarbell

"Once you have followed Hagar through her experiences you can never forget her. She takes her place in that galaxy of unforgettable heroines. Goodman's effects are masterful . . . Creates almost perfect illusion of reality . . . an important and significant contribution to modern American Literature. An American novel of first rank."
—Willard Huntington Wright in Town Topics.

"Of distinctive power and significance . . . of a type rare in American fiction . . . the unvarnished story of a girl's life."
—Pittsburgh Sun.

"The significant story of an American Tess . . . read with marvelling interest from cover to cover . . . carries the literary garments of Turgenief with notable fitness."

OPPENHEIM IN A NEW VEIN!

The Double Life of Mr. Alfred Burton

By E. Phillips Oppenheim

"The Double Life of Mr. Alfred Burton" is so unlike my other work that I offer it with this explanation: It has amused me for many years to write short stories of middle-class life in a semi-humorous vein. I commenced Alfred Burton as a short story but it grew longer and longer as the plot unfolded until I found that I had written a full length novel.

My publishers tell me that this distinct departure from my customary vein is a most happy one and that this novel should not only please those who have enjoyed reading my previous novels, but will attract a new reading public as well.

That it may afford my American friends as much enjoyment in reading the novel as I have taken in writing it is the sincerest wish of E. Phillips Oppenheim

If our teeth could talk—they would say something like this!

"Yes, we are thankful for our friends—the millions of Tooth Brushes. They do a splendid work—so far as they go. We are grateful for the hundreds of Dentifrices. They in turn do a splendid work—so far as they go. But both together fall far short of protecting our enamel—our only weapon of tooth protection. Is there no escape from these 'Mouth-Acids'—these ever-present mouth-fluids which unseen, unbidden, are working day-and-night to break down our armor plate—and then make the soft inside tooth structure easy prey to decay-germs?"

PEBECO TOOTH PASTE

We answer: "There IS escape from 'Acid-Mouth.' Pebeco Tooth Paste is the one dentrifrice today which prevents 'Acid-Mouth'—the direct cause of 95% of all tooth-decay."

ARREST POLICE PENSION MAN

Bookkeeper Charged with Graft, but Marked Bills Miss Him.

Following a charge of extortion, George B. Hawthorne, an assistant bookkeeper in the Police Pension Bureau since 1899, was suspended yesterday afternoon, and then after a hearing before Commissioner Waldo was dismissed from the department and arrested. Hawthorne is said to have accepted $140 from George Carrougats, who was retired from the Police Department by Commissioner Bingham in 1907, to get his pension raised.

When Carrougats was retired in 1907 he did not get the maximum pension of $700. Recently he filed an application for it, and later alleges that he got a letter from Hawthorne saying that for a consideration he would obtain the increase for him.

Carrougats communicated with Commissioner Waldo and yesterday called at the Commissioner's office, where Deputy Newberger gave him $150 in marked bills, the amount asked for by the bookkeeper to put the increase through.

The retired policeman called on Hawthorne, and the two retired to a room on the third floor. Hawthorne was not noticed leaving there by the detectives placed on watch, but soon after the two entered the room Carrougats stepped out and told the detectives that he had paid Hawthorne $140 of the money.

Hawthorne, he said, had then left the room and returned to his office.

Greatly surprised that Hawthorne could have departed unseen, the detectives went to the Pension Bureau and found Hawthorne calmly at work. He was placed under arrest and searched, but the money Carrougats declared he had given him was not found.

The bookkeeper denied receiving the money.

DONE WITH HEALY RAID.

Grand Jury Likely to Make Presentment and No Indictments.

It was generally understood yesterday about the Criminal Court Building that the additional Grand Jury, which has for several days been taking testimony in regard to the recent police raids at Healy's restaurant, had voted down all complaints against police officials which were made through the Magistrate's Court. These complaints, of which there were five or six, charged felonious assault.

The purpose of the investigation, it is said, was to determine the responsibility of the higher officials who gave the orders for the raid and not the punishment of subordinates who carried out the orders. Although several high police officials were named there is said to be little probability that the orders they gave were so worded as to constitute an authorization of such scenes as were enacted during the raids.

The sentiment among the members of the Grand Jury, which is not, however, without opposition, is that the evidence was not such as to justify the indictment of policemen or under police officials for felonious assault, although there is just a chance that indictments may be found on some such charge as "presence without consent."

Although it had not been expected that the investigation would be finished before Thursday, it seemed probable yesterday that a presentment would be made to-day to Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions. It is not likely that any more witnesses will be called. No witnesses have been examined since Thursday, and yesterday the Grand Jury devoted its entire time to other matters.

Inspector Dwyer, along with Patrolmen Nelson J. Merrill, John A. Hyer, Edward A. Smith and Patrick Walsh, were arraigned in Special Sessions yesterday to answer charges of assault and battery in the raids. All pleaded not guilty and were released on $500 bail for trial the first Monday in October.

HORSE DEALER INDICTED.

Whitman Getting to "Men Higher Up" in Poisoning Cases.

The District Attorney's work against horse poisoners resulted yesterday in the indictment of a prominent east side horse dealer and liveryman, whose name was withheld. A warrant was issued and Central Office men were sent out to find the man.

The man indicted, it is said, is wanted for destroying several horses belonging to a downtown grocer for the purpose of forcing the grocer to sell his horses and rent teams of liverymen connected with the poisoners' gang.

STRIKE THREATENS THE HAMBURG LINE

Walkout of Longshoremen in Hoboken May Delay Sailing of Big Ships.

IMPERATOR DUE TO-MORROW

Employes Allege New Pier Superintendent Has Favored His Own Followers in Hiring Men.

With the Gen. Grant scheduled to sail for Hamburg to-morrow at noon and the Imperator due to arrive to-morrow morning, the officials of the Hamburg-American Line face a strike of 1,000 longshoremen. The longshoremen put away their bale hooks and departed in a body at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and as a result work is at a standstill on the company's piers in Hoboken, where the President Grant, the President Lincoln, and the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria are moored.

A committee of the strikers called upon Capt. Hans Jarka, the Hamburg-American Line's Superintendent of Piers, and he did his best to prevail upon the men to go back to work this morning pending a settlement of their demands. This the committee refused to agree to, and at a meeting held last night the strikers voted to stay out until the company met their terms.

The trouble started when the Hamburg-American Line appointed Capt. Jarka Superintendent of its piers. Before his advent the class or check system prevailed, and this was satisfactory to the longshoremen, as it insured them steady work. Under the class system every longshoreman had a check, and the men were divided into classes of 100 each. The men longest in the company's employ, whose numbers ran from 1 to 100, were the first engaged. Then, if more men were needed, those longshoremen whose numbers ran from 100 to 200 were called on. This system of seniority applied throughout the list of 1,000 employes.

But the men asserted that Capt. Jarka brought with him from Brooklyn his old stevedore, William Schmidt, and made him head stevedore on the Hamburg-American piers. Schmidt did away with the check system, and brought with him many of his men from Brooklyn, they said, discharging many of the old foremen, and installing his followers in their places. When he wanted longshoremen, the strikers charged, he sent out into the street and picked up the men he wanted, instead of sending for the old longshoremen by classes. The strikers demand a return to the check system.

The men asserted that their demand was made on Saturday, but that they were persuaded to return to work yesterday, on the promise that their complaints would be remedied. But as the morning wore on, and there was no sign of returning to the check system, the men became restless, and at 1 o'clock walked out.

Supt. Jarka could not be found last night, but his assistant, Capt. Bode, said:

"There is no trouble; the men only want a little rest. Then they'll come back."

WIFE SUES COURT CLERK.

Asks Divorce from H. P. Lewis, Domestic Relations Attache.

Deputy Sheriff Lee served a summons and complaint in an action for divorce on Henry P. Lewis, a clerk of the Domestic Relations Court, yesterday. Mrs. Jennie A. Lewis is suing her husband on allegations that he misconducted himself at the McAllister Hotel, Hollands, L. I., from Aug. 6 to 13. Lewis returned to his duties at the court yesterday after the close of his vacation.

Sheriff Harburger remarked that it was strange that a man whose occupation brought him in daily contact with so much matrimonial misery should become a defendant in a divorce suit.

SAVES FATHER AND SON.

Sergeant Mulhall Adds to His Medal Life-Saving Record.

Sergt. Mulhall of the Harbor Squad, who has made many rescues from drowning in the waters about Manhattan Island and who wears the medal of the Police Department and the Bell Medal by way of recognition, added two more rescues to his record late yesterday afternoon, when he went into the bay off the Battery and saved the lives of Thomas Ross and his son.

Ross lives at 278 Mott Street and runs the postal card stand on the second floor of the pavilion of the Iron Steamboat pier at the tip of the island. His 12-year-old boy Joseph, playing about the stand yesterday afternoon, finally went down to the lower level and out to the end of the pier. Then he fell in and was swept out by the tide. His father heard the hubbub, ran to the stringpiece, and, although he was not an expert swimmer, went in after his son.

He managed to reach him and hold his head above water, but he could not swim back, as the tide was too strong. Ropes were thrown from the pier, but they fell short. A little freight boat in from the Jersey shore tried to approach, but could not come near enough. Father and son were becoming wearied with their struggle when Police Launch 7 came to the rescue. It, too, tried to manoeuvre into a position by which ropes would do the work, but it failed, and over the side Mulhall jumped into the water.

As stroke after stroke brought him closer, the exhausted father let go of the boy, but Mulhall was in time to catch him as he went down, to tuck him into a life buoy and tread water as the men on the launch pulled the younger Ross to safety. Then the Sergeant got his hands on the father, pushed another life buoy within reach and paddled about until he saw him, too, safe aboard the launch.

Mulhall has rescued too many people to be much puffed up over yesterday's exploit, despite the plaudits of the crowd that lined the rails of the iron steamboat which came into her pier in time to give her passengers a good view of the scene in the water. Best known of all Mulhall's life-saving adventures was his rescue two years ago last March of a 4-year-old boy, who had fallen through a manhole into the snow and slush filled sewer in West Eighty-sixth Street.

500 NEW PATROLMEN.

With Money Provided Waldo Will Make Appointments at Once.

Police Commissioner Waldo announced yesterday that he would begin to-day to make appointments of 500 new patrolmen, money to pay their salaries having been recently appropriated by the Board of Estimate. He will make speedy appointments of fifty to fill vacancies existing on the present roll of the department and will then appoint 450 additional men.

To facilitate the assimilation of such a large body of new men at one time, Commissioner Waldo will divide the 500 new appointees into four squads of 125 men each. Each squad will be assigned to a school of instruction, one at Headquarters, one at Old Slip Station, one at the Greenwich Street Station, and the last at the Old Tenderloin Station in West Thirtieth Street.

Commissioner Waldo said he was planning to prescribe the Swedish system of gymnastics for all men in the department, to keep them in the fine physical condition in which they enter the force.

SNAKES LET LOOSE IN SMUGGLING HAUL

Customs Deputy Opens Man's Bag Near Coenties Park and Reptiles Seek Freedom.

A BAG OF MONKEYS, TOO

When Party Reaches Surveyor's Office a Second Escape Furnishes Ten Minutes' Excitement.

Acting Deputy Surveyor of Customs Isaac Harris and Customs Inspector Walter Murphy were walking west in South Street yesterday afternoon, when Harris called Murphy's attention to a man who was carrying two bags, both containing something that wriggled. At the time the customs men were near that part of South Street where the break to the north makes Coenties Slip, and the man who carried the wriggly things was about twenty-five yards ahead.

"There is something in those bags that's dutiable," said Harris.

"I believe you are right," replied Murphy.

Thereupon the customs men put on a little speed, and off Coenties Slip they halted the individual with the suspicious bundles on his back.

"Pardon me, friend," said Harris, "but we are of the Customs Service, and thought that maybe you would let us see what you are carrying in those bags. Animals, you know, are dutiable, and that wriggle is suggestive of 20 per cent., which happens to be the amount levied on animals, reptiles, and birds from foreign climes."

"Quit yer kiddin,'" the man with the bundles answered, and started to walk away.

"Not so fast," said Harris, and, taking hold of one of the bags, opened the top of it and stuck his arm down into it.

Then there was a howl, and Harris, the man who omitted it, jumped skyward several feet. As he ascended the Coenties Park sleepers saw a writhing, glistening thing around his arm. It was a West Indian snake of considerable proportions, and if snake looks indicate anything at all the look in that snake's eyes surely said he was glad to meet Harris, even if Harris was unable to return the compliment.

Half a dozen other reptiles were out of the bag by this time and were wriggling about the street, while the old salts and other South Street characters, who were not certain the snakes were the genuine article or the South Street species, took to their heels and disappeared in the direction of Battery Park.

The man who had been caught with the animals said he was Charles Pooch of 111 Bloomfield Street, Hoboken. After the snakes had been gathered in, Harris and Murphy took him to the Custom House, and there was enacted the second chapter of the story, for no sooner did the customs officers and Pooch enter the office of the Surveyor than something happened. Out of the second bag, up to that time unopened, jumped half a dozen little monkeys. They ran, jumped, and squealed, and for ten minutes the Surveyor's office was in an uproar.

Finally the monkeys were recaptured, and to-day, with the snakes, they will be taken to the animal quarantine station, in New Jersey. Later the fate of monkeys and reptiles will be decided. In the meantime Harris and Murphy are being congratulated for their fine detective work in landing such an unusual haul.

Here is the Greatest Six-Cylinder Car Ever Produced

OUR entire sales organization, engineering department and factory managers not only endorse the statement that this is the greatest six-cylinder car ever produced, but insist upon advertising it as such—there is no other expression which so adequately and truthfully describes the new 1914 Oldsmobile Model 54.

We have never before in our sixteen years of automobile manufacturing made so strong a statement. Our policy has ever been, and will continue to be, a truthful adherence to facts, and when we commit ourselves we believe we can prove by demonstration or comparison that we have not underestimated the position occupied by Model 54 among sixes.

The motor of this new Oldsmobile is a marvel. To perfect it, the largest corps of engineers, engaged in the exclusive business of designing and building automobile motors, have labored for years. They feel (and we believe you will agree) that this product is the most efficient six-cylinder motor either in this country or abroad. Not too light—not too heavy—perfect in balance and control—it is all that knowing motorists mean by the term "light on its feet."

The 1914 Oldsmobile is not a triumph for ourselves exclusively, but one in which every American can share. Europe's most noted car builders have yet to produce a car that will surpass this Oldsmobile in appearance, completeness or performance.

The 1914 Oldsmobile is here, awaiting your inspection. A liberal allowance will be made on your old car.

GIANTS RALLY AND WIN IN NINTH---NATIONAL LAWN TENNIS---TURF

CRANDALL SHOWS REAL GRATITUDE

Doc Wins Game in Ninth Inning Because McGraw Saved Him from Exile to St. Louis.

At 5:10 o'clock yesterday afternoon Joseph Faversham Tinker and the Cincinnati Reds thought that they were going to win a ball game at the Polo Grounds. Their reason for this idea was that, at the time mentioned, they were an eyelash in front of the Giants by a 1 to 0 score.

At 5:11 o'clock J. McGraw told J. Tinker that the Giants had only been teasing all the time and that they had no intention whatever of letting the Reds go back to Rhineland and boast about how they beat the Giants. Most assuredly not.

At 5:12 o'clock the last of the ninth inning began. Herzog bounded a grasser off Red Ames's shoe and made it a hit. J. McGraw folded his arms, looked like Napoleon, and right away burst into a fit of strategy. He called out limping Larry Doyle to pinch-hit for Merkle. Larry whaled the first ball pitched to right field for a single, sending Herzog to third. Murray lofted a sacrifice fly to centre, and Herzog beat Marsans's throw home in a cloud of dust, and the score was tied. Doyle, crippled though he may be, went to second on the throw-in.

With Snodgrass at the bat, Ames started to wind up, and Doyle stole third. Cincinnati was dumfounded. Any one must admit that Larry had an awful nerve. J. Tinker whispered to Ames, and Snodgrass got a pass. McGraw whispered something to Matty, and Matty whispered something to Snodgrass, and Snodgrass stole second. There's some quiet inside ball for students of the game. All done in whispers, without any signals, either.

About this time the 8,000 human beings in the stadium began to howl like the mob in the French Revolution asking for bread and butter in their own inimitable way. Or may be it was just bread without the butter. Anyway, yesterday's was howled.

And why? Oh, just because Chief Meyers, with his smashed thumb all dressed up as if it was a holiday, went in to bat for Olaf Wilson. This is the Indian's first appearance since his thumb was banged flat in Pittsburgh weeks ago.

J. Tinker also became strategic, and when Meyers was about to wave his bat about alarmingly, Josephus whispered to Ames to let Meyers saunter. Meyers accepted the nomination, and the bases resembled an uptown Subway train at rush hours.

Old Doc Crandall poked his head out of the Giant rathskeleid and McGraw gave him the high sign, so Otey got his bat. McGraw then spoke to Old Doc in a fatherly way. He said, with feeling: "Doc, I did you a good turn once when I saved you from spending your declining years in St. Louis; now, one good turn deserves another."

There were almost tears in Crandall's eyes after this little talk, but it was because he was laughing "I know I'm getting old and gray, Mac,' said Crandall, "but if there's a hit left in me, it'll win this ball game." Crandall looked at his old pal, Ames, and his heart fairly failed him. It was a shame to do it to a good fellow like Leon, but plain, cold dooty looked Crandall in the face.

Old Doc mauled the ball unkindly and pumped a single over in the alfalfa back of second, and Doyle scooted in with the winning run. Game to Doc.

Outside of those few hits Ames pitched a fine game. He was in trouble at times, but pitched himself out and got matchless support from his team mates. The Reds had a little edge on the Giants from the start, right up to 5:10 o'clock.

Secretary John B. Foster had a thousand or two orphans as his guests in the upper part of the grand stand, and they howled with joy when Georgie Burns of Utica made a couple of circus catches. All the orphans said they would vote for J. Foster for any office he ever runs for, even if they have to be as old as Umpires Hank O'Day and Bob Emslie.

Al Demaree pitched a fine game and gave the Reds only four hits in seven innings. Two of these blows were grouped in the third inning with an error by Tilly Shafer, and just for that the Reds got a run. That one run looked just like the Washington Monument, until that fatal hour of 5:10 arrived.

There were two out in the third when the Reds were stricken with a run. Ames arose heroically to his own cause here by rippling a single to centre field. Bob Bescher rolled a grounder to Fletcher, who bobbled the ball a moment, but got it to second in time for Shafer to have had Ames, but Tilly dropped the throw and Ames was safe. Johnny Bates banged a single to right field, and Ames pushed around to the plate. Everybody was sorry Leon didn't win the game with that run of his.

He gave a splendid exhibition of pitching in the second inning, when, after fanning Herzog and Doyle, Murray tripled to deep right. Snodgrass walked and stole second, and McLean also walked, filling the bases. Ames then struck out Demaree.

"Red" Donahue Dies in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 25.—Frank L. ("Red") Donahue, star pitcher a dozen years ago, died at his home here to-day after a long illness. He was 41 years of age. He retired from baseball seven years ago and entered business. Donahue entered professional baseball in 1892, when he played with the Milford, Conn., team. Later he played on the Lowell Club of the New England League and with the Allentown, Penn., team. He signed with the St. Louis Club of the National League in 1896, and the following year he was with the Philadelphia Nationals, with whom he remained until 1902, when he entered the American League, playing successively with St. Louis, Cleveland, and Detroit. Donahue while with the Philadelphia Nationals pitched a no-hit game against Boston.

Recruits Coming to Brooklyn Club.

Pitcher Pfeffer of the Grand Rapids team of the Central League reported to Manager Dahlen of the Brooklyn Club yesterday and worked out with the Superbas before the game with the Cubs. Pitcher Raleigh Aitchenson, the star pitcher of the Newark Club, and his battery mate, Catcher McCarthy, will join the Brooklyn Club to-day.

Tigers Get Two Providence Men.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 25.—Manager Donovan of the Providence International League Baseball Club to-day announced the sale of Al Platte, right fielder, and Eddie Onslow, first baseman, of the Providence team to the Detroit Club. Both men will report to the Tigers to-morrow. Onslow was considered one of the best first sackers in the league and Platte was the star fielder of the team.

CUBS WIN IN BROOKLYN.

Nose Out Superbas, 5 to 4, with Zimmerman Out of Line-Up.

Heinie Zimmerman, the noted conversationalist, was out of the Chicago line-up when the Cubs began their final series of the season at Ebbet's Field yesterday, and the game passed off very quietly, with the Cubs finishing on the heavy end of a 5 to 4 score. Heinie expects to be quiet for the other two games of the series, as well, at the command of President Tom Lynch, and the Brooklynites will hear no more Bronx oratory until another season rolls around.

Jimmy Lavender, picked to check the Superbas after some rude jolts to Bert Humphries had tied up the score and removed Bert from the picture, had the honor of carrying his team to victory. Jimmy gets two-baggers about as often as Tom Needham beats out a bunt, but yesterday was Jimmy's day, and he spanked out a full-sized double to left field in the seventh inning. Two were out at the time, and the bases were empty or the Montezuma Midget would have been subtracted from the struggle for a pinch hitter, the teams being deadlocked at this stage of the game. Tommy Leach refused to let Jimmy's noble effort go to waste, so he pumped a little single into right field, chasing Lavender home with the winning run.

Manager Dahlen had no more success with his first pitching choice than did Evers. Bill decided that Lefty Allen was about due for a regular pitching performance, but the Cubs made Bill change his mind in less than three innings. A pass to Leach, Evers's single to right field, which rolled through Moran's fingers, and Saier's single past Fisher gave the Cubs a two-run start on the Superbas in the opening inning. Bridwell opened the second inning with a single, but a fast double play erased the advantage. In the third Leach led off with a triple to centre, and Evers chased him home with a double to the same section. This hit carried a farewell message for Allen. After Schulte had grounded out Phelan nicked Yingling for a single to left and the Cub manager came home. Then Yingling settled down and the only liberties taken with his service were by Lavender and Leach in the seventh, when the game was turned in the Cubs' favor.

Brooklyn made a good start against Humphries. Moran opened with a single to centre, and moved along to third on outs by Cutshaw and Collins. Wheat hit to deep left centre for a triple, scoring Moran, but Zach was stranded on third when Daubert lined to Phelan. A fast double prevented trouble in the third after Yingling opened with a double, but in the fourth, doubles by Wheat and Smith and a single by Miller, after Collins had been hit, gave the Superbas three runs and tied up the game. Lavender came to the rescue in the fifth and prevented further scoring.

No Cardinal Passes Second Base.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 25.—Rixey was in such fine form and was given such excellent support, especially by Lobert and S. Magee, that St. Louis was shut out by Philadelphia here to-day by 3 to 0. The visitors did not get a runner past second base. The home team scored its runs by bunching hits off Doak in two innings and Geyer in one, after Byrne and Camnitz, who were traded to Philadelphia by Pittsburgh last Saturday, reported to Manager Dooin today, as expected, nor was any word received from them. Exciting Finish to Boston Game.

BOSTON, Aug. 25.—Boston's victory over Pittsburgh to-day, 7 to 6, followed one of the most exciting ninth-inning finishes seen at the National League grounds here this season. The last inning opened with the locals three runs in the lead. Two errors by Smith, one by McDonald, singles by Dolan and Carey, each of whom later stole a base, allowed Pittsburgh to score four times and gave the visitors a one-run lead. With one out in Boston's half of the ninth, a single by Myers, a double by Lord, and a single by Devlin drove Robinson, who had relieved O'Toole, from the box. McQuillan went to the pitcher's slab without warming up and passed Hess. Zinn hit the first ball pitched to him to left for a single, scoring Myers with the winning run. The score:

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—It became known today that Manager Callahan of the local American League Club has been indefinitely suspended by President Johnson of the League as a result of his altercation with Umpire McGreevy during Saturday's game between Philadelphia and Chicago. Callahan had objected to a decision at first base early in the game.

YANKEES CONTINUE IN LOSING STREAK

Cleveland Gets Enough Runs in Second Inning to Win—McConnell Injured.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 25.—Cleveland hit safely in every inning of to-day's game with the Yankees and had no trouble defeating the New Yorkers by the score of 6 to 2. The game was settled in the second inning when every member of the home team faced McConnell, getting five runs on a combination of two singles, a double, a triple, two steals, a pass, and a hit batsman. The Yankees failed to reach third base until the eighth inning, and the two runners who scored in the latter part of the game were the only Yanks to pass second base during the game.

The list of New York cripples received another addition to-day in the person of George McConnell, and it is not likely that the lanky flinger will be able to take his turn in the box for at least three weeks. In the seventh inning Leibold hit a hard liner at McConnell and the ball struck the New York pitcher on the right hand. It broke the third finger of his pitching hand so badly that the bone protruded through the flesh. The injured pitcher was taken at once to the dressing room and a physician attended the wound. Fisher succeeded McConnell and pitched well during the remainder of the game, which had already been made secure by the Naps.

It was a crippled combination that Chance sent against the Naps. Injuries to Williams and Peckinpaugh necessitated a shift in the infield, and Zeider was again at shortstop. Rollie's face was incased in a huge piece of plaster. Peckinpaugh is not likely to play for a week or ten days owing to the recent injury he sustained while sliding.

Blanding held the visitors safe all the way. An infield single by Cree in the first inning and a clean hit past first base by Maisel in the third were the only bingles secured by the Yanks up to the seventh inning. In this chapter McConnell singled sharply past Blanding, but he was forced to second a minute later by Maisel for the third out. In the eighth successive singles by Cook, Cree, and Hartzell filled the bases, with none out. Zeider hit to Lajoie and Cook counted while Larry and Johnston were engineering a double play on Hartzell and the Bunion King. With two out in the ninth Johnston sent Ray Caldwell in to hit for Fisher, and he drew a pass, following with a steal of second base. Maisel singled to centre and Caldwell scored the second New York run.

The second inning was enough for the home team. Lajoie was the first to face McConnell, and he was hit. Johnston's third strike Larry stole second, and he scored on Turner's single to centre. Graney chased Turner home with a triple to deep centre, and O'Neil followed with a single to right, scoring Graney. Blanding fanned and Leibold walked, putting O'Neil on second. Chapman popped up a fly, which fell between Zeider, Hartzell, Wolter, and Cook, just behind second base. O'Neil and Leibold started when the ball was hit, and both scored. In the eighth inning Lajoie scored on his single, Hartzell's fumble of Johnston's drive, and a single by O'Neil.

One-hand catches by Leibold and and Knight and a one-hand stop by Lajoie were the features. The score:

Cobb Saves Game for Tigers.

DETROIT, Aug. 25.—Ty Cobb to-day twice spoiled a possible Boston victory, and Detroit took the second game of the series, 6 to 5. In the fifth inning Cobb stole home with the tieing run, and in the eighth, after capturing Hooper's fly, he made a perfect throw to the plate and prevented Janvrin from scoring the winning run. Joe Lake, who will probably be sent to Minneapolis soon, started the game for Detroit and lasted less than an inning. Four hits, which produced three runs, sent Willett to the rescue. He was greeted by Janvrin's double, which counted Yerkes, but tightened up and pitched splendidly thereafter. A pass to Nunamaker, his theft of second, and Mundy's single in the fourth gave the world's champions their final run. Leonard allowed only one hit until the fourth, when the Tigers commenced one of their old-time rallies. Four hits scored three runners. Again in the fifth they started at Leonard, and singles by Baumann, Cobb, and Veach, scoring Baumann, brought Bedient to the rescue. Bedient trapped Veach off first. Cobb darted home, Mundy was the ball to Nunamaker, and the umpire said "safe." A moment later Veach brought in the winning run on a wild pitch. Cady went behind the bat for Boston in the sixth, but stayed there only a minute. He objected to a decision by Umpire Ferguson and was benched. Carrigan caught the remainder of the game. The score:

BOSTON RELEASES DEVLIN.

Giants' Former Third Baseman Goes to Rochester Club.

BOSTON, Aug. 25.—The passing of another veteran player from major league baseball was recorded to-day when President James Gaffney of the Boston National League Club announced that Arthur Devlin, third baseman, had been released to Rochester of the International League.

Devlin was one of the old New York National League stars whose great work helped the Giants win several league championships and the world's championship in 1905.

He came to the local National club in the Spring of 1912 as the result of a trade in which several well-known players were involved. His fielding has been up to his former average, but in batting and base running he fell off to such an extent this season that he has been used only as a substitute.

A SHORT-SIGHTED POLICY.

We wish President WILSON and the two Houses of Congress at Washington, in preparing a measure of banking and currency reform, might be inspired with an ambition to build well and soundly, to the end that their work should endure. They may take the declarations of the Baltimore platform as their guiding principles, they may listen with deference to the views of Mr. BRYAN, they may color the measure they draft with the misinformation and the prejudices of the Pujo report, they may embody therein the ideas of Mr. HENRY. But what shall it profit them in personal reputation or party credit to put upon the statute books a banking law so defective and unsound that inevitably after a few years' experience of its evil workings it will be expunged to give place to a law drawn by wiser and steadier hands? Will they let confidence in their own self-sufficiency and aversion to the counsels which experience offers them on every hand hinder the accomplishment of what we have no doubt is their sincere desire, the making of a law of permanent value?

It is more than a hundred years since the Bullion Report was submitted to the House of Commons. It has endured, it became and has remained a classic, and continues to be regarded as embodying the foundation principles of banking, because it was inconquerably sound, because it was not written to please a party or faction, but presented with admirable clearness the ripened conclusions of the ablest economists of the time. The time that has elapsed since the enactment of the Banking Act, which now controls the operations of the Bank of England, is very nearly the Scriptural span of a human life. Almost as many years have passed since the banking system of France was established, and it is now forty years since the banking system of Germany was unified and put upon a firm basis.

Can it be that these high examples of permanency in banking legislation have no authority or inspiration for the men at Washington, now charged with the duty of revising our own laws? The Continental banking systems are open to their study and examination, our own bankers have respectfully urged for their acceptance principles observed in European banking practice, principles that are the fruit of the experience of all the great commercial nations, and which have been formulated by the wisest minds. It ought not to be possible that with this full light upon the true path the Democrats at Washington should miss their way.

There may be discussion, there may be a difference of view, concerning some of the changes in the pending bill urged or suggested by the resolution of the Bankers' Conference at Chicago. But we are firmly convinced that Congress and the Administration will be unwisely guided and will fall far short of permanency in their work if they do not accept and adopt at least three of the amendments to the bill urged upon them by the bankers.

First, that if a majority vote cannot be had for one Central Federal Reserve Bank, then the number of the regional reserve banks established in the bill should be reduced from twelve to not more than five. This change is necessary to give power and efficiency to the new system. The sound principle of concentrating reserves in order that they may be promptly and with the least trouble mobilized in cases of need would be disregarded if twelve reserve banks are established, and so great a subdivision of the available capital for the reserve institutions would be an element of weakness. Five strong reserve banks might be created; if the number be twelve not more than two or three of them could be strong.

Second, the bankers' suggestion that the Central Federal Reserve Board should consist of seven members, the Secretary of the Treasury and three members appointed by the President, with three members chosen by the member banks. The amendment already made to the bill providing for an advisory board of bankers is a concession to public opinion which protested against a control purely political, without the benefit and the guidance of banking knowledge and experience. The danger of such a control was too plain not to be apprehended by the banking and the business public. A further concession should now be made, and the wise step taken of providing for banking representation on the board. The council of advisers would then be unnecessary.

Third, the circulating notes should be issued by the reserve banks themselves, not by the Treasury, and they should be an obligation of the banks, not of the Federal Government. The bankers advise this, and it is counsel sanctioned by experience that sounds an eloquent warning against the other plan. These notes, as the bankers would have them issued, would be based upon an adequate gold reserve, fully secured by that and by bank assets consisting of rediscounted commercial paper and foreign bills, and overissue would be guarded against by a tax increasing in proportion as the reserve fell below the normal level, and by the further requirement, already made in the bill, that no reserve bank should pay out the notes of another bank, but should at once return them to the bank of issue for redemption. Such a currency, always redeemable in gold on demand at the bank of issue, would be beyond all question safe, undue inflation would be guarded against, the volume of note issues would be elastic, closely proportioned to the demands of business, and the credit of the Government would not be exposed, and it should never be exposed, to the peril of impairment through currency troubles.

The best opinion of the day, the wise and informed opinion of all great nations, commends to President WILSON and to Congress the acceptance of at least these changes recommended by the bankers at Chicago. To reject this advice is to stamp their banking law with the fatal blemish of unsoundness and to give it a short life. We cannot believe that they will be so ill advised as to be content with that result of the work which the country feels they have undertaken with a sincere purpose to cure existing evils and put the banking and currency system of the country upon an enduring basis.

THE MEXICAN MUDDLE.

If it is true, as indicated in some of the Washington dispatches, that the reason to be set forth by President WILSON, in his message which is to announce to Congress the failure of his mediation mission, for the continued withholding of recognition from HUERTA'S Government will be the obvious fact that it is "dictatorial" and in the hands of few men, it seems that the gravity of the situation will be greatly increased. The same argument might have been made against MADERO'S Government, which was hotly opposed in various States and in the Federal Congress of Mexico from first to last. The same argument, also, might have been urged against the long successful Government of PORFIRIO DIAZ by Presidents GARFIELD, ARTHUR, CLEVELAND, HARRISON, MCKINLEY, ROOSEVELT, and TAFT.

Mexico, in the long run, will have the kind of Government that best suits it. If it amounts to a dictatorship, that is Mexico's affair. We cannot govern Mexico. The only essential fact to be ascertained concerning HUERTA'S Government is whether it is a Government that can govern. Mr. LIND by this time ought to be able to enlighten the President on this point. But we must infer that the Washington correspondents who are anticipating the message are only guessing and that President WILSON will have a stronger argument to advance in support of his policy of non-recognition than one which would apply equally well to other nations of the world whose Governments we cheerfully recognize.

AMERICAN SENTIMENT REGARDING SOCIALISM.

It is wrong to seize or damage the property of Socialists, or Industrial Workers, or to run them out of town, or ride them on a rail, or otherwise hurt their delicate feelings. This is such an indisputable truth that it is necessary to praise the circular of Secretary DANIELS directing the punishment of those who had an argument on the above subjects at Seattle a few weeks ago, getting the decision over agitators who are suffering from our present social arrangements. We hardly find words to express our distress regarding the Secretary's lamentable statement that the police sided with those who expressed their prejudice against the Industrial Workers in a manner which it is necessary to believe left them in no doubt regarding the drift of the debate. It will hardly be believed that on this state of affairs Rear Admiral REYNOLDS finds it impossible to punish anybody, because everybody is guilty, and there is no specific proof against any individual.

We take it to be admitted by all that the only persons having freedom of speech in this country are those engaged in undermining our institutions. The only persons whose property is sacred are those who hold that there is no right to property, and who nevertheless like to have its titles in their names. People who mind their own business, and move on when the police bid them, are slaves to authority, and trucklers to tradition, and too mean-spirited to resist the new unionism and the old revolution under new names. The earth, therefore, belongs to those having the will and the strong arm to take it, and the intelligence to defend their acts by the formulas of a new philosophy. The earth belongs to the pragmatists when the police are not around, and they frequently are elsewhere. These things are so clear that there is rising a certain unrest in many circles not suspected of it.

It is not surprising that the disciplined forces of our Uncle Sam should lead the lamentable expression of indignation just mentioned, and described in the circular of the Secretary as "attributable to the general sentiment of the better class of "people," and to the condemnation of the I. W. W. and Socialists by the press of Seattle. In Portland, Ore., the flag of the I. W. W. was burned. In North Dakota the I. W. W. orators were egged, and the town rounded them up, and set them down outside with advice to travel. In Chicago the American Federation of Patriotic Voters were capable of resolving that holders of such undesirable sentiments should not be allowed to enter or to remain in the country where they are in such a minority. The cruelest stroke of all was in Salt Lake City, where the flag of the free was actually waved in the faces of those who hate it, and seven were sent to hospital. In Canada even more thorough methods are coming into use. Four hundred soldiers surrounded 500 apostles of the new freedom and marched them off to dungeon cells in batches of ten, including a sympathetic member of Parliament.

THE THAW MONEY IN CANADA.

It is a comfort, in a way, to know that the law and the lawyers, the Magistrates, the constables, and the alienists of Canada can be as easily bedeviled by the Thaw money as our own. For more than seven years this worthless degenerate has been a scandal and a nuisance here, and more than once, when it has seemed that he might perhaps be set free, he has been a public menace. The Thaw family, pouring out money to help this homicidal and incurable maniac to get his freedom, has been entirely reckless of public safety and public decency; it has seemed to be bent upon bringing further affliction upon itself by giving THAW an opportunity to commit new crimes. And now, when its money has at length made successful a criminal plot to deliver THAW from Matteawan, it is making a grotesque spectacle of the courts and the Government of Canada, just as it has formerly done here.

The cross-roads alienists who are ready, for a suitable fee, to declare THAW sane in Canada, speak with just as much authority as the alienists here who declared him sane. Nothing but the fee would make any alienist look upon THAW'S present daily behavior as that of a sane man. But the question remains whether a huddle of lawyers clutching at the Thaw money, just as the lawyers have clutched at it here for so many years, will be able to obstruct the course of right and justice among a people so hardheaded as the Canadians. That THAW, once inside the walls of Matteawan, should never in all his life have seen again the outside of those walls is, of course, the conviction of every sensible person in New York. It is the hope of every such person that he will speedily be shut up again in Matteawan and kept there. But meanwhile he is carrying on a "publicity" campaign to gain sympathy for himself in Canada, and men who appear to be of good standing there, men not usually in sympathy with criminals and maniacs, are aiding and abetting his purpose.

FIRE ENGINEERS' CONVENTION.

Uncommon interest is felt in the forthcoming convention of the International Association of Fire Engineers to be held in this city next week. This association has been in existence forty-five years, and its convention already has been held here twice, in 1875 and in 1902. But, as Fire Commissioner JOHNSON says, the modern development of our Fire Department has only just begun. We have always been proud of the department, with good reason, but we have more to show our visitors now than the admirable skill and discipline in the force. We have approved motor apparatus, a Fire College, said to be the best in the world; a Prevention Bureau with a splendid record. We have something to teach our visitors; undoubtedly we can learn something from them, too, in the discussions of the papers by American experts that are to be read.

There will be a notable and comprehensive exhibition of fire-fighting apparatus at the Grand Central Palace while the convention is in session; a firemen's parade will show our force and the fire fighters of some neighboring cities in holiday array; a monument to the heroes and martyrs of the department will be unveiled on Riverside Drive. We shall have distinguished visitors from England, Scotland, France, Germany, Russia, Holland, South Africa, Hawaii, and Australia, and we have no doubt that all of them will be glad they came before the convention is finished.

CANON NEWBOLT'S WARNING.

Canon NEWBOLT of St. Paul's, London, is no sensational preacher and no sentimentalist of the pulpit. It is not the practice in St. Paul's to preach "popular" sermons in order to attract the multitude; the benches in London's cathedral are never empty, and Dr. NEWBOLT is, normally, a rather formal and severe theologian, fond of doctrinal exposition. When he assails popular vice, condemning the manner of dancing tolerated in society, and some of the books that are widely read, he is not aiming at sensational effect. There is a serious movement against loose conduct and indecent literature. There are too much of both all over the civilized world, and decent people, in and out of the Church, are becoming alarmed.

As for the popular dances, here and abroad, they are generally what the dancers make them. The prevailing one-step, or "rag," which has all but driven the waltz out of the ballrooms, is rude and somewhat vulgar. But it is not essentially indecent. The defiance of all propriety by so many dancers supposedly reputable here has doubtless spread in England. Dr. NEWBOLT does not speak without knowledge. The libidinous literature, however, is worse than the indecent dance. The choice of subject and freedom of treatment in many of the books and cheap magazines of the hour are defended on the ground that the purpose of the writers is highly moral. There is supposed to be a mighty literary revolt against the timid reticence of the last generation. But this sort of thing is nonsense. The popular writers follow each other on the downward path, and each, it seems, tries to outdo the other in frankness. There is a mad rush to set down in print needless facts and opinions hitherto avoided. "The time "has come, the Walrus said, to speak "of many things." But the poor Walrus had no idea how many things could be freely talked about when the belief that the "time had come" became common.

Canon NEWBOLT spoke directly to the point in his sermon, summarized in THE TIMES'S Marconi dispatches yesterday. His example should be followed in all the churches of England and the United States. We are drifting toward peril, and the drift must be checked.

APPLES AND BANANAS.

There are 20,000,000 more apple eaters in the United States than there were in 1906, and yet there was "overproduction" of apples when the last crop was short of the average by 10,000,000 barrels. Under such conditions overproduction spells bad distribution, not shortage. The remedy is improvement of market conditions. The apple producers have remarked that people are eating bananas, oranges and grapefruit, and they have determined that if they are to sell their fruit they must adopt the methods of the trusts, which have brought exotic products within the reach of those who cannot eat domestic fruits because they are dear and inaccessible.

At the same time that Congress is belaboring the fruit trust for the efficiency which means cheap tropical fruits to the humblest, it is doing nothing to stimulate the inefficiency of the unorganized agricultural interest which wants something done especially for it at the expense of the consumers. It is not the fault of the railways, for the imported competitors of the apple must pay the same carriers, and the ocean carrier, too. It is not the fault of the consumer, for he pays his money out with equal reluctance, and loves not apples less because the substitutes are better brought to his attention. There is much need of an apple trust, as "bad" as the fruit trust. There is room for an organization which should produce better apples, and which should better market the apples already produced.

More apples would be bought if they were packed more honestly and attractively. And if the apples would not be eaten as apples they might be preserved, or made into cider, or fed to animals, or made use of in other by-ways. It has required adversity to give these hints to apple producers. There are some who do not need this teaching, and it behooves all to get into the same class of efficiency, in or out of the methods of the trusts, which are under punishment for their service to consumers.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Solving the Mystery of Alcohol.

Prof. G. T. W. PATRICK of the Iowa State University contributes to the current Popular Science a novel, interesting, and at least plausible explanation of the human demand for alcohol—a demand which exists all over the world, and not only persists, but apparently increases, in spite of the equally widespread conviction that the intoxicants are all destructive poisons, admitted even by such few and faint friends as they have to be socially injurious.

It is now known by scientific demonstration that even very moderate indulgence in alcohol measurably decreases the efficiency of both body and mind—that it is not a stimulant, but a depressant, and that its apparently exhilarating effects are delusions, due merely to its acting first on the inhibitory brain centres. Yet the total amount of alcohol manufactured—and consumed—steadily increases, and it is in the most advanced, progressive, and civilized nations that the increase is greatest. Various reasons have been given for the vogue of alcohol, practically all based on the sensations that follow its consumption, including temporary relief from pains and anxieties, but none of these reasons, Prof. PATRICK thinks, meets all the requirements of a full explanation.

In his opinion men drink for the same reason that they play games—in order to obtain rest from those mental activities which are carried on in the brain centres of latest development and therefore are most wearying. The mind works most easily along the thought lines followed by the innumerable generations of our remote ancestors, and it is certainly a highly significant fact that the play of children for the most part duplicates the occupations of savages and is reminiscent of tribal wars, hunting, and life in forest and plain. So one man spends his vacation in the woods or on the seashore in some approximation to primitive conditions, while another, by the cheaper device of alcohol, finds the same sort of rest. To the objection that to savages alcohol makes a particularly strong appeal, the theorist answers that they, too, have faculties, inhibitory and other, as new to them as those which we have are to us, and feel the same fatigue when they think and act along the unwonted brain routes. Women as a sex, he says, show a slighter longing for alcohol than men simply because they, as the conservative, unadventurous half of humanity, are nearer the primordial race type.

Insanity Is Not Illogical.

Questioned in London as to what he thought of HARRY THAW'S mental status, MARTIN W. LITTLETON showed by his replies that he hesitated to call the man insane. The chief cause for this reluctance seems to have been the observed fact that THAW is capable of arguing, and always does argue, from given premises in a perfectly logical manner. That, however, instead of proving sanity, is a characteristic common to the insane, as distinguished from the imbecile or demented.

The lunatic differs from other men, not by lack of ability to reason, but by lack of the power to judge facts, objective and subjective, as do others who in a given time and place are more or less nearly "normal." Most of the current phrases in regard to the insane are fallacious because based on the mistaken idea that they have "lost their reason." What they have lost is something quite different, if "reason" be defined as an orderly adjustment of conclusion to premise, of act to impulse or motive.

The madman who believes himself to be Queen VICTORIA or a teapot conducts himself in strictly logical accord with his delusion, and so does he who thinks he hears authoritative voices ordering him to do things absurd or criminal. Many men whom we would not and should not call insane have obeyed commands that were audible to none but themselves, and unnumbered millions of people perfectly sane have believed as confidently in the existence of witches as most of us—by no means all—now do in their non-existence, and have acted on the belief in an entirely logical manner. That is why sanity and insanity are not absolute, but matters of time and place.

There is, also, a permissible or sane departure from normality in any era, else would practically everybody have to be called mad, since no two people have the same way of thinking about all things, and the "average man" to whom reference is so often made is a creature of statistical fiction, convenient, but impossible. For Mr. LITTLETON to say, therefore, that THAW is abnormal rather than insane merely raises the question of the extent of this abnormality, and the assertion that the question has never been "dispassionately" settled has no better foundation than the differences of opinion among experts as to what the quality of his peculiarities is. On which side the weight of evidence lies is plain enough.

Immigrants Would Be Farmers.

In a letter recently sent to President WILSON, LAJOS STEINER, whose interest in and knowledge of our immigrant population have been often manifested, earnestly suggests the making of systematic efforts to direct these new arrivals to the sort of work which they did at home and are most eager to perform.

A great majority of the immigrants, Mr. STEINER wrote, are agricultural laborers by descent and training, and their great ambition is to own land of their own. To attain that object is why they cross the sea, and they enter city factories or engage in other unaccustomed toils, not from preference, but because it is for the interest of several kinds of exploiters that they should do so and they are not properly informed as to the extent and cheapness of our unutilized fields. What they earn here they send or carry home to invest in less fertile and more expensive land, while if they were helped to become farmers here their skill as producers would soon appreciably affect the price of living and so be advantageous to the rest of us as well as to themselves.

Mr. STEINER'S highly suggestive letter was referred by the President to the Secretary of Labor for consideration. One question that official may ask on reading it may be, "If the immigrants do not enter our mills and mines, and become farmers instead of digging our subways and aqueducts, who is to take the places they now fill?" Such work must be done by somebody, and with the cost of its performance the cost of living is by no means unrelated.

MUSEUM ATTENDANCE

Said to Depend Largely on Ease of Access.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos of your recent editorial on "Our Art Museum," I may say that accessibility is the most important factor in determining attendance at any museum. For this reason, as well as for the fact that the Chicago Art Institute has an extremely active Art School, the attendance at this institution probably will always exceed that at our own Art Museum. Another point is that attendance at a museum bears no direct ratio to its size or importance.

These facts are well shown by the attendance at the South Kensington Museum, London, which is less than at either the Metropolitan Museum of Art or the American Museum of Natural History. Further, the attendance at the Bethnal Green Museum, London, which is a branch of the South Kensington Museum, is proportionately very much larger than at the main Museum, simply because the Bethnal Green Museum is located in the midst of a dense population. The attendance at the American Museum doubled the year after the elevated railroad began to stop at Eighty-first Street. The attendance at the Brooklyn Museum is comparatively small because it is a little away from the main lines of travel. The attendance at the Children's Museum, Brooklyn, is proportionately much larger than at the Central Museum, because it is readily accessible, and, as is the case with small museums, its officers come in more direct contact with the visitors. Art Museum Ill-Ventilated.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos of THE TIMES'S article about the Metropolitan Museum, I call your attention to the poor ventilation of the building and the excessive heat in the upper floor, where are the pictures, the porcelains, and the Morgan collection. In Winter, when so many people visit the place on Sundays, it is uncomfortable for anybody on account of the stuffy air. In Summer it is unbearable. It is worse than the subway or the elevated in the rush hours. Even in Spring, when visiting the Morgan collection one of our party almost fainted, and we had to get out. FRESH AIR.

MR. BELASCO'S NEW PLAY.

It Is "The Temperamental Journey," Seen in the West Last June.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A story which appeared in your paper this morning is based so obviously on pure misinformation that I must respectfully ask, for the benefit of the theatregoing public and in justice to myself, that certain facts be made clear.

It was printed this morning that I have been rehearsing in secret a play that is like "The Great Adventure," a dramatization by Mr. Arnold Bennett of his own novel, "Buried Alive." The article cites certain supposed parallels summed up in the following paragraph:

> Some of those in the cast say that the new play deals with the adventures or a great artist who has grown out of touch with the world, and who allows the mistake of identity which confuses him with his valet to go unchecked, so that the valet becomes the artist and the artist goes on living as the valet.

My plans have been going forward openly. The play has not been rehearsed in secret; in fact, it was given an actual public performance in San Francisco last June. My new production is entitled "The Temperamental Journey," and it does deal with the adventures of an artist. There is not, however, any conceivable case of mistaken identity. The artist is not confused with his valet or any one else, so the valet does not become the artist nor does the artist go on living as the valet.

The following facts may throw a curious, and possibly unexpected, color upon the whole question: Mr. Leo Ditrichstein made his adaptation of "The Temperamental Journey" from an original French play, "Pour Vivre Heureux," written by Andre Rivoire and Ives Mirande. I secured the American rights immediately after its first performance. I therefore have had this play in my possession for a year and a half, and Mr. Ditrichstein has been working on it all that time. The original French play was first produced at the Theatre de la Renaissance, Paris, Jan. 16, 1912. Mr. Arnold Bennett's play was first produced in London in March, 1913. DAVID BELASCO.

A Vertical Searchlight.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a recent issue of THE TIMES Alden W. Welch calls my suggested vertical searchlight as a danger signal for trains impracticable for several reasons, and says the mere statement of the objections to it should be sufficiently convincing. Perhaps they might have been, but following Mr. Welch comes E. Adrian von Muffling, who says that signals similar to my suggestion have been tried on Western roads with success. As Mr. von Muffling seems to be quite as good authority as Mr. Welch and presents proof in addition, while Mr. Welch is unmistakably guessing at his objections, I am inclined to believe that I am not so far wrong as Mr. Welch would have me appear.

One of Mr. Welch's objections, which condemns his whole argument, is that of cost—the always ready argument of railroad people in the adoption of safety devices. Mr. Welch may not be a railroad man, but he sounds like one. In the meantime, why doesn't some Eastern railroad give the vertical searchlight a fair trial? I am willing to hide mine under a bushel if it will not work better than the present devices. W. J. L.

Thaw's Ovation in Canada.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A correspondent of THE TIMES describes his mystification at the ovation which was given to Thaw by the inhabitants of Sherbrooke, all of whom turned out and cheered for him.

The psychology of this phenomenon may be explained rather simply. The sudden appearance of Thaw in a small and ambitious town gave the town distinction. A great fire, a sensational murder, the residence in town of a great scientist or artist, would give the town distinction. All of the people would feel like cheering—from that basis of emotion which is commendable in its primary significance, and which relates to civic ambition. Many of the various doctors and lawyers who lend their aid in such numbers in the case are actuated by the same emotion which led the people of Sherbrooke to cheer, but in the latter case personal ambition, instead of civic ambition, makes them feel cheerful. They become much attached to a case if not to a cause.

Not Anxious to Vote.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Speaking of the ladies, God bless them, I am to-day in receipt of a communication from Hazard, Perry County, Ky., to the effect that at the recent primaries in that county, in which women could vote for certain candidates, not one woman stepped up to the polls and voted like a little man. Count 'em—not one. I am also informed that there is not one suffragette in the county, nor one slashed skirt nor X-ray gown. Is the suffragette responsible for the slashed skirt and the X-ray gown? I thought those were purely feminine propositions. Why don't the suffragists wake up those Perry County women? In a whole countyful not one is bountiful with her vote and—will some lady kindly complete the stanza? J. L.

Pure Drinking Water.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The city water has a very bad taste, and it does not seem to me that it can be wholesome, but it is impossible for me and for thousands of others who, like myself, live in one furnished room in New York to boil our drinking water. For those of us who must drink much water the cost of buying bottled water counts up, and then you are not sure that you are getting a pure water.

Is it safe to drink the city water without boiling it? This is an important matter on which people surely ought to be informed. Two physicians have told me that the hydrant water was quite as pure as the bottled "spring" waters sold here. N. C. KINNEY.

The Central Park Concerts.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was much chagrined to find that my business would detain me in this city over Sunday. Chancing to hear of the concerts given in Central Park, and being fond of music, I made my way there last evening.

If the people of New York have had the privilege of listening to such music all Summer, which I understand is the case, they have good reason to be right proud of their city, in this respect at least.

The entire programme was of a high class and finely rendered, while the solo work of the conductor literally brought down the house. PAUL V. WARREN.

THE CHILD'S PROBLEM.

When mother after several years
Discovered that the course
Of married life was going wrong,
She got a real divorce.

Now father isn't anything
To her except his name,
But, though I live with her, he is
My father just the same.

Then mother, in a year or so,
Got married, and, said she,
A nice stepfather now I'd have
To be so kind to me.

And so he was, but mother said
She thought he was the worst
She ever tried, and by and by,
She served him like the first.

And now he isn't anything
To her except his name,
But I am wondering if he's my Stepfather just the same.

GOV. BUTLER IMPEACHED

At Nebraska's Extraordinary Session, Abdicating at Once.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Owing to the rarity of resort to impeachment of political officers in this country, due chiefly, perhaps, to their short fixed terms, which automatically remove them soon enough, as a rule, for all practical purposes except political spite, the pending procedure against Gov. Sulzer has reawakened interest in the impeachment and conviction of Gov. David Butler of Nebraska.

It is contended that Gov. Sulzer cannot be legally impeached at the present session of the Legislature because it is a special session, and the Constitution of the State provides that "at extraordinary sessions of the Legislature no subject shall be acted upon except such as the Governor may recommend for consideration"; and of course the Governor is not recommending his own impeachment.

The first Constitution of Nebraska—that of 1866—provided that the Governor "may, on extraordinary occasions, convene the Legislature by proclamation, and shall state to both houses when assembled the purpose for which they have been convened * * * and when so convened shall transact no business except such as relates to the object for which they were so convened, to be stated in the proclamation of the Governor."

All the foregoing restrictions are more specific than the corresponding restriction in the New York Constitution. Article III., Section 16, of the Constitution of 1866, under which Gov. Butler was impeached, provided:

> In case of the impeachment of the Governor, his removal from office, death, resignation, or absence from the State, the powers and duties of the office shall devolve upon the Secretary of State, until such disability shall cease, and the vacancy be filled.

There was no Lieutenant Governor under this Constitution, but the corresponding provision of the New York Constitution is substantially the same.

Immediately after the Nebraska House of Representatives passed the resolution to impeach Gov. Butler, it sent a committee of two of its members (one of them the father of Philip Sommerlad, now Treasurer of Lancaster County) to notify the Senate of its action, and that it intended "without delay to exhibit particular articles of impeachment against him. * * * " I now quote from my extended account of the impeachment in the third volume of the History of Nebraska:

> On the same day a committee of the House * * * requested the opinion of the Supreme Court upon the question, "Does the impeachment of the Governor by the House of Representatives suspend him from office during the trial?" Two of the Judges—George B. Lake and Lorenzo Crounse—decided that it was proper for the court "to extend such aid as this informal expression may give." Their opinion was, "That all the functions of the Governor are suspended, and devolve upon the Secretary of State from the time of his impeachment by the House of Representatives and during the trial thereof." Judge Oliver P. Mason characteristically refused to respond, holding that a sense of judicial propriety forbade the expression of an opinion, "since the question may arise between parties who may become individually interested in its determination, and the court then be compelled to authoritatively determine the question."

After receiving the report of the two Judges, a committee consisting of [Edward] Rosewater and Duby notified the Secretary of State that the House recognized him as Acting Governor. That officer then made formal demand upon Gov. Butler for all bills and acts remaining in his hands. After considering the demand until 12 o'clock the next day, the Governor abdicated his office, and it was assumed by the Secretary of State. * * * It was ordained by an efficient power, mainly of the North Platte and focused in Omaha, that Butler should be politically crippled—and in particular for the Senatorial race. The dissenting Justice Mason was not of Omaha or the North Platte. His associates were.

The raising of the question as to when Gov. Butler was suspended from office under impeachment doubtless stimulated the Constitutional Convention of 1871 to avoid dependence upon technical construction; and it specifically provided plainly that, in case of the Governor's "impeachment to the Senate and notice thereof to the accused," the Lieutenant Governor should assume the office. The present Constitution provides, even more specifically, that "No officer shall exercise his official duties after he shall have been impeached, and notified thereof, until he shall have been acquitted."

Gov. Butler was found guilty during his third term of office of an offense committed during his first term, and the verdict was removal from office.

SPEER INQUIRY PLANNED.

Judiciary Committee Will Ask House for the Necessary Authority.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—Thorough investigation of the official conduct of United States Judge Emory Speer of the Southern District of Georgia, to determine whether he has been guilty of any impeachable misbehavior, was agreed upon unanimously to-day by the House Judiciary Committee. Chairman Clayton will introduce a resolution tomorrow asking the House to empower the committee to investigate the charges and compel the attendance of witnesses. The committee will report to the House its conclusions and recommendations.

The investigation probably will be made chiefly through a sub-committee. Judge Speer already has asked the committee to allow him to be present at the hearings, and has requested that, if possible, he might appear after a time when he would be subject to hay fever. Judge Speer said his physician had advised him it would be dangerous for him to go to Washington before. The committee probably will accede to this request.

Judge Speer has acquainted the committee with his line of defense, denying the charges and attacking their authorship. Attorney Huff of Macon, who made the original charges against the Judge, has written to the committee insisting upon a full investigation.

STOKES FOR YOUNG MEN.

Ex-Governor Says They Must Run the Republican Party.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 25.—Practically reading the old leaders out of politics, so far as the management of the Republican Party is concerned, ex-Gov. E. C. Stokes, who has announced himself as a candidate for nomination of the office again, issued to-day a statement in which he said he wanted a new deal in the G. O. P. organization, and favored the retirement of men past middle life in order that their places might be filled by younger men more responsive to current sentiment. In the statement, given out in connection with the filing of his nominating petition at the Secretary of State's office, he said:

"If I am nominated I shall endeavor to make this a young man's campaign, and shall appeal to the young men to come to the front and assume the leadership. If elected, I shall recognize the young men of the party who will influence its policies for progressive and constructive up-to-date legislation. I want the voters to understand my attitude in this respect so that if it does not meet with their approval they may vote against me at the primaries."

GREAT PROGRESS IN NEW YORK HYGIENE

Dr. Eliot Compliments State at Fourth International School Hygiene Congress.

SCIENTISTS AT BUFFALO

Over 2,000 Delegates from Many Nations Welcomed by Dr. Finley of the Department of Education.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, Aug. 25.—Official representatives of the United States, the State of New York and the City of Buffalo formally opened the fourth International Congress of School Hygiene, the first ever held in America, in the Elmwood Music Hall to-day, and the large hall was filled with men and women from every section of the United States and from almost every country of the civilized world. Over 2,000 scientists and educators are here as delegates.

Secretary of Labor William B. Wilson, representing the Federal Government, arrived early to-day, and on behalf of the Government extended the nation's hand of friendship to the visiting delegates. Dr. John H. Finley, Commissioner-elect of the Department of Education, welcomed the delegates on behalf of the State, and Mayor Louis P. Fuhrmann on behalf of the city.

Response to the addresses of welcome was given by the President of the congress, Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard University, who characterized Secretary Wilson as representing in the National Administration the great subject of productive work, steady and fruitful, as "the most effective feeder, trainer and civilizer of mankind." Dr. Eliot also complimented New York State for its great progress in hygiene.

Great Advantage to Other Cities.

Dr. John H. Finley of Albany, Commissioner of the Department of Education, spoke in behalf of the State of New York. He pointed out the great advantages which would accrue to every city if it would work out its practical effect the methods and ideas which are developed in the Congress of Hygiene experts. Dr. Finley spoke briefly of what the State of New York is doing to advance the cause of school hygiene, citing the enactment by the Legislature last Winter of the law which requires medical inspection of all the pupils in the public schools of the State.

Another open session of the congress was held to-night. Prof. Charles W. Eliot delivered his annual address, in which he reviewed the work of the organization for the last year and the progress which school hygiene has made throughout the world. Sir James Grant of Ottawa told what had been accomplished in organization of sections of the International Hygiene Congress in Canada and what the Organizing Committee, of which he is Chairman, hopes to accomplish next year.

During the afternoon sessions various phases of school hygiene were discussed, addresses being made by Walter H. Kilham, Boston, Mass.; Dr. Ira S. Wile, New York; Dr. D. P. MacMillan, Director of the Department of Child Labor of the Chicago public schools, and Dr. Edwin O. Jordan, Chicago University.

School buildings and their equipment was the general topic of the sectional meetings in the afternoon and over fifty addresses were made on this subject. Dr. John A. Ferrell of the Rockefeller Sanitary Commission of Washington, in a paper on the spread of intestinal diseases through the rural school, declared that the work done in the South in connection with the hookworm disease indicated that its prevalence had made it a real world problem.

In three and one-half years the Rockefeller Commission and health boards in eleven Southern States had made 661,581 microscopic examinations for parasitic ova, he said. Of this number of persons 329,578 were found to have hookworm. Private physicians treated 162,305 additional persons. As an indirect cause of death, Dr. Ferrell said, the hookworm probably has no equal. In many localities 80 to 160 per cent. of children in the schools have been found to have the disease. The infected children make 50 per cent. or less progress than is made by a normal, healthy child.

Suggests Children's Health Card.

The relation of school hygiene to industrial hygiene was the subject of the address delivered by Dr. Ira S. Wile, a member of the Board of Education of New York City.

"The school system affords abundant opportunity of correlating theoretical hygiene to practical hygiene," said Dr. Wile.

"Every child upon entering school should be supplied with a card of health. The general types of industry for which he is unfitted might be indicated upon his working papers so that an employer would be able to protect himself by carefully questioning the applicant to ascertain his real adapatability for the specific employment. Furthermore, the child himself would be protected in entering upon industrial life, prejudicially to his health, providing, of course, that the health suggestions were carried out."

Dr. Jordan emphasized the importance of the living human disease carrier as contrasted with inanimate objects in his address on "Disease Carriers Among School Children." More favorable opportunities for the dissemination of infectious disease could hardly be devised, he said, than those afforded in the school. The high susceptibility of children to disease and their unconventional habits in respect to care of fingers, mouth, and nose were mentioned as two factors accentuating the danger of infection. He urged the special attention of school authorities to measles and whooping cough, both of which diseases, he said, were commonly underestimated.

At 9 o'clock to-night a formal reception was tendered to the officers, delegates, and members of the congress. This reception ended the formal programme for the day. The real business sessions will start to-morrow morning.

To those persons who are looking for agreeable diversion, with the association of likable lilting tunes, the sort of comedy that does not need a subtle sense of humor, some sentiment, and an occasional clever person to get these things across the footlights, "The Doll Girl" may be cheerfully recommended. It is withal a clean and wholesome show as well, which is a thing not always to be said of the musical comedies that reach New York from capitals across the pond. And though its tale of the true love which never does run smooth is about as familiar as such things mostly always are, it is pleasantly garnished with melody and clothes and girls.

It is a bit novel, however, to find a flaxen-haired dolly taking an important part in the action, said dolly being more or less in the nature of chaperon and natural protection to the Doll Girl, Yvette Prunier, sometimes tobacco seller, and ultimately actress, in the little romance that has its beginning in a Picardy village where the farmer's daughters wear the latest modes in silks and satins, and ultimates in Paris, where these same maidens have seemingly graduated into fine ladies of the boulevards than whom Solomon in all his glory was not more gorgeously arrayed. In fact, "The Doll Girl" may be especially recommended on its sartorial side, and there are several pictures that are notable for the beauty of the femininity and finery.

All of which, though it is not unimportant, procides only the natural environment for the principals, of whom Mr. Carle and Miss Williams, the one as a flirtatious Marquis and the other as an Irish girl, masquerading Spanish, are provided with ample material for their varying talents. Mr. Carle, barring an inclination to feature a meaningless ejaculation of "Oy, oy," which is neither funny nor in the character, is a good deal more amusing than would be the case if he were entirely dependent upon the lines the librettists have furnished him. And his dancing is especially good.

Miss Williams, never looking better, does a number of things capitally and plays with a good deal of real spirit and aplomb. She is notably successful in a scene in the first act in which she pretends to be a village belle, so good, in fact, that one rather regrets to see her talents diverted from the soubrette type.

It is at about this point that "Come On Over Here," one of the catchiest numbers of the piece, is introduced, and it is peculiar among that music that song will probably be remembered by most people who see "The Doll Girl," it must be credited not to Fall, but to Eysler, composer of "The Woman Haters," in which comedy it was first heard here.

But Leo Fall on his part has certainly written a most melodious score, of which "Our Honeymoon" delightfully sung by Miss Dorothy Webb and Robert Evett, is the most insinuating of the first act. Miss Webb, the golden-haired title-maiden of the play, is a lively, ingratiating little creature, who rollicks through the piece most engagingly, even though she is the victim of contention between the scheming Marquis and his bashful son, Tiborius, who buys cigarettes that make him sick and postcards that he does not use in order to make eyes at the little saleslady.

In this juvenile rôle there is such advantage as comes from expertness in a particular kind of light acting and training in not the least difficult kind of singing. Mr. Evett's début in this city after a considerable success in London is most propitiously made, in fact. Again in a charming serenade in the second act he sand with much spirit, and he and Miss Webb had another good number in the third.

Another number, given with spirit by Miss Williams, is "You're So Fascinating," a proposition developed in a succession of love clutches with Mr. Carle as the victim, which provided some of the funniest moments in the piece.

There was occasional assistance from Will West and Charles McNaughton, the former of whom contributed a comic song, "I'm Going Away," and the latter "That Ragtime Dinner Band," and there was some good fooling engaging all of the comedians, in which the Russian dancers were grotesquely caricatured. Also there was some very lively and agile toe dancing by an unidentified soloist, who deserves a better fate than to bloom unheralded. Cheridah Simpson adds a share to the entertainment, and a word is due Edward Royce for the dances and groupings.

"All Aboard" Moves Downstairs.

Lew Fields and his company in "All Aboard" moved from the roof garden down into the Forty-fourth Street Theatre proper last night, and will continue the engagement of the piece there. Matinees will be given twice a week in the theatre, which was impossible on the roof. The production retains its original features, with some additional songs.

Miss McCall to Become a Nun.

Miss Nora McCall, daughter of the late Ambrose McCall and a niece of Edward E. McCall, the Democratic candidate for Mayor, is to enter a convent the first of next month. Miss McCall's home is at 151 East Ninety-second Street, where she was formally introduced to society by her mother two years ago. Miss McCall was graduated from the Convent of the Sacred Heart, where she will soon enter as a postulant. She is an accomplished musician, and has appeared at many affairs for charity.

BELASCO'S NEW PLAYS.

"The Temperamental Journey" the First—Plans for the Season.

David Belasco announced yesterday his plans for the coming theatrical season and for several new productions. The first play to be offered will be "The Temperamental Journey," in which Leo Ditrichstein will have the principal rôle. The cast includes Isabel Irving, Josephine Victor, Cora Witherspoon, Annette Tyler, Dorothy Ellis, Anna McNaughton, Gertrude Morosini, Carree Clarke, Alice Jones, Henry Bergman, Richie Ling, Frank Connor, Edouard Durand, Julian Little, Lee Millar, Daniel Schatts, Edwin R. Wolf, Earle W. Grant, and William Dixon.

This play will open the season at the Belasco Theatre at a date to be announced later. It is described as an adaptation made by Leo Ditrichstein from the French comedy, "Pour Vivre Heureux," by Andre Rivoire and Ives Mirandes, which was produced in Paris in 1912. The piece will first be performed on Thursday night in Rochester, N. Y., and have a brief road tour before opening here.

Although Mr. Belasco will present "The Temperamental Journey" at the Belasco Theatre, David Warfield's regular season is also scheduled for the same place. When he begins his engagement there, the first piece will be transferred to the Republic Theatre, and open the season there.

David Warfield's play this year will be a revival of "The Auctioneer," the first success of the actor after he passed under the management of Belasco a dozen years ago. In support of the star in his rôle of Simon Levi will be seen several of the original company in the piece. Among these are Marie Bates, Maria Davis, Helena Phillips, Harry Rogers, William Boag, Tony Bevan, Janet Dunbar, Joseph Brennan, Marje Reichardt, Charlotte Leslay and Frank Nelson.

The Warfield season will begin about Oct. 1, and after a season of twelve weeks Frances Starr will be seen at the Belasco Theatre in a new play.

Of touring companies "The Governor's Lady" will be the first to open its season, under the direction of David Belasco and William Elliott. After the week of Sept. 8, at Detroit, the play will go to Chicago for an extended run. Rehearsals are now under way for this play, as well as for "Years of Discretion" and "A Good Little Devil," both of which, with the same casts as last year, will open early in October.

From the latter institution he received a foreign fellowship and studied abroad for two years. The wedding will probably take place this Fall.

"His Wedding Morn" Presented.

Dare Austin and company presented at Keith's Union Square yesterday for the first time a sketch called "His Wedding Morn." The piece exhibits the troubles of a bridegroom whose best man finds him a few minutes before the ceremony at home still laboring under the effects of a too convivial bachelor dinner the night before. The audience seemed to find amusing material in his plight, and gave the actors several recalls. Supporting Mr. Austin were William Stuart and Breda Fitzgerald.

Man Campaigner Starts His Trip Glowing Like the Spectrum in Suffrage Colors.

THIS WAS NOT HIS FAULT

Mr. Brown Really Prefers Quiet Clothes, but Suffragettes Transform His Sombre Costume.

Alfred H. Brown, a seasoned campaigner and lecturer, departed from the headquarters of the Woman's Political Union, at 13 West Forty-second Street, yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock for the first tour of New York State made by a man in the cause of woman suffrage. He was festooned with all the colors that made the peacock the proudest fowl in the barnyard. Campaign banners fluttered overhead and on all sides, and he wore three neckties emblematic of the cause. On the driver's seat of the automobile which carried him to New Rochelle for his first one-night stand was Miss Eleanor Erving of 17 West Fiftieth Street, official chauffeuse of the Woman's Political Union. Mr. Brown had a hard day, and just before he started on his stumping tour he admitted that tea, lemonade, and cake, which were served by willing suffragettes in Brooklyn and Manhattan to speed him on his way, fell a little short of being good campaign bracers.

Mr. Brown is some 40 years old and is noted among his friends for his taste in dress. His preference, they say, is for neckwear of sombre tones. He campaigned for Roosevelt once, and made such an impression that the women of Washington and California obtained his services for woman suffrage. In those States the women won the ballot, and much of the credit for the victory went to Mr. Brown. He lives on the Jamaica Estates, in Long Island, and when he returned from the West James Lees Laidlaw, President of the Men's League for Woman Suffrage, asked him if he would not like to tell the country folk of New York State something about woman suffrage. More than fifty towns will be covered in the tour, and the local associations in these places will provide the platforms and drum up the crowds. Each of the local associations, it is planned, will "pass the hat" and thus furnish transportation for the suffrage orator to the next town on the schedule. From New Rochelle Mr. Brown will go to Tarrytown, and from there to Beacon. The trip will end in Buffalo.

The first of his farewell receptions yesterday was held at the headquarters of the Woman's Suffrage Party of Brooklyn at 27 Lafayette Street. Mr. Brown arrived wearing an afternoon suit and a black tie. There wasn't a spot of yellow—the national woman suffrage color—in his costume. President Barker of the Woman's Suffrage Party eyed him critically. She went into the cupboard, where campaign literature is usually kept, and got Mr. Brown a silk "Votes for women" pennant, all yellow and white. It was then 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon and a little early for tea, the hostess remarked. Some twenty-five women shook Mr. Brown by the hand and bade him godspeed. Mr. Brown thanked them and said he must be on his way. Automobiles provided by Frank Melville, Jr., Alfred J. Eno, E. Y. Stimpson, and Oswald G. Villard, were waiting outside and took the suffrage orator and leaders in the suffrage cause to the headquarters of the National American Woman's Suffrage Association at 505 Fifth Avenue.

The silk pennant was in Mr. Brown's hands as he entered the headquarters, and he waved it in answer to the applause which greeted him. Then he was showered with flags and pennants. In a few seconds the conservative Mr. Brown looked like a bandmaster. He couldn't hold all the "Votes for women" emblems, and so he dropped a few. One woman added a yellow gardenia to the collection. She pinned this on the lapel of his sombre coat.

"Oh, that horrid tie," Mrs. Charles S. Winslow of Brooklyn exclaimed, pointing to the plain black crvat the orator wore.

Thereupon she produced from the folds of her dress a necktie of blue and gold and white. Mrs. Winslow tied this in a knot which would hardly pass muster among the fastidious, but Mr. Brown didn't seem to mind. Then another woman ran to the front and completed the campaigner's adornment by pinning a button bearing the portrait of Dr. Anna Shaw in the exact centre of the blue and gold and white knot of the cravit. Mr. Brown beamed on his well wishers and had his picture taken. Then Mr. Brown and his party set out for the headquarters of the Woman's Suffrage Party of Manhattan, at 48 East Thirty-fourth Street. On the way out Mr. Brown spied a box of playing cards; the kind that bear the emblem of the Woman's Suffrage Party and are sold for 25 cents a pack.

"Give him one of those poker decks," said some one in the crowd.

"Oh, no," said Miss Byrnes, "there must be no immoral influences."

At the Thirty-fourth Street headquarters there was lemonade and cake for Mr. Brown, Mary Garrett Hay, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, and John Sherwin Crosby made speeches, and Mr. Brown replied.

"We need you to win our battle," said Miss Hay, at the same time decorating the guest of honor with another banner.

"In fact, we can't win anything without the men."

In his brief address here, Mr. Brown said:

"I am not fighting the cause of woman, but rather the cause of democracy. It is not so much the old idea of chivalry that has prompted the Men's League for Woman Suffrage to begin an active campaign in behalf of equal rights as the awakening consciousness that the burdens of democracy cannot be borne by but one-half of humanity. Our Government needs woman's help. In speaking to the people of New York State I am going to attempt to strike a new note in this truggle. I am going to urge women not so much to fight for the ballot, as to assume their duties and responsibilities. The men I shall ask to consider the movement and to encourage their wives to do like wise."

At the headquarters of the State Suffrage Association at 180 Madison Avenue Mr. Brown was welcomed by by Miss Harriett May Mills, President of the association. The fourth reception was held at the Woman's Political Union, and ended Mr. Brown's social afternoon. Here in addition to refreshments Mr. Brown received from Miss Beatrice Brown, secretary of the association, another necktie, of purple green, and white.

BOSTON, Aug. 25.—Charles S. Sergeant, Vice President of the Boston Elevated Railway, testified to-day at a hearing before the Arbitration Board, which is adjudicating the wage dispute between the company and its employes, that his salary had been doubled since 1897, while the maximum pay of the blue uniformed employes had been increased from $2.30 to $2.50 a day.

Cross-examined by Attorney Feeney for the Carmen's Union, Mr. Sergeant was unable to name any other company which required its employes to work sixteen years before reaching the maximum wage, as was the case with the elevated. HOLBROOK MURDER INQUIRY

American Vice Consul Going to Soushehir—A Plot Is Alleged.

CONSTANTIOPLE, Aug. 25.—The United States Embassy here has dispatched Lewis Heck, Acting Vice Consul and interpreter at the United States Consulate General in the Turkish capital, to open an inquiry into the circumstances attending the recent murder of the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Holbrook, an American missionary belonging to Lynn, Mass., at Soushehir, Asiatic Turkey. It is stated that certain facts have come into possession of the Bible House here showing that the murder was a deliberate one.

According to the official version of the affair, Dr. Holbrook was sleeping in the garden surrounding the house of an Armenian, who had been paying attentions to some Turkish women. Two Turks belonging to the neighborhood, determined to punish the Armenian, forced their way into the garden and shot the sleeping Dr. Holbrook in mistake for the owner of the house.

The murderers have been arrested and are awaiting trial. It is expected that they will be punished severely.

ALLEGES GREEK ATROCITIES.

Bulgarian Paper Asserts Soldiers Were Told to Kill Prisoners.

S. V. Tsanoff, a Bulgarian who is living in New York, stated yesterday that he had received newspapers from Sofia that contained a complete reply to the charges of atrocities made against the Bulgarian troops.

Mr. Tsanoff drew attention to the circumstance that most of the charges were anonymous, and declared that finally Bulgaria's enemies "resorted to hiring the biased Turcophile Pierre Loti and taking him over the war zone of months ago to help them out." He said that a letter found on a captured Greek, reproduced in the Bulgarian paper Mir, contained the following:

"Here (at Novrokop) we captured several prisoners and killed them all, according to the order given to us to kill all Bulgarian captives in our hands and burn all Bulgarian villages, so as to destroy the very root of these hateful people."

BETTER AUTO ROADS TO PHILADELPHIA

Marked Improvement Made in Routes Through New Jersey —Another Fuel Prize.

Motorists who frequently travel between New York and Philadelphia have noted with pleasure the improvements in road conditions which have been made during the last year. The Boulevard which is superseding the "plank road" across the meadows from Jersey City to Newark, although not completed, is now generally used on through trips to the South and West. In spite of worn spots, the main route from Newark through Elizabeth to New Brunswick is in good condition. By the completion of the State road from that city through Franklin Park to Kingston, an excellent short way to Princeton and Trenton is provided, which obviates the necessity of using any part of the old Cranbury Pike. In the opinion of the A. A. A. touring bureau, it is the best route over the middle part of the trip of Philadelphia. There are several routes from Trenton on, of which the shortest, but most complicated, is on the Pensylvania side, through Langhorne and Bustleton or through Hulmesville and Holmesburg. On the Jersey side of the Delaware, through Bordentown, Columbus, Burlington and Bridgeboro, few turns are necessary, and good time can be made in spite of the fact that this route is seven miles longer than that in the Keystone State. From Camden a ferry takes the motorist direct to Market Street, Philadelphia.

Tourists should not yet attempt the entire trip along the south side of the Ashokan Reservoir. Those who desire to see the spillway, dams, dikes, and headworks of the great Catskill aqueduct should turn left instead of right at a point just west of Stony Hollow. This road is picturesque, but rough in spots, and should not be considered a through line.

Not only has the price of gasoline risen rather alarmingly during the last year, but the quality has fallen off. Not more than five years ago 70 test gasoline was advertised and guaranteed, and it was not uncommon to find "essence" testing at 80 or better. Recent experiments by Clyde J. Coleman show that the standard is now well below 70, and in many cases has sunk to 54. This deterioration has been met by carburetor experts to some extent, but the wide use of the self-starter has made the poor starting qualities of present-day "gas" less apparent than they otherwise would be. It now seems that still another prize in addition to those offered abroad will be put up for the solution of the fuel problem. E. E. Schwartzkopf, Vice President of the Manhattan Automobile Club, said yesterday that the problem had already engaged the attention of the club and that he expected a substantial prize would be offered for its solution in connection with various competitions planned for the coming Winter.

The Executive Committee of the M. A. C., by the way, has announced that members admitted before Nov. 1 will not be required to pay entrance or initiation fees.

One of the novelties for motorists which the Summer has brought forth is a system of "vest pocket" touring information, published in card form as well as in minature tour books to be attached to the rim of the steering wheel. There are now 360 of these cards, covering New England, New York, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey, on the market. Key maps enable one to select the cards he desires. It is planned to extend the system in 1914 to include the whole country.

A new six-cylindered car has just been brought out by the Marion Company in two models, one a five-passenger touring car, the other a roadster. The motor in each case is of "L" head construction with cylinder cast in threes, and having a stroke of 5¼ inches and a bore of 3½. A novelty is the elimination of the "breather" pipe, the crank case compression escaping through openings directly into the valve mechanism pockets.

JEWELERS WAR ON FAKES.

Association, Which Meets To-day, to Inaugurate Campaign.

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—When the convention of the National Jewelers' Association opens here to-morrow a campaign against fake advertising will be inaugurated by the Executive Committee.

The problem was outlined by A. W. Anderson of Neenah, Wis., who said that one way to solve it lay in State legislation, but that ultimately there must be a Federal law.

"There are many farm papers which depend very largely for income on fraudulent advertising," said Mr. Anderson, "and thus the farmer is the greatest sufferer. Minnesota, Wisconsin, Ohio, Indiana, and New York have taken the lead in combating the evil."

IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

Fear Sutherland Proposal.

Local importers are getting worried over the activities at Washington of friends of Senator Sutherland's amendment to the Tariff bill, providing that goods now in bonded warehouses shall be dutiable at the rates of the present tariff, even though entered after the passing of the Underwood-Simmons measure. At first this amendment was not regarded seriously, the belief being that it could be easily "beaten" by exporting the goods and reimporting them under the new law. Senator Sutherland, it is said, now intends to provide for traving reimported goods and making them dutiable at the present rates on their return. It is this that is worrying importers, and pressure is being brought to bear on members of Congress to defeat the amendment. Bankers, too, are said to be vitally concerned, for the difference between the old and new rates on merchandise now in bond may mean bankruptcy for some of the firms owning it. Exporting and reimporting, if it were possible, would mean that from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 would be put into the pockets of foreign ship owners. In the opinion of one importer, the Sutherland proposal is preposterous, in that it does not take into consideration mill conditions in several European countries. All importers who own the merchandise now in bond, he says, are not trying to avoid payment of legitimate duties. Many of them have bought their goods early in crowded markets to insure their customers of the delivery of goods when they are needed.

Criticises Store Windows.

M. Robin, Manager of the Maison Pierre Imans, Paris, manufacturers of wax figures, made an interesting criticism of New York store window trims to a TIMES reporter yesterday. M. Robin is now here assisting in the preparation of an elaborate window display for R. H. Macy & Co.

"The chief fault I find with the New York window dressers," he said, "is that they crowd their displays too much. This is true of all but a few stores. The wax figures are not used well, either, which in many cases makes the displays appear too stiff. Less of the formal wood background and a more general use of scenic effects would enhance greatly the value of many of the displays. I use scenic backgrounds whenever it is possible, and advocate also the use of floor coverings. Ceilings over displays complete them to a considerable extent and also equalize the lighting. This is one point on which the Paris stores are better. Their window lighting brings out the merchandise in a way that is hardly possible here. The windows themselves are well designed, however, and offer many opportunities for excellent displays."

Novelties in Knit Silks.

Several high novelties in knitted silk goods are being shown here for Fall. Among them are knitted sashes for women. These are made 2¼ yards long, 5 to 6 inches wide, and are shown in ombré, Persian, and Roman effects. They retail at $7.50, and are especially liked because of their elasticity and figure-conforming qualities. In men's wear one of the best offerings is a graduated, full-fashioned auto or full-dress scarf with a hand-made monogram. It is made in the popular accordion weave, with open ends, and retails at $15. Without the monogram it may be had at $10. The color combinations are varied, the principal ones being black and gold, black and navy, red and black, and black and purple. An excellent demand for high-grade knitted ties is reported for Fall, the grades retailing at $2.50 to $4 being especially well taken. Popular-priced lines of these goods are not so active. Open-end knitted ties are most in demand.

To "Educate" Fruit Men.

According to reports received in this city, it has been proposed by the Delaware State Board of Agriculture to establish an apple-packing school at Dover to show the apple growers of that State the best methods of preparing their fruit for market. That proper and uniform packing has a great deal to do with the sale of apples has been demonstrated several times in prize competitions. Some work along this line has already been done, with highly satisfactory results.

CO-OPERATION THE CURE.

Earl Grey Says It Will Do Away with Existing Industrial Evils.

GLASGOW, Aug. 25.—Co-operation will be the basis of the ideal State of the future, according to Earl Grey, who addressed the Congress of the International Co-operative Alliance which opened its sessions here to-day.

In an enthusiastic inaugural address to the 600 delegates present, who represented 20,000,000 members of co-operative societies in America and Europe, Lord Grey painted a picture of the future co-operative international commonwealth, which, he said, would one day be co-equal and co-extensive with the whole of the civilized world.

Lord Grey declared the co-operation movement to be the most effective safeguard against the tyranny of trusts. It meant, he said, the elimination of the parasitic middleman and consequently a reduction of the cost of living. Co-operation, he said, showed how the warring forces of labor and capital could be reconciled and would put an end to the present industrial organization, which was responsible for much of the existing selfishness, suspicion, hatred, and consequent inefficiency, with their resultant sequels—poverty and discontent.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Converters Not Containers Nor Handkerchiefs Cotton Cloth.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday decided that high-pressure converters with complete armatures were dutiable under the Tariff Act of 1909, as manufacturers of metal at 45 per cent. ad valorem. The T. B. Walker Manufacturing Company of Galveston, Texas, asked duty at 30 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 151, as cylindrical vessels or containers. The board held that the converters were in no sense containers.

The American Express Company and others won a contention on steel strips and steel bars. The Collector at New York assessed additional duties on the ground that the goods had been polished and cold-rolled within the meaning of Paragraph 137. No exception was taken to the imposition of the regular duty accruing on such articles, but the importers held the extra duty illegal because the goods had not been finished by polishing or cold-rolling.

Andrew R. Stevin lost a protest on handkerchiefs taxed under the cotton cloth provision of the present law, according to the count of thread per square inch, value and weight, together with an additional 1 per cent. a square yard for mercerization. The importer objected to the additional duty, holding that it applied only to cotton cloth, and not to handkerchiefs.

Fall River Plant Resumes Work.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 25.—The seven mills of the Fall River Iron Works plant, manufacturing cotton cloth, resumed operations to-day after a shutdown of fifteen weeks. The plant employs between 5,000 and 6,000 hands, and while not all of the departments were running in full to-day, there was a big representation of help on hand. It is expected that it will be several weeks before all departments are running to capacity.

BUSINESS NOTES.

A campaign has been begun by the Merchants' Association to get the next convention of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association for this city. Letters requesting their assistance in this move are being sent to the members of the Manufacturers' Association. No convention of this association has ever been held here.

Exports of cotton cloth from this country in the fiscal year ended June 30 showed a substantial decline from those of the year 1911-1912, but a gain of nearly 100,000,000 yards over exports of 1910-1911. Shipments for the last month of the 1913 fiscal year showed an excess of about 5,000,000 yards over those of the same month in 1912.

The second of a series of three-day sales of dress goods being conducted by the H. B. Claflin Company will open to-day. Five thousand pieces of dress goods in open stock will be offered, which will include many popular staple and fancy fabrics.

There will be meetings of buyers of wash goods and housefurnishing goods to-day at the Dry Goods Union, 55 White Street.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

An American oyster dredge has been purchased and transferred to Canadian registry by one of the largest companies engaged in developing the oyster areas of Prince Edward Island. The dredge is equipped with a 36 horse power gasoline engine, is 40 feet long, 15 feet wide, and has a draught of 4 feet 8 inches. The two grapnels have a capacity of 5 bushels each, and the total capacity of the vessel is 700 bushels.

Refrigerator rooms have been installed in two of the Norwegian coast steamers in order to make practicable the shipping of Stavanger fresh meat to Christiania and other home markets. Heretofore much of the beef and mutton from the coastal plain of the Jaederen has been exported to England.

The British Consul at Bogota reports that a boot and shoe factory equipped with American machinery, is shortly to be erected in Bogota. The output is expected to be about 250 pairs of boots or shoes daily.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

Last week was an active one for jobbers of knit goods, so far as hosiery was concerned. Retailers were in the market for these goods in considerable quantities. Wholesalers were not active in the primary market, however, and several of the larger houses have yet fully to cover their Spring needs.

There is little falling off evident in the use of ribbons as millinery garnitures, Moire ribbons are reported to be especially popular for this purpose, being used in practically all widths.

The strong popularity of printed silks, evidenced in recent purchases in the local market, gives rise to the belief in the trade that they will be big factors in the coming Spring season's business. The silk trade, as a whole, is now said to be in better condition than for several years.

The attitude taken by the clothing manufacturers toward foreign fabrics for Spring has caused in men's wear circles a feeling that the domestic manufacturers will find some hard sledding when Fall, 1914, goods begin coming in under the new tariff.

FORESAW PRESENT MODES.

Scotch Baronet Predicted Changes in Women's Dress 200 Years Ago.

CORNISH, Col., Aug. 25.—The vogue of the diaphanous, the hobble, and the slit skirt is the fulfillment of a prophecy of Sir Charles De Puyster Goldwin of Scotland, who lived 200 years ago, according to a manuscript found to-day by Miss Faith Corson Smith in a trunk.

The manuscript is dated Nov. 10, 1704, and reads in part:

The time hath come when I think there is much to be revealed to my children's children in clothing the human form.

I cannot believe that men will forever wear wigs, swords, and knee breeches and such like fopperies.

Ladies should not be so circumspect in their dresses which are cumbersome, and the long trains which please their majesties of this year of our Lord seem to me naught but a design to conceal that which the Creator meant should be revealed.

Perhaps posterity will learn that this is naught to be ashamed of in that which God hath created.

The Creator never meant men and women to be so burdened with velvet ribbons, lace and powder that His handiwork should be concealed or distorted. The Romans, it seems to me, were much more sensible than we are to-day, and it may be that in a dozen scores of years peoples of the world will grow weary of these late changes which are only worse than those which were their immediate predecessors.

Sir Goldwin, so Miss Corson says, lived in Scotland until he became involved in political offenses that made him a fugidive to London, where the fashions evoked his displeasure.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices Advance as Trading Contracts—Easier Money Outweighs Mexican Uncertainties.

Further easing in the money market offered perhaps the best explanation of the moderate degree of strength which the stock market showed yesterday. Linked with this influence no doubt was the feeling which has been spreading of late that trade is being maintained in a way which promises well for the future. The assumption that this was an underlying influence fitted in with the improvement which was shown in the industrial section of the list. These and still other influences, perhaps, overweighed the reserve with which the Mexican situation was regarded. More light is expected to be thrown on that situation by the President's message to Congress and by the reception which that message receives in Mexico. Whatever concern was felt on this score did not prevent prices on the Stock Exchange showing sustained firmness in a session of more than usual dullness.

Announcement yesterday of a $7,000,000 bond issue by a Pennsylvania Company subsidiary marks possibly the beginning of a series of flotations subject to such limitations as a newly revived demand for bonds may impose. It is known, of course, that a large offering of the new Interborough Rapid Transit bonds is awaiting a favorable opportunity, and there is other financing to be done which may profit by the better market which is now being offered. It will be satisfactory from many points of view if all of the proposed financing can be done, as yesterday's flotation was, by the issue of permanent securities in place of notes. When the large amount of railroad and industrial notes which are now outstanding are refinanced in permanent form it may well come to seem to corporation managers that the resort to short-term financing in recent years has been overdone. If a broad enough market is now developing for long-term bonds to permit all necessary new financing to take that form, the burden will be transferred where it belongs, from the short-time money market to the capital market proper. Two views were expressed in high banking circles yesterday about the immediate outlook in the investment market. One was that there would be a market for all the bonds which needed to be issued, and the other was that bonds would be forthcoming as rapidly as the market would absorb them. If it be granted that one reason for the improvement which has taken place in bond prices in the last two and a half months is that restrictions have been put upon new issues it would seem probable that the possible supply of sound bonds is still in excess of the demand. In that case the need of circumspection in imposing fresh burdens on the investment market would seem still to exist. One of the reservations with which money market comfort this Fall is being predicted is suggested in the statement which bankers are making, that abnormal interest rates will be avoided this Autumn if there is no overreaching. In this respect the positions of the investment market and of the shorter time money market probably closely parallel each other—both will be the better off for being kept well in hand. But even granting these limitations—which for that matter must always be recognized, although not always to the extent to which it seems wise to recognize them now—genuine satisfaction may be taken in the signs which are being afforded of an enlarged and enlarging demand for bonds.

If hope had run very high in the financial district that the framers of the Currency bill would be much impressed by the suggestions for amendments made by the Chicago Conference of Bankers, the reports which reached Wall Street from Washington yesterday that none of the suggestions would be considered in the shaping of the bill in the House would have caused more disappointment than they actually did. There are sound reasons, however, for believing that, even if these reports represent accurately the present attitude of the framers of the bill, the suggestions advanced by the bankers will be taken into consideration before debate on the bill is closed.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

New Haven Still Sags.

Estimates of the amount by which the New York, New Haven & Hartford failed to earn its dividends in the past fiscal year proved sufficiently discouraging to some of the holders to bring about another selling movement yesterday, the result being a net loss of 2⅝ in the price of the stock. After greater activity than is generally seen in this issue it closed at 96⅝, making a new low record. The previous low price was 98½, made on Aug. 22. On the day of the stockholders' special meeting last week the shares dropped to 98⅝, but the promise of better days to come with the change in management prevented the making of a new low record on that day. As a 6 per cent. stock New Haven looks cheap, as compared to New York Central, paying 5 per cent., or Pennsylvania, but the conviction is gaining ground that New Haven cannot be considered a conservative 6 per cent. issue. On the basis of such figures for 1913 as have been published it appears that company fell short of earning the 7½ per cent. paid on the stock last year by $4,000,000. So far the new fiscal year has run behind 1913, owing to the loss of income from the Boston & Maine and the substantial increase in fixed charges to follow the sale of $67,500,000 of 6 per cent. debentures.

Southern Pacific Subscriptions.

At yesterday's close about half of the advantage which the holder of Union Pacific stock has in the purchase of Southern Pacific certificates over the buyer of old stock had been wiped out by the decline. Southern Pacific closed at 90⅜, while the certificates, with $4 in accumulated dividends attached, sold at 93⅛. The holder of Union Pacific pays 92 for stock which is selling at 93⅛. With the decline in Southern Pacific the rights attached to Union have naturally declined as well. They opened yesterday at 33, sold up to 35 and down to 26, closing at 29.

Puzzled Over the Market.

Some brokers profess themselves as distinctly puzzled by the stability stocks have displayed this month. They say that the dominant factors of influence upon stock market sentiment, with the exception of money rates, have been so constantly and increasingly bearish that prices should have shown marked reactions at times. The professional traders, they point out, always are on the destructive side of values, and yet when a trader has put out a line of shorts to back up his opinion he has usually taken a loss. The general level of prices has not advanced very far in the last two weeks, but far enough to prevent more than fractional profits on the short side if the seller was able to guess exactly the right moment to cover his contracts. In the opening week of the month prices advanced broadly, and the bears had scarcely any show at all. In reviewing the month briefly yesterday the head of a commission house said that he believed one reason why stocks were not being depressed to a greater extent was that the floating supply was small. He advanced the opinion that the public had accumulated securities since the low level of the Summer was touched in June on a far greater scale than the Street realized.

Why Government Bonds Dropped.

Following the statement of the National City Bank, showing such a small excess of sales over purchases as to eliminate this institution from consideration in a search for reasons for the decline recently, comes the report of the Auditor of Illinois showing that State banks in the City of Chicago sold more bonds than any national bank has so far confessed to. On Aug. 11 the State banks had $435,000 in Government bonds, as compared to $839,000 on June 3.

Uncertainties in Copper.

More uncertainty is expressed in the copper metal trade over the showing of the next monthly statement of the Copper Producers' Association than has preceded any other report of the year. Usually the trend of both foreign and domestic sales and the rate of production are of a character to be sized up approximately week by week and the results estimated. In the present month, however, conditions have arisen which the statisticians have studied with more care than usual, and yet have not been sure of their ground in figuring the probable amount of stocks on hand on Sept. 1. The strike in the Lake Superior region has undoubtedly cut heavily into the production of refined copper. The strike was under way in the closing week of July, but had not yet gained much headway when the producers' report for that month was prepared, and, besides, the refineries handling lake ore continued to turn out copper from supplies in stock for some time after the mines were shut down. While the strike is still in force at most of the properties in the Michigan peninsula, some of the Calumet and Hecla shafts have been sending up ore for several days, and the rock has been rushed to the refineries. August will show, therefore, as far as the lake companies are concerned, a certain amount of refined metal in the first and last weeks, but practically none for the other half. Buying was heavy in the first week, moderately so in the second, but has since been extremely quiet. The uncertainty of the effect of these factors on output and producers' supplies is bringing guesses on the statement for August, which set the decrease of stocks anywhere from 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 pounds.

The Varying Cost of Money.

The rise and fall in the yield which must be offered by gilt-edge bonds to make them attractive to investors is well illustrated by the experience of the Pennsylvania management with the Panhandle consolidated mortgage issues. The authorized issue under this mortgage is $75,000,000, of which, including the $7,000,000 announced yesterday, $67,078,000 have now been put out. In 1890 the interest rate was fixed at 4½ per cent. In 1899 money was much easier, enabling the roads with good credit to supply their needs at a cost of 3½ per cent., and this rate was fixed on an issue sold in that year. In 1910 an offering was made to pay 4 per cent. The $7,000,000 which the company is now placing are back on a 4½ per cent. basis again.

Action

Have you ever felt the inconvenience of being out of work?

Your earning power is suspended and the time you might have utilized is lost beyond recovery.

The continued income from money always "in action" outweighs the uncertain profits in waiting for lower prices that may never come. You may be losing adequate returns from your idle money.

Why not investigate the short term notes of a successful public utility company, yielding 6¾%?

Ask us for circular 27.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Most activity on the Consolidated Stock Exchange centred in United States Steel, Reading, Union Pacific, and Amalgamated Copper. Commission houses handled a good volume of business, considering the general Wall Street tendency to await the publication of President Wilson's expected message to Congress on the Mexican situation before undertaking extensive commitments. The tone was generally firm throughout the session. On the 9:30 o'clock opening call prices reflected general fractional gains compared with Saturday's closing figures, with further improvements recorded in the after call trading.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

Rallies in the grain markets caused most of the options to end yesterday's session with slight advances after early trading had brought substantial declines. Active buying carried December and later cotton months upward to new high records for the movement. The level of prices at the close was from 23 to 28 points above the closing figures on Saturday. Provisions declined, and cottonsed oil scored a fair advance.

CORN.

Farmers in the districts where the corn crop has been only slightly affected by drouth seemed more disposed to sell yesterday, and country offerings from Iowa and Illinois were on a fairly liberal scale. Southwestern cash markets were also lower and futures were easy early in the day, declining ⅜ to ⅝c, with considerable liquidation by September longs. Late in the session the market rallied sharply in sympathy with wheat and on renewed buying, closing near the top at an advance of ¼ to ½c.

World's exports for the week were 5,629,000 bushels, against 8,526,000 last week and 8,648,000 last year. The visible supply decreased 986,000, compared with a decrease last week of 1,619,000 and a decrease of 653,000 a year ago. In the local cash market export corn was quoted at 81¼c, nominal, free on board.

OATS.

The oats market followed wheat and corn, declining early under liquidation, and closing steady at a sharp rally from the bottom, net unchanged to ⅛c higher. Receipts were fairly liberal at interior points, and the visible supply showed an increase for the week of 2,666,000, compared with an increase last year of 1,032,000. The local cash market was steady; standard white being quoted at 47½@48c; No. 2, 48½c; No. 3, 46½@47c; No. 4, 46@48½c; ordinary clipped, white, 46½@48c; fancy clipped, white, 48½@49½c, all elevator.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Mortgages of Over $100,000,000, Recorded from Hudson & Manhattan Railroad to Guaranty Trust Company—Lower West End Avenue Deal—Telephone Company Buys in Huntington.

The week opened yesterday in the real estate market with practically no activity, the few sales announced being of minor importance. The recorded instruments in the Register's office showed a transfer of some of its smaller properties from the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad Company, which operates the East River tunnel service to New Jersey to the Guaranty Trust Company, and a retransfer by a confirmation deed back to the railroad company.

At the same time two large mortgage transactions were recorded as a result of the recent bond financing of the company to the Central Trust Company of New York as trustee, and then to the Guaranty Trust Company for an additional mortgage of $33,574,000, of which $38,102,000 has been advanced. The properties bear previous mortgages of $74,708,500, and are due Feb. 1, 1957. The mortgages cover the big terminal buildings downtown on Cortlandt, Dey and Fulton Streets, and the tunnels, trackage and all railroad rights.

Telephone Co. Buys at Huntington.

The New York Telephone Company has purchased at Huntington, L. I., a plot on the corner of Main and Prospect Streets from George Grau. The plot is about 100 feet square, and will be used by the telephone company for the erection of a three-story brick building, to be the central business office of the company in the north side of Suffolk County. The price paid for the property was about $10,000.

12,000 FROM EUROPE ON ARRIVING LINERS

Yesterday the Record Day for Passengers at This Port—Customs Swamped.

MILES BACK FROM BALKANS

Prince and Princess Engalitcheff Come Over to Visit Mr. Potter of Chicago.

More than 12,000 passengers arrived in New York yesterday on the eight transatlantic liners that made port between sunrise and midnight. Of this number, which is one of the largest that has ever arrived at New York in a single day, more than 3,000 were of the cabin class, the result being that the customs service was taxed to its utmost to examine baggage. Hours after the usual time that is needed to pass a ship the piers of some of the liners were still crowded with passengers.

It was by far the biggest day that has come along since John Purroy Mitchel, the Fusion candidate for Mayor, was appointed Collector, and advance lists of transatlantic arrivals at New York indicate that it will be a long time before it is equaled. The ships that got in, the number of passengers they brought, and the ports from which they came are as follows:

Ship and Port.	Cabin.	Steerage.	Total.
K. A. Victoria, Hamburg	805	1,257	2,062
Noordam, Rotterdam	458	8,861	1,329
Pres. Lincoln, Hamburg	646	1,369	2,015
P. F. Wilhelm, Bremen	669	1,433	2,102
Minnetonka, London	143	....	143
Chicago, Havre	299	626	925
Vaderland, Antwerp	....	....	*1,000
Europa, Naples	84	1,733	1,817
Total	3,104	7,279	12,383

*Estimated.

Among the arriving passengers was Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, U. S. A., retired, who has been in the Balkans watching the progress of the wars in that part of the world. He returned with his daughter on the Minnetonka.

Gen. Miles was away six weeks, and was in the Balkans most of the time. He said he was "neutral" when it came to expressing opinions about the difficulty there, and if he had anything to say it would be after he had rested up at his home in Northampton, Mass.

Prince and Princess Engalitcheff, with their little son, Prince Vladimir, arrived on the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria on the way to visit the Princess's father, C. W. Potter, in Chicago. Despite the fact that so many thousands of voyagers got in yesterday the Prince observed that there had been a great falling off in the number of Americans touring Europe this season.

"Perhaps they are taking the advice of the sign boards," he said, "and are seeing their own great country first."

On board the Kaiserin also was Robert Adamson, Secretary to Mayor Gaynor, coming back from a month's vacation.

The Misses Muriel and Frances Winslow-Spencer also came on the Kaiserin. They said they had witnessed some of the scuffles between the London police and the suffragettes, and that they had been so impressed with the righteousness of the "suffragette" cause that they were going back to join the fray.

TRENTON.—Twenty-seven persons from all parts of the State were appointed by Gov. Fielder to represent New Jersey at the annual congress of the American Prison Association.

TRENTON.—Gov. Fielder has mapped out a busy week. On Tuesday he will go to Atlantic City to attend the convention of the Foresters of America. On Wednesday he will view the baby parade at Asbury Park, and in the evening will be the guest of honor at a banquet tendered him by the Carnival Association. On Thursday he will attend the farmers' picnic at Glassboro, and in the evening will be tendered a reception at Mount Holly by the Burlington County Democratic Club, and on Friday he will travel to Red Bank to attend the Monmouth County fair.

KANE ESTATE $407,476.

John Jacob Astor's Grandson Also Had Income from Trust Funds.

John Innes Kane, a grandson of John Jacob Astor, left property valued on the day of his death, Feb. 1, at $407,476, according to the report of Appraiser Nagle, which was filed yesterday. The largest portion of his assets was in realty valued at $225,000, and consisting of $185,000 in a leasehold on 610 Fifth Avenue, and 7-48 interests in 518, 579 and 676 Broadway, which he inherited from his grandfather through his mother, Mrs. Louisa Kane.

The amount of his bank accounts, $101,244, indicated that he was the recipient of an income from trust funds which were not included in the appraisal of his estate because he did not possess testamentary power over these. Among the securities of his estate were membership bonds of the Mount Desert Reading Room, the Newport Reading Room, the Pot and Kettle Club, the Lenox Club, and the Southside Sportsmen's Club of Long Island.

Under his will his wife, Mrs. Annie C. Kane, received $186,918; his niece, Helen Dorothea Kane, $29,366, and his brother and sisters, Delancey Astor Kane, Emily A. Kent, Louisa Langdon Kane and Sibyl Kane, each one-fifth of the residuary estate, the shares amounting to $23,752.

WENDELL ESTATE $159,023.

In Addition Trust Fund of $476,810 Passes to Her Children.

The estate of Mrs. Mary B. Wendell, who died on Dec. 20, the widow of Jacob Wendell and the mother of Prof. Barrett Wendell of Harvard University, was appraised yesterday at a total value of $159,023. In addition to this amount, the report of the Transfer Tax Appraiser showed that Mrs. Wendell received the income from a trust fund of $476,810 created under the will of her husband, this fund passing on her death to her children.

Her residence at 8 East Thirty-eighth Street, over which she had entire testamentary power, was appraised at $120,000. Her two sons, Barrett and Evert J. Wendell, each receive one-quarter of the residuary estate, or $37,153, in addition to an equal share in the terminated trust fund of $476,810.

SAYS HE IS CHARLIE ROSS.

Man in Cleveland Makes Assertion —Jersey Woman's Story.

New Brunswick, N. J., has been interested for a week in reports from Cleveland of a man appearing in that city and asserting that he is Charlie Ross, who was kidnapped in 1874. According to these reports, the man said that Patrick Rodgers, living in Sayreville, Middlesex County, N. J., could prove his assertion. Rodgers was hunted up in the Sayreville marshes and said that the man might possibly be Charlie Ross, but could give no satisfactory explanation.

Popular credence in the report was stimulated, however, by the story of Mrs. Mary Morris, 73 years old, who related that two river men named Capt. Albert Campion and Tom Maggy had brought a mysterious boy to the swamp villages about the time Ross was kidnapped. She said Maggy made a deathbed confession that the boy was Charlie Ross. She said she could identify him by a peculiar birthmark, the size of her thumb, on his body. The names of Campion, Maggy, and other persons mentioned by Mrs. Morris have never appeared in any account of the crime.

In all the descriptions of Charlie Ross sent out through police channels there was no mention of any birthmark. It has been generally believed that Ross died of neglect in a sloop in Newark Bay, following the death of Mosher and Douglass, his kidnappers.

SPLIT ON ROSEVILLE PLANS.

Some Directors Won't Agree to Reimburse Depositors.

All of the Directors of the Roseville Trust Company, which was closed by the State Banking Department, were not in accord as to the plans to rehabilitate the concern, it was said yesterday. Some of the Directors refused to be assessed to make up the loss to the depositors, it was asserted.

Deputy Commissioner L. R. Vredenburgh, who is investigating the affairs of the trust company, said that it would be some two months before he could make a detailed report. The shortage is thought to be $378,000. So far the police have found no trace of the missing Secretary and Treasurer, Raymond E. Smith, who disappeared two weeks ago.

GIRL SPEEDER FINED; HAD NO CASH TO PAY

Fifteen Miles an Hour Is "Simply Crawling," Miss Weingartner Tells Court.

HERS WAS A 40-MILE CLIP

Purse at Home, She Confesses When Fine Is Imposed — Freed on Promise to Pay.

Special to The New York Times.

LAWRENCE, L. I., Aug. 25.—Miss Stella Weingartner, 19 years old, who has been spending the Summer with her sister, Mrs. H. Sumner Steinberg of Park Avenue, Woodmere, L. I., was arraigned this evening before Justice Sprague at Lawrence on a charge of exceeding the speed limit with her automobile on Sunday afternoon. The young woman has been driving her automobile all Summer along the smooth Long Island roads as if no such things as speed limits existed.

As Miss Weingartner entered Justice Sprague's courtroom at 6 o'clock, unaccompanied by friends or counsel, for she had determined to be her own lawyer, she balked at the threshold on seeing the room crowded with men who had gathered there to see the defendant. Her first move in her case was to demand that Justice Sprague clear the courtroom of the men, but the Justice pointed out that they had a perfect right to be there as spectators as long as they were well behaved. Then the case against the young woman proceeded, with motor cycle officer Kenyon first on the stand.

Kenyon testified that the young woman had driven her car along Central Avenue at a speed not less than forty miles an hour, and added that he had to chase the fleeing automobile for a mile and a half before he could overhaul it and serve Miss Weingartner with a summons.

When the young woman was put on the stand and the Justice pointed out that anything over fifteen miles was in violation of the law, she pouted:

"Why, Judge, fifteen miles an hour is simply crawling. I couldn't think of running my car at a crawl."

"I fear you will either have to crawl with your car or pay the penalty the law requires," Justice Sprague explained.

"Oh, well, then I'm guilty," the young woman retorted.

"Very well," said the court. "Five dollars fine."

Miss Weingartner looked helplessly around the room full of men, and then said:

"Why, Judge, I left home in such a hurry that I didn't bring my purse. I haven't $5 with me. If you will let me, Judge, I'll run down with the money in the morning."

And the gallant Justice let her go on her promise to pay.

J. S. Billings Left $139,891.

The appraisal of the estate of John Shaw Billings, Deputy Surgeon General, U. S. A., during the civil war, and formerly a Director of the New York Public Library, was filed yesterday, placing the assets of his estate at a value of $139,891 on the date of his death, March 11. His property was for the most part in securities, among which was one share of the New York Society Library, valued at $125. He divided his estate in equal shares among his five children, Mrs. Mary Clare Ord, Mrs. Kate S. Wilson, Mrs. Jesse Hartley, Margaret J. Billings, and Dr. John Sedgwick Billings.

SENDS SON AWAY, ENDS LIFE

Mother Gives Boy Money for Coney Trip, Then Turns On Gas.

Mrs. George Schultz of 266 Stagg Street, Brooklyn, took her twelve-year-old son George aside yesterday noon, slipped some money into his hand, and packed him off to Coney Island for the afternoon. When the boy came back just before dinner time, he found that his mother had killed herself by stretching out on her bed and turning on the gas.

Mrs. Schultz was 40 years old, and had been depressed over her ill-health for many months. Her husband is a mechanic.

Reserve Decision in Vendig Case.

Supreme Court Justice Donnelly reserved decision yesterday on the application of Joseph H. Vendig, better known as "Circular Joe" during his days as a solicitor of race-track bets, to have his indictment for perjury quashed. Vendig has been an agent of the Yellow Taxicab Company, and was indicted for testimony he gave before the Grand Jury when the delay in passing the Aldermanic taxicab ordinance was a subject of inquiry by that body. Vendig denied that the company had issued passes or had given free transportation to city officials, and the books of the company showed a number of "charge" accounts, which company officials said they made no attempt to collect.
